BOOT INDIANS — U.S. marshals stand on the dock at Alcatraz where they have ended the 19-month occupation in what has been called a surprise raid. The marshals, in a lightning afternoon action yesterday, landed on the island from Coast Guard vessels and removed the occupants without resistance.

INDIANS KICKED OFF

Surprise Alcatraz Raid

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Armed federal guards patrolled desolate Alcatraz today to prevent any Indian attempts to recapture the island they were effortlessly ousted from after a 19-month occupation.

An armada of U.S. marshals took back the rocky isle in San Francisco Bay in a surprise raid yesterday. The last 15 occupants offered no resistance and were carried off to a downtown hotel.

The angry Indians — who wanted to build a cultural center on the foggy island — charged they were betrayed by the government on orders of President Nixon. Some vowed to reclaim the island.

U.S. Attorney James L. Browning said a team of federal guards, with weapons, was stationed on the island and would resist any attempt at another takeover.

Authorities said fierce dogs and chain-link fences at strategic landing spots will also be put on the 12-acre former federal penitentiary to prevent a repeat of the Nov. 20, 1969, invasion by 89 Indian men, women and children.

Six bewildered men, four women and five children were all that remained of an Indian occupation force that once numbered more than 100 when 35 marshals covered by a circling helicopter leaped onto Alcatraz from three Coast Guard boats on a sunny afternoon.

Delbert Lee, 22, a Sioux, said the marshals were armed with automatic rifles and shotguns. "They were running around like chickens with their heads cut off," he said.

The 15 Indians were taken by the Coast Guard to Yerba Buena Island, fed lunch, and then put aboard a Navy bus for the Senator Hotel in San Francisco.

They shouted "Power to the Indian People!" and "We'll be back!" as they alighted.

Peggy Lee, 18, Delbert's sister who had lived on the island four months, predicted the government action would rally Indians throughout the country. She said calls were made to tribes in Montana, Washington and Southern California.

Browning said the decision to retake the island was caused by the Indian's refusal to cooperate in the investigation of a

Jetliner Hijacker Kills A Passenger

Daring Shoot-Out Following Slaying

NEW YORK (UPI)—A young Haitian, demanding to be flown to North Vietnam, shot and killed a passenger who tried to jump him when he hijacked a jetliner in Chicago. He was wounded in a shoot-out in the air with a U.S. marshal and a crewman and arrested today on landing in New York.

The alleged hijacker, identified as Gregory White, 23, forced his way on the Trans World Airlines 727 jet at O'Hare International Airport in Chicago as passengers boarded for the last leg of the Albuquerque, N.M.-to-New York flight late last night.

Stewardess Catharine Culver, 24, of Fond-du-Lac, Wis., tried to stop him because he did not have a boarding pass but before she could call for help White grabbed her and dragged her from the front of the plane to the middle of the cabin, she said. "He has a gun,'' she screamed.

Most of the passengers, still near the forward entrance, ran from the plane but one man, Howard Franks, 65, of Darien, Conn., rushed to the stewardess' aid. Franks, a management consultant, scuffled with the gunman and was killed with one shot in the head and one in the back.

Holding Miss Culver hostage, the slim, goateed gunman told Flight Capt. Robert E. Elder, 42, of Stamford, Conn., he wanted to go to North Vietnam. He also demanded $75,000 ransom and a machine gun and ammunition.

As the crew persuaded White to release the three passengers trapped at the rear of the plane, U.S. Deputy Marshal Joseph Zito, who was assigned to O'Hare to check passengers for guns, crawled through the cockpit window dressed in a TWA flight suit.

Elder said later at a news conference that to buy time he told the hijacker they would have to fly to New York to pick up another plane because the 727 could not make the trip to Vietnam. The airline prepared a 707 at Kennedy International Airport in case it was needed.

Miss Culver, who sat with the hijacker at the start of the flight, said he told her he left Haiti several years ago and

Nixon And Bunker To Confer

WASHINGTON (UPI) —U.S. Ambassador to Saigon Ellsworth Bunker is scheduled to arrive in Washington tomorrow for talks with President Nixon and other officials on two issues of increasing concern to the administration — one of them political and the other, military.
(See war story, page 29.)

Administration officials said Saturday there is greatly increased worry here on two points:

—The possibility that the ground rules for the October presidential elections in South Vietnam, approved by the National Assembly under pressure from President Nguyen Van Thieu, will so restrict the possible number of candidates as to lead to widespread belief that the South Vietnamese are not being given a truly democratic choice.

—The considerable increase in Communist military activity in recent weeks, particularly the buildup of North Vietnamese forces in Quang Tri province just south of the demilitarized zone, as well as evidence that conditions in Cambodia are deteriorating under increased Communist pressure.

Bunker, according to officials here, has already discussed with President Thieu the U.S. concern over the election law which requires presidential candidates in the October election to be endorsed by 40 assemblymen or 100 provincial councilmen.

The administration, feeling that the split between Thieu and Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky has already passed the point of no return, believe that the new ground rules will squeeze out all potential opponents of Thieu except for General Duong Van Minh. There are reports that Minh and Ky may have made a deal to throw Minh's support in the assembly to Ky in order to get him on the ballot.

While the National Assembly has passed the new rules governing the eligibility of presidential candidates, Thieu has not yet signed it. The hope in Washington apparently is to persuade him to send the measure back for liberalization in order to avoid giving the impression that the October elections are rigged in advance.

On the military front, administration officials acknowledge that they are somewhat worried over an increase in North Vietnam's military strength in Quang Tri province, where Hanoi now has at least nine regiments.

HOSPITAL ROOMS

Rate Hikes In 'Secret' Budget

Room rate hikes to support a $10 million budget — whose contents were kept secret prior to adoption — have been approved by the Marin Hospital District board. (See another story on page 22.)

The 1971-72 budget adopted Thursday totals $9,967,000 and represents a $1,400,000 increase over this year's.

Efforts by the Independent-Journal Wednesday to obtain a copy of the multi-million dollar document for publication prior to the meeting were rebuffed by hospital officials.

They said the board's policy is not to release budget information until after the board had acted on it.

Marin General Hospital administrator Ray K. Bollinger said that to balance raising operational costs, the board agreed to increase hospital room rates.

A breakdown of daily rate increases shows: emergency room rates hiked from the current $8.50 to $10; nursery room rates up from $28 to $34; semi-private room rates from $50 to $58; special-care nursery room rates from $33 to $43; semi-private room rates in the coronary unit from $70 to $82; private room rates in the coronary unit from $100 to $112, and intensive care unit rates from $125 to $145.

Besides increases in room rates, Bolinger said, the board also approved hikes in certain hospital services.

Those include an average increase of $10 for child deliveries; $10 for operations, $2 each for X-ray services and radiation therapy, 25 cents for pharmacy use and 93 cents for physical therapy.

Bolinger said the approved increases still keep Marin General's patient costs substantially lower than at other Bay Area hospitals.

The overall budget, which the

Bus Garage Will Mean Employment

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

The Golden Gate Bridge District's $9.3 million bus system, with 300 new jobs, will be based in San Rafael. (See another story, page 3.)

The unanimous decision by district directors put the bus maintenance facility on 10 acres about a quarter mile past the San Rafael Post Office on Highway 17.

The district's fleet of 152 busses is scheduled to begin operation by December.

The bus facility will be on so-called Simms-Dodie Street property owned by Quail Hill Inc., according to the district's attorney, Thomas M. Jenkins. The site has been partly filled with material removed from Quail Hill west of the Northgate Mall.

Bridge district directors, after a 30-minute closed meeting to discuss appraisals of the property, authorized Jenkins to condemn 10 acres. Its price was not disclosed.

Also available from the owners was an option for an additional 15 acres. According to

ROSE GARDEN RITE

Tricia And Ed Exchange Vows

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Tricia Nixon married her "first and only love," Edward Finch Cox, Saturday in a Whitehouse wedding ceremony written by the bride herself.

The blonde and beautiful bride, in a low-cut, sleeveless white gown designed by Priscilla of Boston, went to the altar on the arm of her father, President Nixon.

Her attendants wore long silk organdy dresses of mint green and lilac. The groom, the father of the bride, and the eight groomsmen wore formal cutaway cuts, striped trousers, wing-collar shirts, ascot ties and grey gloves.

Tricia elected to be the first of history's 16 White House brides to say her vows outdoor in the floral splendor of the Rose Garden. She decided at the last minute to go ahead with the outdoor wedding despite possible showers.

Tricia's wedding gown, kept secret until the last minute, featured layers of translucent white silk organdy over a white crepe moulded underslip.

Appliques of rose pattern Alencon lace and embroidered white lilies of the valley beaded with miniature pearls patterned the gown. The sleeveless shaped bodice had an open neckline scalloped with Alencon lace and V'd to the front and back.

The skirting was a flared trumpet styling that flowed to a circular court train.

The bride's headpiece was a sculptured Juliet cap of pearling dimensioned with appliques of rose pattern Alencon lace and embroidered lilies of the valley to match those of the gown. Circlings of silk illusion, strewn with miniature pearls, in finger tip and floor length, cascaded from the sides of the cap.

Tricia wore white silk organdy gauntlets in three-quarters length, appliqued to match the gown. Her shoes were appliqued with lace. They had ankle straps and one and threequarter inch heels.

She carried a small bouquet of white roses, baby's breath, and Lillies of the Valley.

The marriage service, written by the bride herself, was notably brief. But it contained all the vows and promises needed to transform Miss Patricia Nixon, daughter of the President, into Mrs. Edward Finch Cox, wife of a third-year law student at Harvard University.

It was a stately ceremony, right out of Emily Post.

For President and Mrs. Nixon, it was a day of mixed emotions, as wedding days always are for the parents of much

3-Year-Old Boy Drowns In Creek

A 3-year-old boy drowned yesterday while playing on the banks of Corte Madera Creek near the College of Marin in Kentfield.

Kentfield firemen and sheriff's deputies had to comb the dark labyrinth of a covered drainage culvert beneath the college athletic field for an hour before finding the body of Onnie T. Minyard, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Minyard.

Onnie had been visiting the home of his grandmother, Rosalie Victorino, 919 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, Kentfield. He and two cousins, Deanna Victorino, 5, and Deana Victorino, 3, had strolled from the home, crossed the creek at Stadium Way and were playing on the unfenced, rock-lined creek bank near the downstream end of the concrete channel.

The boy fell in at about 3 p.m. The incoming tide swept

'Hymn To Headlands' Is Tomorrow

"Hymn to the Headlands," a concert on Mount Tamalpais at 1 p.m. tomorrow, will feature symphonic, electronic and ancient classical Indian music in an effort to please people of various musical tastes.

Performing will be the Marin Symphony Orchestra, Marin Youth Orchestra, an electronic trio, and Indian instrumentalist Ali Akbar Khan.

The Marin Symphony will open the program with the Overture to Oberon by von Weber and will play the Prokofiev Symphony No. 5 as its major work. Sandor Salgo is the conductor.

Denny Zeitlin, a pioneer in electronic musical devices, will use four keyboards. He will be joined by Mel Graves on bass and George March, percussion.

The youth orchestra, conducted by Hugo Rinaldi, will play music by Chavez, Mozart, Rossini and Hovhaness.

Ali Akbar Khan will close the program with Indian music played on the sarod, a stringed instrument. He will be accompanied by Huessin on the tablas.

The concert is to be a benefit in support of creating a national recreational area in the Golden Gate Headlands.

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

Queen's Birthday

LONDON (UPI)—More than 1,000 guardsmen, wearing brilliant scarlet and glittering gold, slow marched before Queen Elizabeth and millions of her subjects today to recreate a centuries-old ceremony marking the monarch's official birthday.

All the household guard regiments were represented in the annual trooping the color as the queen, their colonel-in-chief, dressed in a scarlet tunic and tricorn hat, rode from Buckingham Palace down The Mail.

Reagan Prediction

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Gov. Ronald Reagan predicts that if a tax reform is not voted by the Legislaturean "you'll see another Proposition 9 on the next ballot —and it will pass."

The governor was refering to an unsuccessful 1968 proposition which would have limited property taxes to one per cent of property value, instead of the present roughly two per cent.

Egyptian Budget

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Egyptian Treasury Minister Abdel Asis Hijazi presented the People's Council a budget proposal of $6.77 billion budget today, including a record defense allocation 11 per cent higher than last year, Cairo Radio said.

The $1.56 billion earmarked for defense represented 23 per cent of the total 1971-72 budget Hijazi outlined before the council, or parliament. It compared with defense allocations of about $1.40 billion for the current fiscal year.

Hajazi had said earlier the budget for the next fiscal year would reflect Egypt's increasing needs for national security and military preparedness.

Posthumous Awards

NEW YORK (UPI)—The late Whitney M. Young Jr. will be awarded posthumous honorary degrees from nine colleges and universities at spring commencements this year, the National Urban League announced Friday.

The league said the schools which have conferred or will confer degrees are Columbia University, the University of Michigan, the University of Denver, Northwestern University, Muskingum College, Bowdoin College, Bradley University, Atlanta University and Hebrew Union College-Jewish Institute of Religion.

Young was executive director of the National Urban League when he died suddenly while visiting Nigeria March 11.

Fall Decision

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Iowa Sen. Harold Hughes still is considering making the race for the Democratic presidential nomination and will make a final decision in October.

An aide to Hughes Friday denied a published report the former Iowa governor was concerned about a faltering campaign. The aide said Hughes admits he is a long shot for the nomination but cited a rise in public "recognition factor" for Hughes from 11 per cent in January to 48 per cent at the present.

"No final decision will be made until October, but the commitment is until October," the aide said.

Probe Into Riot

MEXICO CITY (UPI)—The government began today an investigation of the mysterious "Falcons," a paramilitary organization that broke up Thursday's massive student riot with gunfire and clubs and left at least eight students dead and 45 other persons seriously injured.

The administration of President Luis Echeverria, who ordered the investigation Friday, never has acknowledged the existence of such a network. But Mexican journalists and students said the Falcons are highly trained and well equipped and on the government payroll. The newsmen said they have had other run-ins with the group, but none so violent.

Numerous journalists and students said they saw armed men in civilian clothing weaving throughout the student parade route, beating up people both selectively and at random and shuttling them into police vans while the uniformed police stood by without interfering.

To See Nixon

BONN (UPI). — Chanceller Willy Brandt left today for talks with President Nixon that will coincide with a similar summit meeting of East German and Soviet leaders.

Brandt told reporters at a plane-side news conference he and the American chief executive will review the Berlin question, proposed mutual troop reductions by West and East, the enlarged European Common Market and other topical questions involving the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO).

Soviet Communist Party leader Leonid Brezhnev will be discussing the same or similar matters in East Berlin also next week with Erich Honecker, first secretary of the East German Communist Party, diplomatic sources said.

Standard Routine

DUARTE, Calif. (UPI)—The barrel roll performed by the pilot of a Marine Corps F4 Phantom moments before it collided with an Air West jetliner last Sunday killing 50 persons, was described Friday as more or less standard procedure.

"The Marines say that quite often pilots coming back to El Toro (the Marine Corps air station where the Phantom was based) do a rollover because that is the best way to clear yourself before coming down," according Wo Martin Speiser, chairman of the operations committee of the National Transportation Safety Board.

Car Plunges Into River; Seven Lost

CHESTER, Ill. (UPI)—A car driven by a 30-year-old mother carrying nine children for a swim in the Chester Municipal Pool plunged down a steep hill and into the Mississippi River Friday.

The woman and two children were rescued but seven of the children disappeared beneath the water.

The St. Louis underwater rescue team recovered the bodies of Debbie Canady, 12, and Tammy Clark, 6, inside the car, which was found in about 25 feet of water.

The search for the other five victims was halted for the night, but dragging operations were to resume today in search of the bodies of Becky Clark, 10, Norma Clark, 11, Cindy Clark, 9, Robbin Phillips, 11, and Becky Roberts, 6.

The driver of the car, Mrs. Charles Clark, Chester, and the two children rescued from the river, Donna Phillips, 9, and Tammy Canady, 10, were taken to Memorial Hospital in Chester. Mrs. Clark was listed in critical condition and the two children were in fair condition.

Authorities said the accident occurred as the car was coming down a steep hill at right angles to the river. Police said the car's brakes apparently failed, causing the car to plunge into the water.

Authorities in this small Southern Illinois community said it was believed Mrs. Clark was taking the children to the swimming pool, but decided to take a drive by the river first. There were no known witnesses to the accident, but a store owner said he saw the splash of the car as he ran from the store.

A reporter, standing near the edge of the water following the accident, said he saw a woman he knew with tears in her eyes.

Asked what was the matter, the women responded, "Somebody called me and told me my kids were in that car, and I can tell you I never was so glad in my life when I ran down to the swimming pool and saw those three ornery little brats who looked just like angels."

Havoc From Tanks Fire

MONITOR, W.Va. (UPI)—Four gasoline storage tanks, containing a total of 180,000 gallons of fuel, exploded and burned at an American Oil Co. plant Friday night, killing a company truck driver and destroying a post office and four houses.

The victim, identified as Argus Fitzgerald, was loading a tank truck and had entered the bulk plant to shut a valve when the explosion occurred, police said.

Flames from the fire shot across U.S. 119 and spread over a creek behind the post office.

Only One Year Of Accreditation

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—The state Board of Education has voted to extend its accreditation of the University of California at Santa Barbara for just one year because of disturbances and bank-burnings near the campus.

The boards accreditation committee had recommended the usual five-year accreditation extension for UCSB. But board member Eugene Ragle said Friday it should be cut to two years to put the school "on notice to stop violent protests".

Space Station Team Works Around Clock

MOSCOW (UPI)—The Soviet Union's Salyut space station crew worked round-the-clock shifts today carrying out scientific assignments ranging from medicine to mapmaking.

Tass, the Soviet news agency, said the three cosmonauts had such a heavy schedule of experiments that it was necessary to devise a shift system.

The men, Georgi Dobrovolsky, Vladislav Volkov and Viktor Patsayev, have been in space since they blasted off Sunday aboard Soyuz 11. On Monday they docked with the Salyut station, which went into orbit April 19, and crawled aboard to set up housekeeping.

In previous Soviet spaceflights, Tass said, the cosmonauts had slept during the eight hours each day when their ship was outside the zone of radio communications with mission control.

But aboard the 25-ton Salyut space station "the crowded program of scientific research and technical experiments called for a revision of this schedule and now the cosmonauts take turns to rest," Tass said.

Much of the cosmonauts' work involved detailed medical examinations of each other to determine how prolonged weightlessness affects them.

Tass said they took blood pressure and pulse at regular intervals, determined calcium loss in bones and measured changes in the water-salt balance in bones and muscle tissue.

The measurements were important for finding ways to prevent serious physical ailments caused by weightless flight. Scientists have discovered the prolonged trips in space cause the body to throw off calcium and muscle to deteriorate.

The cosmonauts also performed experiments involving studies of the earth's surface, Tass said, including the plotting of topographical maps and analysis of the atmosphere.

Tass mentioned no specific astronomy chores, but said the cosmonauts carried out tests of various telescope elements to find out which ones will be best for use in space.

The Soviets have said future space stations will be equipped with telescopes to study planets and stars without the distorting effect of the Earth's atmosphere.

'Feud' Is Denied In New York

NEW YORK (UPI)—Mayor John V. Lindsay and Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller "are not engaged in a personal feud," a spokesman for the mayor has asserted.

However, there has been ample evidence in the past week that the historical, personal animosity between the public officials has been gaining in intensity as a result of actions by the recently adjourned 1971 session of the state legislature.

On Wednesday, for instance, Lindsay accused the state government of "raping" the city. The following day, Rockefeller said the mayor was "not responsible for what he's saying" because he was "emotionally upset" by the two-day municipal employes strike earlier in the week.

Also, Rockefeller cajoled an exhausted state legislature to grant him authority to create a commission to investigate the financial practices of New York City.

In all, observers in governmental circles on both city and state levels perceive the latest jousts of the mayor and governor as signs they are continuing a personal battle to determine who is the top Republican in this state.

Russia Campaigning For Arms Cutbacks

MOSCOW (UPI)—The Soviet Union campaigned today for talks on worldwide cutbacks in arms, to include warships on the seven seas and troops in Central Europe.

Leonid I. Brezhnev, general secretary of the Soviet Communist Party established the line of the campaign Friday by offering to bargain with the United States on pulling back the two nations' mighty naval fleets from distant shores.

In a speech before 6,000 Muscovites in the Kremlin Palace of Congresses he specifically mentioned the Mediterranean, where the U.S. 6th Fleet confronts a new and powerful 40-ship Soviet armada.

Senior Western diplomats said the offer, along with other disarmement proposals, constituted the "most sweeping public statement in some time" by a top Soviet leader.

But one diplomat warned "it is a generality, and like a number of generalities we don't know if there is anything to it."

Brezhnev commented on the presence of both Soviet and American warships in the Mediterranean, the Indian Ocean and the Western Pacific.

"We have never thought and do not think now that it is an ideal situation when the navies of great powers sail for long periods at the other end of the world, away from their native coasts," he said. "We are ready to solve this problem, but to make an equal bargain, as they say."

The naval proposal was coupled by Brezhnev with his earlier call for east-west talks on reducing the number of arms and armed forces in Central Europe, where the mass of Warsaw Pact and North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) forces are concentrated.

The Communist Party leader raised the troop reduction issue May 14 in a speech in Tbilisi in the Soviet Republic of Georgia. Friday he carried the offer a step further, declaring talks would include not only Soviet troops, but those of the entire Eastern Bloc as well.

The distinction is important, because the Warsaw Pact nations maintain large armed forces equipped and partly financed by the Soviet Union.

"We are asked the question: Does our proposal concern only foreign armed forces, or does it concern national armed forces as well?

"Our reply is that we are ready to discuss both the first and the second," he said.

Bridge Directors Grant Labor Pact

Golden Gate Bridge District directors, in a sharp break with past labor practices, yesterday reluctantly granted employees the right to collective bargaining.

The concession, required to qualify for federal transit grants, also provided that labor disputes be settled by binding arbitration.

In the past, district labor practices — wages, benefits and working conditions — have been patterned after those prevailing in San Francisco. The new agreement, however, meant the district will deal directly with labor unions.

The unaminous vote, beating a federal deadline by less than one hour, cleared the way for the district to get up to $6.1 million in a federal grant toward its $9.3 million bus system.

The district qualified last week for the grant, but final approval was conditioned on the agreement required by the Department of Labor.

The district's attorney, Thomas M. Jenkins, said he had to telephone word of the board's action by noon yesterday to the department in Washington so it could process necessary paper work in time for the district to get the grant this fiscal year — ending June 30.

The agreement was to assure the Department of Labor that the district's entrance into transit operations would not jeopardize job rights of any affected workers, primarily Greyhound Lines employees. The district's bus system will replace Greyhound in Marin by December.

Jenkins said that the Department of Labor had designated 22 labor unions as being affected by the district's entry into transit operations. "How they're affected, I don't know," he said.

The attorney acknowledged he would have preferred more time to negotiate terms of the agreement with attorneys for the major transit unions, but that the fiscal year left no more time to maneuver.

Other provisions of the agreement bound the district to pay lost wages and other expenses of workers whose jobs were affected by the district. Jenkins said these costs were unlikely since the district bus system will create 300 new jobs, more than Greyhound now has on the Marin service.

The Golden Gate Bridge District Board Also

INSURANCE — Approved a group life, disability and medical policy with Travelers Insurance Co. at an annual cost of $262,956, but referred to district consultants for review a policy with Transit Casualty Co. for bus insurance at an annual cost of $221,900. Warren, McVeigh and Associates of San Francisco were hired as risk management consultants at a maximum annual fee of $7,000. Director Dean N. Meyer of Mill Valley fought unsuccessfully to have both policies referred to the new consultants.

DESIGN — Approved a $3,000 contract with Walter Landor of San Francisco to design interior materials and color schemes for the district's bus fleet. His firm already designed the bus exterior color scheme.

TIRES — Invited bids to lease tires for the bus fleet.

SENATOR — Reported that Sen. Vance Hartke, D-Ill., chairman of the Senate Sub-Committee on Surface Transportation, will tour the bridge facilities on June 19.

WAGES — Conforming to industry contracts signed by the Marine Engineers Beneficial Association and the Inland Boatmen's Union, increased monthly pay scales from $1,123 to $1,200 for operators of the Sausalito ferry, from $800 to $875 for Deckhand I, and from $775 to $850 for Deckhand II.

FERRY — Received report that 20,334 passengers rode the Sausalito ferry in May during commute hours, and that 10,424 rode the feeder bus during commute hours.

Jury Returns Innocent Verdict In Robbery Case

A Marin Superior Court Jury deliberated two hours Thursday before finding Albert Daniel Torres innocent of robbery.

Torres, 20, of no known address, was accused of taking $1.15 from a 17-year-old boy in Sausalito, Feb. 11.

The boy had told Sausalito police that Torres began hitting him as he played pool in Town and Country Billiards, 1417 Bridgeway, and then grabbed him as he started to enter an auto outside the billiard parlor.

The boy said Torres pulled him around the corner of the building and began hitting him again and threatened to beat him unless he gave Torres all his money.

Torres admitted hitting the boy, but denied taking the money.

Rev. Bollinger, who also has served in Japan, was sent by the American Baptist Foreign Mission Societies in 1955 to become the first resident missionary in Okinawa.

Werber Arraigned On Weapons Charge

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Frank N. Werber, 42-year-old Sausalito restaurant owner, was arraigned yesterday before U.S. Magistrate Richard Goldsmith on a charge of being a convicted felon who possessed three guns.

He is to return to federal district court July 8 to enter a plea.

Werber was indicted by a special federal grand jury which has been investigating organized crime in the Bay Area.

James Fitzpatrick, a member of the U.S. attorney general's strike force in San Francisco in connection with the organized crime investigation, would not say why Werber's case was handled by his group rather than the regular attorney' general's office.

The charge stems from a raid on Werber's De Silva Island home in Richardson Bay March 26 when agents seized suspected drugs and narcotics. The agents also took two pistols and a carbine rifle at that time bu did not charge the weapons offense.

The federal agents who arrived at Werber's home Thursday to arrest him on the guns charge said they saw suspected drugs and narcotics again and called local drug agents who arrested Werber again later.

Werber is free on bail in both cases and is to appear in Marin Municipal Court Tuesday in connection with the local drug arrest.

Although the bearded, long-haired former manager of the Kingston Trio has yet to serve any jail time, he was convicted last year of possessing and cultivating pot.

He was sentenced to six months in jail but that case is still being appealed on Werber's contention that he needs marijuana for his religion.

He also faces a trial on July 19 on charges of possessing seven kinds of drugs and narcotics stemming from the March raid.

Corn Blight

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The government has issued a special report warning that corn blight now appears to be spreading from field to field in the southern half of Illinois after originating in "volunteer" corn plants which sprang up from seed accidentally dropped from infected crops last year.

Scientists Plan March On Capital

BOSTON (UPI)—A newly formed group of employed and unemployed scientists and researchers plans a June 21 march on Washington to illustrate the plight of jobless professionals.

Ephrem Weiss, a physicist who is helping organize the march for the Association of Technicians and Professionals (ATP), said Wednesday the demonstration is to "offer information to Congress and the public on the effects of recent cutbacks in terms of individuals, the national economy and the future."

Life In Prison For Setting Fatal Hotel Fire

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Alejandro Figueroa, 45, a laborer, has been sentenced to life in prison for 19 murders which resulted from a fire in an apartment hotel Sept. 23.

Superior Court Judge Paul G. Brackenridge Jr. termed the case "tragic" but said he was satisfied the defendant received a fair trial and that he was the man who set the blaze at the downtown hotel.

Testimony in the jury trial disclosed that Figueroa had been drinking prior to the blaze and had been involved in an argument with a resident of the hotel.

Citizen Of Year Deadline Set

Nominations for Corte Madera's Citizen of the Year Award will be accepted through June 28 by the town's chamber of Commerce.

The award will be presented during the joint Corte Madera-Larkspur Fourth of July celebration.

Candidates must live in Corte Madera and not be a current officer or immediate past president of the chamber.

Additional information may be obtained by telephoning the chamber at 500 Tamalpais Drive.

Californian Is New Head of Canada College

WOODSIDE (UPI) — Dr. James W. Duke, vice president of Ohlone College, Fremont, has been named the new president of Canada College.

Duke, 42, will succeed William H. Goss, who requested to be relieved of the job at the end of the current academic year to return to the faculty as professor of history.

The board of trustees selected Duke from among 100 candidates. His salary was set at $27,000.

The new president of the community college, which has an enrollemnt of 3,500 students, has said students "have no special rights because they are students, but they should not be handcuffed because they are students.

New Postmasters Named In Marin

The Postal Service yesterday announced the appointment of five postmasters in Marin County.

They are Stephen Popovich, Larkspur; Mario H. Pompei Jr., Belvedere-Tiburon; Glen M. Kerch, Nicasio; Leona C. Easley, San Quentin, and Ruth L. Mallon, Dillon Beach.

Popovich, 56, formerly assistant Larkspur postmaster, succeeds Llewellyn Crandall who retired.

Popovich, of 15 Hillcrest Avenue, has a wife, Jeanette, and four children. He served in the Army from 1940-66 and entered the postal service in 1967. He is a native of Brooklyn, N.Y.

Pompei, 43, succeeds Theodore J. Lehman, who also retired.

Pompei, who entered the postal service in 1949, had been assistant postmaster. He served in the Army from 1946-48. Pompei, a native of San Francisco, lives at 86 Granada Drive, Corte Madera. He has a wife, Yolanda; three daughters and two sons.

Kerch, former operator of Rancho Nicasio, replaces Nick Kobseff, who moved to McCloud, Siskiyou County, in 1968.

Kerch, 54, a native of Mill Valley, entered the postal service last year. He has a wife, Hazel, and two sons. Kerch served in the Navy from 1944-46.

Mrs. Easley, 54, formerly distribution window clerk at San Quentin, succeeds Valatet Eliason of San Rafael, who retired.

Mrs. Easley, of Napa, entered the postal service in 1949. She is a native of Glenburn, N.D.

Mrs. Mallon of Petaluma, named postmaster at Dillon Beach, replaces Gibbs H. Lawson, who died in 1968.

Mrs. Mallon, who has been in the postal service since 1944, was a distribution clerk in San Rafael, her native city. She has three children.

RAID

copper wire theft and interference in attempts to fix navigational aids.

Three men were arrested Friday on the mainland on charges of theft in the stealing of $600 worth of copper wire from Alcatraz. Warrants were issued for eight other "John Does."

Browning said that during a previous attempt to investigate the theft, a marshal was "shoved and threatened by some of the occupants" after the Indians had agreed they wouldn't interfere with him.

"Removal of the illegal inhabitants had (also) become an urgent necessity since the Coast Guard was prohibited from restoring inoperative navigational aids with threats of violence," the U.S. attorney said.

Trudell told a news conference that the orders for the raid had to come from Nixon. He said the government had broken its word because federal officials promised no action would be taken during negotiations over the deed to the island in which he was participating. He said five Indians had been negotiating with Browning.

Early today, armed police came to Pier 40, from which supplies had gone to Alcatraz since the invasion. Indian spokesman Pierre Thundercloud said records of those who had helped the Indians were thrown into the water as the police approached.

No arrests were made and nothing was seized, but Thundercloud asserted that the police used the pretense that they were "looking for someone" to make a thorough search of the premises. Thundercloud believed they were looking for weapons, but none were found.

Since the Indian invasion in 1969, the Interior Department has obtained title to the island and announced plans to make it into a national monument.

The Indians rejected the plans, saying they wanted the island themselves for a cultural center and university.

The three men arrested in the copper thefts were John D. Halloran, Frank J. Robbins and Raymond E. Cox. They were held in lieu of $1,000 bond following arraignment before a U.S. magistrate.

BOY

him into the covered, concrete box lateral drain that runs under the athletic field toward Kent Avenue. The 5-year-old cousin, after trying but failing to pull the child out of the water, ran home to tell her grandmother.

Sheriff's deputies and firemen used a boat in the cavernous drain, and opened manhole covers in the field to locate the body. They found it 250 yards from the spot where the boy fell into the stream, deputies reported.

The boy had been visiting his grandmother while the parents, formerly of San Rafael, were completing purchase of a home in Petaluma. The father is an employee of the Industrial Building Maintenance Co. of San Rafael.

In addition to his parents and grandmother, the youngster is survived by three bothers, Tim Minyard, 13; David Minyard, 7 and Jim Swann, 10.

Graveside service will be held at 10:30 a.m. Monday at Mount Olivet Cemetery, San Rafael. Harry M. Williams Mortuary, San Rafael, is in charge of arrangements.

district oficials, the site could handle up to 195 buses and may be served by a future new interchange with Highways 17 and 101. The attorney also was authorized to seek an option on the Hutchinson Quarry property in Larkspur for a ferry terminal. bthe Larkspur site, reportedly to cost $1.5 million, was selected in April, as reported by the Independent-Journal.

Final action on the bus maintenance facility site had been delayed since April pending qualification for a federal grant up to $6.1 million for the bus system. That approval came last week.

Action on the ferry terminal had been delayed pending word from the federal government that taking an option on it would not exclude its cost from a federal grant sought toward the ferry system.

The district's special counsel, Richard J. Smart of San Francisco, reported yesterday that tha government had agreed an option would not disqualify the terminal for a possible grant.

Such grants generally cover only capital expenses for which funds have not been expended.

Jenkins said he also will negotiate with the quarry owners on the length and price of the option.

The ferry and bus sites were selected from several competing sites in Corte Madera, Larkspur and San Rafael.

The Simms-Dodie Street property will require 1.5 additional feet of fill

Directors, at the recommendation of District Engineer Robert E. Shields, invited two firms to submit proposals for engineering, planning and architectural work on the bus maintenance facility. They were Wagstaff and McDonald, San Anselmo architectural firm, and Sverdrup and Parcel and Associates, San Francisco planning and engineering firm.

RATES

rate hikes will balance, show next year's expenses (this year's in parenthesis) at:

Salaries and wages, $6,474,120 ($5,099,736); professional fees, $1,200,989 ($968,304); supplies, $1,891,644 ($1,614,312); depreciation, $277,214 ($258,600); employee benefits, $809,265 ($520,976); miscellaneous, $70,000 ($60,000); insurance and bonding, $96,000 ($60,000) and reimbursable expenses $1,153,925 ($54,000).

In related action, the board approved a portion of its capital outlay budget which will require a tax rate of about 1.5 cents per $100 assessed valuation.

Bolinger said the tax rate will raise $80,000 for additional engineering, filling and soils work on a section of land scheduled to be deeded the county for realignment of Bon Air Road.

TRICIA

loved daughters. They were proud that Tricia had chosen such a tall, handsome and well-born young man. They were saddened by the knowledge that, with both daughters married, they'll henceforth live alone in the isolated and lonely splendor of the White House.

The petite blonde bride, who demonstrated her independence by waiting until she was 25 to marry "my one and only love," composed her own marriage service, adapting bits from such diverse sources as the Episcopal Book of Common Prayer and Khalil Gibran's "The Prophet."

Dr. Edward G. Latch, chaplain of the House of Representatives and former pastor of Washington's Metropolitan Memorial Methodist Church where Tricia worshipped as a young girl, was the only officiating clergyman.

His opening address to the 400 guests —composed about equally of close friends and people too important to be left out — made an oblique bow to Tricia's Quaker ancestors by substituting "Dear friends" for the traditional salutation, "Dearly beloved."

Dr. Latch, a white-haired gentleman of fatherly mien, cautioned the bride and groom that marriage will inevitably bring sadnesses as well as pleasures, failures as well as successes.

"And so, unaware of what definitely is before you, you accept one another. To love is to appreciate and cherish our beloved as a unique person, deep, extraordinary, exceptional. It is to visualize him or her as an equal, yet complementing individual.

"Love each other, but do not make a bond of your love. Stand together but not too near together just as the pillars of a temple stand apart yet stand together."

Then came the ancient but ever-new question:

"Who giveth Patricia to be married to Edward?"

That was President Nixon's cue to deliver his one line speech, surrendering his cherished elder daughter to the care of Eddie Cox.

The vows exchanged in the double-ring ceremony were a modern-language adaptation of the 400-year-old marriage service found in the Book of Common Prayer which Eddie, an Episcopalian, has known since childhood. Edward took Patricia, and Patricia took Edward, "To have and to hold, to honor and to comfort, in sickness and in health, in sorrow and in joy, to love and to cherish from this day forth."

The original language of the Episcopal Prayer Book makes the pledge binding "until death to us part," but Tricia chose to substitute "from this day forth." However, she included in Dr. Latch's closing prayer a clear indication that she and Eddie were entering upon what they regarded as a lifelong union.

Tricia's younger but already-married sister, Julie Eisenhower, 22, was matron of honor. Eddie's sister, Mary Ann Cox, 25, was maid of honor. Tricia's cousins Amy Nixon, 13 and Beth Nixon, 11, were junior bridesmaids.

Attending Eddie as best man was his brother Howard Ellis Cox Jr., a 27-year-old Army captain stationed at the Pentagon. The eight groomsmen were schoolmates of Eddie or mutual friends of the couple.

The reception in the White House was highlighted by the cutting of an enormous six-tiered cake, nearly seven feet in height, whose ingredients had become the subject of brisk national controversy among food experts when the recipe was made public last week. Among the other refreshments offered to the guests were Champagne (both pink and white types), tiny brioches stuffed with chicken and mushroom, cheese fondue, and fried shrimp in coconut.

Breaking with custom, Tricia declined to change into a going-away outfit, and departed in her wedding gown for their honeymoon in a "very private place" whose location has been carefully kept secret.

lived in Chicago but he believed he was "just destined to go to North Vietnam."

The stewardess described him as "a very nervous type of person" but said she was impressed that "he really seemed concerned for his family." Police in Chicago said he had no criminal record.

About 30 minutes into the two-hour flight, the hijacker told Miss Culver he wanted to "check out the back of the plane."

Zito, who had been watching the gunman through a one-way mirror in the door of the flight cabin, went into action.

"I took two shots at him in the rear of the plane," Zito said. "He fell behind a seat."

Unable to see the hijacker, Zito handed his gun to First Officer Ronald J. Dupuis, 31, of Sparta, N.J., who shot twice more.

The hijacker fired three shots in return. One of them, Dupuis said, "missed me by two inches." The bullet passed through a crewman's hat on the cabin hatrack. The men and Miss Culver stayed crouched behind seats.

When the plane touched down at Kennedy at 2:30 a.m., the hijacker, bleeding from a wound, shouted, "I'm hit. I've had enough. I'm coming down."

On the hijacker's orders, Miss Culver, Elder, Dupuis, Zito and Flight Engineer Don E. Welshimer of St. James, N.Y., slid down an emergency escape chute, leaving him alone in the plane.

Spotting an FBI agent who had climbed up the side of the aircraft, the hijacker fired but missed him. The agent fired back, hitting the hijacker in the shoulder, the FBI said.

White was arrested and taken to Queens General Hospital where he was reported in fair condition.

White, who reportedly is married and has two children, lived until a week ago in an apartment house on Chicago's Lake Shore Drive.

OBITUARIES

Virginia Yopes Dies At 59

Mrs. Virginia Yopes, 59, past president of the Greenbrae Oaks Sunny Hills Guild, died yesterday at a local hospital after a short illness.

Mrs. Yopes, of 295 Vista Grande, Greenbrae, was the wife of Charles R. Yopes, retired manager of the Firestone agency in San Francisco.

Mrs. Yopes was a member of the Marin Art and Garden Center and Sunny Hills Bargain Box Council. She was a native of Kansas City, Mo., and had lived in Marin for 17 years.

Surviving, besides her husband, are a sister, Katherine Gibbs of San Rafael, and a brother, Jack Nicholson of Camarillo, Ventura County.

Funeral will be held at 4 p.m. Monday at the Chapel of the Hills, San Anselmo. Inurnment will be private.

MRS. PINCKNEY

Graveside service for Addie May Pinckney, 58, a 30-year resident of Novato, will be held at Mount Tamalpais Cemetery, San Rafael, at 11 a.m. Monday.

Mrs. Pinckney died Thursday, apparently of natural causes, at 125 Kadon Drive, Novato, where she had been minding the house. She lived at 7370 Redwood Highway.

She and her husband, Jack C. Pinckney of Middleton, Lake County, formerly operated a horse boarding stable, Jack's Horse Ranch in Novato.

She was a member of the NovaMarin Grandmothers Club and Novato Senior Citizens. She was a native of San Francisco.

Surviving, besides her husband, are two sons, Gordon W. and Jack C. Pinckney Jr., both of Novato; two daughters, Patricia Glover of Petaluma and Sandra Jane Wagner of Sonoma; a brother, Frank Kuch of Union City, and 14 grandchildren.

Friends may call at the Redwood Chapel Funeral Home, Novato, after noon tomorrow.

MRS. DULEY

Blanche Duley of San Anselmo, a 40-year resident of that city and a member of the Fairfax Women's Club, died today in a local hospital after a long illness. She was 81.

Mrs. Duley, of 48 Ross Avenue, was the widow of Frank Duley, a bookkeeper, who died in 1953.

Born in Kentucky, Mrs. Duley lived in Napa before moving to Marin.

Survivors are two daughters, Hattie M. Lachenauer of San Anselmo and Muriel Williams of Whidby Island, Wash.; two grandchildren and seven great-grandchildren.

Mass of the Resurrection will be offered at 9:30 a.m. Tuesday at St. Anselm's Church, San Anselmo, with burial in Toloucay Cemetery, Napa. Rosary will be recited at 8 p.m. Monday at Keaton's Mortuary, San Rafael. Memorial contributions to the Cancer or American Heart funds are preferred by the family.

MRS. BLUMENTHAL

Emma Loewy Blumenthal, 69, retired associate director of the San Francisco Jewish Community Center, died yesterday at a San Francisco hospital after a two-month illness.

Mrs. Blumenthal was the mother of Marcia Kupfer of San Rafael.

She was the widow of Louis H. Blumenthal, who was director of the center and its predecessor, the Young Men's Hebrew Association, for 35 years until his death in 1959.

Mrs. Blumenthal organized the center's summer day camp program and directed it until her retirement in 1963. She was a native of San Francisco.

Surviving, besides her daughter, are three grandchildren, all of San Rafael.

Service will be at 11 a.m. tomorrow at Sinai Memorial Chapel, San Francisco.

The family prefers contributions to the Emma L. Blumenthal Memorial Fund, in care of the Jewish Community Center or the Golden Gate Regional Center in care of the Aid Retarded Children Inc., 1362 Ninth Avenue, San Francisco.

BETTY DUFFY

Betty L. Duffy, 44, of 414 Eighth Street, Petaluma, died yesterday at a local hospital where she was taken after collapsing at work.

Mrs. Duffy was found unconscious in a rest room at the E. D. Bullard Co. in Sausalito, where she had been employed as an assembly worker since October.

Deputy County Coroner Bill J. Thomas attributed death to natural causes.

A native of Kingsburg, Fresno County, Mrs. Duffy had lived in Petaluma 27 years. She was a member of the Eagles Auxiliary of Petaluma and the Marin County Machinists Union.

Surviving are two sons, Calvin and Richard Duffy; two daughters, Calista and Betty Duffy; her mother, Helen Hayes, all of Petaluma; a sister, Erlene LaMar of Richmond, and three brothers, Harold of Portland, Ore., and George and Bob Hayes of Petaluma.

Funeral will be at 2 p.m. Tuesday at the Parent Funeral Chapel in Petaluma. Burial will be in Cypress Hill Memorial Park, Petaluma. Contributions to the Heart Fund are preferred.

UNUSABLE NOW — Thomas Hanley removes from his closet uniforms he used to wear as a deputy sheriff at the Civic Center. Hanley resigned last week rather than allow his superiors to read his notebook, which contained personal reflections as well as work data.

OWN USE ONLY

Deputy Resigns, Won't Show Book

A 29-year-old deputy sheriff at the Marin County Civic Center has turned in his badge because he considers his notebook too personal to be examined by his superiors.

Thomas A. Hanley, a Phi Beta Kappa graduate in social anthropology, resigned his post last week after refusing to let Lt. Ronald A. Retana examine his notebook.

The notebook, used to write down names, addresses and other information following arrests and accidents, also contained personal thoughts and reflections, Hanley said. He did not describe the nature of the private material.

"I understand the reasons behind the inspection and I agreed that the parts of the notebook pertaining to my job could be inspected.

"But I feel it would be an invasion of my privacy to allow someone to read the rest," he declared flatly.

Hanley, who lives in Santa Venetia, had worked as a deputy sheriff since November. He is a graduate of the University of California at Berkeley.

He heaped praise upon Retana for the work he is doing as head of the security force at the Civic Center, but he said he resigned because of what he calls "a point of principle between gentlemen."

He described the reason behind the notebook inspection as one of security.

"If I were fatally wounded on the job, then anything I would have on my person could possibly be used in litigation — and that includes my notebook.

From his (Retana's) point of view, it would be best if the department knew beforehand what type of security information might be contained in that book," Hanley explained.

"Retana doesn't make decisions lightly — he's not a power freak," the former deputy said. "So he explained his views and I explained mine. Neither one of us would budge although we understood each other's reasons."

Hanley said his notebook was never opened by Retana. His interest was in the department. Once I resigned he had no further need to look into it," he said.

Retana, who said he couldn't comment on Hanley's resignation, said, "he did a good job."

Capt. Harvey E. Teague added, "We never had any problems with him (Hanley) — or complaints."

Hanley who also has a real estate license said he was not sure what type of work he would look for.

"I still don't know what I want to do when I grow up," he joked. He said he was considering state rehabilitation counseling or some type of in-depth media work.

80 Cattle Romp In Las Vegas

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI)—A bit of the old West —80 head of cattle to be exact —grazed on the Dunes Hotel golf course and wandered about the Caesars Palace parking lot Thursday.

Sheriff's deputies on foot and in patrol cars eventually herded them into a temporary corral by waving their arms, making cowboy sounds and flashing red lights.

The cattle got loose after a flatbed truck carrying them from California to Utah lost a wheel and overturned after skidding onto a soft shoulder of Interstate 15.

High School Grads Get Scholarships

Three Marin County high school students have been awarded scholarships by the Heald College of Business in San Francisco.

They are Carolyn M. Trisciuzzi, a Sir Francis Drake High School senior who lives at 820 Reichbert Avenue, Novato; Dennis A. Reetz, 123 West Kelly at Hamilton Air Force Base, a Novato High School student; and Ann Marie Hamilton, 376 Via Hidalgo, Greenbrae, who attends Redwood High School.

Each will each receive $1,500 from Heald College.

West Marin Plan To Be Scrutinized

A proposal to scrap the West Marin General Plan, which includes a projected area density of 1.15 units per acre, will be presented to the Marin County Planning Commission Monday.

The commission will meet at 9 a.m. on the third floor of the Civic Center.

County Planning Director Werner Von Gundell, who will urge that a plan be written, has said density in the current plan is too high, schools and other buildings are planned along the San Andreas fault and not enough protection is provided for Tomales Bay.

Other items on the commission agenda include:

SWIG — Marin Community Services district will oppose an application by San Francisco hotel owner Melvin Swig for a four-lot split of 21 acres near Mount Shasta Drive and Lucas Valley Road.

INDUSTRIAL PARK — William Wright Jr. will submit a master plan for his 13-acre industrial park north of Airport Road at Gnoss Field.

APARTMENTS — Sea-Port Development Co. of Auburn, Wash., wants to build 330 apartment units on 24 acres of Ridge area south of the Strawberry Shopping Cener.

CAPITAL IMPROVEMENTS — Will discuss the county administrator's proposals for road and building construction for the next five years.

Innocent Plea Entered In Stabbing Case

I-J Special Report

OAKLAND — An innocent plea was entered yesterday for Christopher Nowsar, 21, accused of stabbing to death an Air Force recruiting sergeant from Novato.

The plea was entered in Alameda County Superior Court after the defendent apparently refused to enter a plea.

A trial date will be set Thursday for Cowsar, who was arrested April 30 when he attacked Sgt. Rogers S. Mobley Sr., 32, of 1088 San Jose Boulevard, at the Berkeley recruiting office.

Mobley suffered fatal stab wounds and Cowsar was seized with a knife in his hand by several persons in the building.

Nutritional Value In Cereals 'Better'

WASHINGTON (UPI) --Last July ronsumer advocate Robert B. Choate created a stir when he charged many popular breakfast cereals were virtually worthless in nutritional value.

Friday, Choate went before a House Small Business Subcommittee to testify the situation since has improved but that many cereals still contain excessive sugar that threatens dental health.

Since he made his charges last year, Choate said, many of the cereals had been fortified with vitamins.

"It is unfortunate, however, that a number of these newly fortified cereals are so sweet that sugar is their primary ingredient," Choate said.

He said some manufacturers perhaps should warn users of their breakfast foods to brush and rinse their teeth after eating to help prevent cavities.

An engineer and occasional nutritional consultant to the government, Choate testified as chairman of the Council on Children, Media and Merchandising, a group which attempts to protect children against alleged excesses in television commercials.

Choate said a child who watches television even moderately sees at least 5,000 food commercials a year. He said most of them promote snacks, sweets, soft drinks and other foods low in nutritional value. Choate gave the subcommittee his evaluation of cereals categorized "according to the problems they pose to ethical advertisers."

In Group One, Choate placed cereals he said could make "respectable nutritional claims" because they contained 21 per cent to 33 per cent of the minimum daily requirement for vitamins A and D, along with 33 per cent of the minimum requirement for Vitamin C, thiamine, niacin and riboflavin, plus iron supplement.

He listed them as Kellogg's Sugar Frosted Flakes, Puffa Puffa Rice, Cocoa Krispies, Sugar Pops, Special K, Froot Loops, Sugar Smacks and Apple Jacks; General Foods' Fortified Oat Flakes, Super Sugar Crisps, and General Mills' County Chocula and Franken Berry.

In Group Two, Choate placed newly fortified cereals "so sweet that sugar is their primary ingredient." He said the group included some he had listed as able to make respectable nutritional claims.

Group Two included General Mills' Kaboom; Quaker King Vitamin; Kellogg's Froot Loops, Sugar Smacks, Apple Jacks; General Foods' Super Sugar Crisps; General Mills' Count Chocula, Franken Berry and Frosty-O's.

Choate said he found Frosty-O's was low in vitamin fortification, while Kaboom and King Vitamin contained so high a dosage of vitamins it might be prudent for the industry to require a warning of possible excessive fortification.

Manila City Plan

MANILA (UPI)—A study commission has recommended that the Greater Manila area — composed of four cities and five neighboring towns —cooperate in joint projects such as a metropolitan transport system, electricity and water resources to effectively serve its combined 3 million population. The study said "a hodgepodge of local planning units in each local government will not do."

MR. AND MRS. JOHN KOWSKI
To live in Kentfield after wedding trip

John Kowski And Susan Cichy Marry

Susan Cichy of Corte Madera became the bride of John Kowski of Sausalito in a June 5 ceremony at Star of the Sea Church in Sausalito.

Matron of honor for her sister was Mrs. Karen Van Pelt of Daly City, and their sister Cynthia Cichy of Corte Madera was a bridesmaid. The bridegroom's sister, Vicki Kowski of Sausalito, was also a bridesmaid.

George Kowski Jr. of Sausalito performed best man duties for his brother, and the ushers were Michael Terry of Corte Madera and Kim Cichy, of Corte Madera, the bride's brother.

The couple greeted guests afterward at a reception at the Sausalito Woman's Club.

They will live in Kentfield after a wedding trip to Southern California.

Susan, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William F. Cichy of Corte Madera, was graduated from Redwood High School and is employed with Sierra National Bank in Mill Valley.

Mr. and Mrs. George Kowski of Sausalito are parents of the bridegroom. John was graduated from Redwood High School, attended the College of Marin and Golden Gate College, and is employed with Hiram Walker and Sons in Burlingame.

ON THE AGENDA

Court St. Raphael Will Install New Slate Of Officers Tuesday

Officers to serve for two years will be installed Tuesday in a ceremony at the 8:30 p.m. meeting of Court St. Raphael 1406, Catholic Daughters of America, in the auditorium of St. Raphael's Church in San Rafael.

Being installed are Mmes. William Webb, regent; Andrew Medvic, first vice regent; Charles Wettstein, second vice regent; Joseph Nevi, financial secretary; Irving Hobbs, corresponding secretary; Karry Fitch, treasurer; Mike Cummesky, monitor; Elmer Augustine, lecturer; and A.J. Matkovich, organist.

Trustees are Mmes. Chris Muzinich, six-year term; Henry Giambastiani, four-year term; and Andrew Schweighofer, two-year term.

Mrs. Henry Alvernaz, district deputy, will preside at the ceremony. She is a member of Court Our Lady of the Miracle in Novato. Mrs. Margaret Schwager will serve as proxy for the officers, Mrs. Andrew Schweighofer and Maria Villarreal will be flag bearers.

MARIN COUNTY Retired Officers Wives Club members will install new officers at a luncheon Wednesday at 12:30 p.m. at the Presidio Golf Course clubhouse in the Presidio of San Francisco.

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

Teen-Ager From Split Family Divided Over Who To Live With

DEAR HELEN:

I'm a 14-year-old girl with two sets of parents. My sister and brother live with my mother and I live with my father and a step-mother who is weird. She doesn't want me because she and Dad have a family of their own. One minute she is nice and the next crabby. She thinks I don't love her.

My father pries into my social life and wants me to be a little angel, which no kid is nowadays.

I could go and live with my mother, but I can't get over her walking out on us like she did. Besides, she doesn't understand me either.

I guess I just don't like any of my family well enough to live with them, and I'm awfully mixed up. My mother would treat me the exact opposite from my dad, but maybe I don't want THAT much freedom either.

Which? — D.P.

DEAR D.:

Why don't you give yourself six months to decide? Meanwhile, stop seeing all the defects and try a little real friendship on your dad and step-mother. The results might surprise you. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

I'm a normal teenager. I dig boys, music, my guitar, etc. Also peace. But I don't dig all these four-letter words the kids use. What good does it do to shout obscenities at a speaker just because you don't agree with him? Or write ugly stuff on placards, or march along shouting words that just make the older generation mad?

That's a dumb way to conduct a "protest." Don't you think? — AGAINST BAG LANGUAGE

DEAR AGAINST:

Yes, I think! Wish the "protesters" would agree with us! — H.

DEAR HELEN:

I just started dating this boy and I like him a lot. But there's a girl who won't stop trying.

He's only 18, and she is 22. He went around with her for about six months, thinking it was big stuff, seeing an older woman, but now she says she is going to get him back, no matter what.

Do I have a chance against this "experienced" girl? I mean, she's loose, and at 16, I don't think this is for me just yet. — DOTTY

DEAR DOTTY:

Perhaps this boy has had quite enough of "experienced" women. The only way you'll know for sure is by "talking it out," telling him where you stand, and letting him choose between a demanding female and a fun (without games) teen. I think you'll win! — H.

This column is dedicated to family living, so if you're having kid trouble or just plain trouble, let Helen help YOU. She will also welcome your own amusing experiences. Address Helen Bottel in care of the Independent-Journal.

Mrs. Lyman Forecasts Greater Sex Equality

HILLSBOROUGH (BW) — Young women today can look forward to the time when they won't be competing in "a man's world" but working together with men to help each individual's potential, Mrs. Richard W. Lyman told the graduating class at Crystal Springs School for Girls here yesterday.

Mrs. Lyman, wife of the president of Stanford, said "I'm sure we'll see increasing flexibility in the timing of educational experience.

"WOMEN AND men will be able to change their occupational focus in the course of a lifetime.

"They will have to be able to move in and out of educational opportunities at various age levels."

She added, "Don't be afraid to be different. But stretch your minds and hearts to understand how it looks from the other person's point of view. You will be enriched just trying. Tolerance of individual or cultural or age difference is not easy or necessarily comfortable, but it healthy and constructive."

NOTING THE past stigma attached to single women, Mrs. Lyman said, "our hope for tolerance for individual variation should make allowance for those men and women who have no desire to be married.

"But don't be afraid to be married."

In a light social commentary, she observed, "in the present context of concern for population control, my four children are socially unacceptable.

"I know some of you are in the same boat with them, but it may be worth reminding you that both you and they were socially acceptable at the time they were born."

SHE COUNSELED the young graduates not to be "in too much of a hurry. Use the exuberance and vitality of your youth to try many things. And don't be too discouraged when the first experiments don't seem to work.

"There is a very important learning process in failure, and most especially in seeing failure conquered."

Proxmire Says He And Wife Have Separated

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., said today he and his wife have separated.

"By mutual consent, my wife and I will be living apart for a time. We are not planning a divorce. There will be no further statement by either of us," Proxmire said in a brief release sent to the Senate press gallery.

Proxmire's first marriage, to Elsie Rockefeller, a great grand niece of John D. Rockefeller, ended in divorce in 1955.

Later that year, he married Mrs. Ellen Hodges Sewall, who was serving as executive secretary of the Wisconsin Democratic organization.

Proxmire, 55, has been mentioned as a possible candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination next year.

SEW SIMPLE

Key Details For Swimming Suits

By EUNICE FARMER

I shall try to answer many of your letters concerning making stretch swim wear by incorporating most of the important details. Please clip this column for future reference; it probably won't be repeated this summer. These instructions apply to a bikini, two piece or one piece.

If your suit is to be made of stretch fabric, be sure it is a Helenca (two way stretch) nylon. It must also be chemically treated for chlorine. This would also apply to the elastic used. Thread could either be 100 per cent polyester or 100 per cent nylon. A ballpoint needle is recommended for your sewing machine.

MOST PATTERNS in the pattern catalogs are designed for fabric suits unless otherwise stated — these would not fit properly in knits. The "Sew, Knit 'n Stretch" swim patterns are very dependable, both for instructions and fit. We have found through experience that it is better not to use the stretch stitch on your sewing machine for stitching swim wear. It is apt to damage the fabric. Simply use a regular stitch, however, be sure to stretch your fabric in front and back of the needle as you are stitching. This will give you the proper "stretch and give" needed.

There are bra-cups available for swim wear. However, some women prefer a smaller, softer bra cup. These can easily be made by cutting a circle out of Pellon polyester fleece. Cut several small "V's" out of the outer edge of the circle, butt the cut edges together and zigzag together. The depth and number of cuts will determine the size and shape of the cup. The more cuts in the circle, the more shape you will end up with. For a little extra padding, you could make one circle slightly smaller than the other and tack the two together before applying to your bra top.

Most knit swimsuits will have a partial lining at least. This should also be a stretch fabric so the two layers of fabric will be compatible. Swimsuits are usually priced between $15 and $35, they can be made for a fraction of this. The best part of all is that they take very little time and are guaranteed to be individual. Please let me know if you have any other questions that I haven't answered and I shall try to find space for another little lesson.

TAILOR TRIX WINNER

Mrs. B. Mahoney, Louisville, Ky., is this week's Tailor Trix pressing board winner for her sewing suggestion.

"If you have trouble threading your machine needle, you'll find this little tip a time and temper saver. When changing thread on your machine, just clip the thread at the spool. Tie the next thread on the clipped thread and then pull gently through the needle and you're all set again."

DEAR EUNICE FARMER,

My 13-year-old daughter will soon be taking sewing lessons for the summer, and I am wondering if you would be good enough to give us some advice to start her on the way to a happy experience. I can't sew a stitch and blame it on a poor beginning when I was her age. I never did get the "sewing bug" again.

MRS. L.W.

DEAR MRS. L. W.:

I will stick my neck out and give a few words of advice based on the experiences of my own three daughters as well as the hundreds of teens I have started on the road of happy sewing (I hope).

First, and most important, please mothers, don't interfere. It is important to choose a qualified school with experienced teachers. If you don't agree with the methods they are taught, keep it to yourself until after her lessons are over. There is always more than one way to do most anything.

Encourage her all you can by giving her whatever you think you can afford for her first project, and then keep out of the picture. She is the one who has to work on it, and later wear it, let it be her choice, not yours. I have overheard many mothers say "Don't buy good fabric, you'll probably ruin it anyway!" What a poor start for anyone. It would be most unusual for a mother and daughter to agree completely on anything. After all, there is at least 20 years difference in age and there would be something wrong if there wasn't a difference of opionion. A beginner doesn't know enough about sewing to work on a piece of cheap fabric. Be sure her fabric has body, isn't bonded, and doesn't require matching a plaid or pattern. All of this will come later.

Don't expect miracles. Try to look back when you began to sew. If the first garment isn't absolutely perfect and she learns to love sewing, isn't that more important than ripping so many times that she is completely discouraged? Perfection comes with practice and although I wouldn't approve of a sloppy job, I would let a few things slip by. Call attention to it and expect better results with their second garment.

I had a very successful plan that worked beautifully with my girls, one of whom is taking after her mother and has her own business and school. Since children have a way of not wanting to finish anything they start, I would let my girls choose anything they wanted to make, price was hardly an object since they initially paid for it from their own money. The day the garment was completed and worn, I was more than happy to make a full refund. Try it, I think it will work for you, too.

Last of all, we all need ego builders. This can be just that for your daughter. Be sure to praise her on her work, her choice of pattern, fabric, and the way she looks in it. She may save you thousands of dollars ordinarily spent on clothing before she gets out of college. (I'll welcome any letters you wish to send me on your experiences.)

Twenty questions most frequently asked about sewing are answered by Eunice Farmer in her booklet "Twenty Questions." To obtain your copy send 25 cents and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for it to SEW SIMPLE in care of the Independent-Journal.

Greenslades Tell Engagement Of Their Daughter

Dr. and Mrs. Charles Greenslade of Petaluma have announced the engagement of their daughter Rosane Marcelle Greenslade of San Anselmo to Charles Andrew Adams of San Francisco.

Rosane is the sister of Roxane G. Greenslade of Petaluma and Brent C. Greenslade of Kauai, Hawaii. Mrs. Charles Greenslade of Santa Rosa is her grandmother. She was graduated from Montgomery High School in Santa Rosa and attended College of Marin. The future bride is employed by Pacific Telephone Company in San Francisco.

Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Sigwart of Zephyr Cove, Nev., are Charles' parents. He was graduated from South Tahoe High School and attended Santa Rosa Junior College. Charles is employed by Donovan Construction Company in San Francisco.

An Aug. 1 wedding is planned.

FIRING FLASHES IN THE NIGHT

Pistol practice in the dark brings a strange lighting effect at the San Rafael police pistol range. The firing last night was part of exercise being held for all Marin law enforcement agencies this month. Among the officers on the range last night was San Rafael police Sgt. Phillip D. Green (foreground), whose pistol spurts fire as he triggers a round at a silhouette target. (Independent-Journal photo by Alfred Arn)

A Rumble Over Quake Area Aid

SAN FERNANDO (UPI)—A Senate subcommittee investigating the government's post-earthquake aid was told Friday that some private firms had stopped issuing quake insurance until the aftershocks stilled.

"How long do people have to wait in the San Fernando Valley?" asked Sen. John Tunney, D-Calif.

"I don't know," replied a top official for the American Insurance Association's western region.

State Sen. Alfred E. Alquist appeared before the Senate Public Works Committee hearing during Friday's second meeting and sharply criticized Gov. Reagan's role in aiding homeowners after the Feb. 9 earthquake.

Reagan, he said, "has exhibited total lack of leadership in the area of earthquake safety and disaster preparedness.

"Even worse," he added. "the governor has consistently tried to block efforts of the legislature to develop a sane and sensible program to reduce earthquake hazards."

A major concern of the subcommittee is the tide of complaints by San Fernando Valley homeowners that they could not buy earthquake insurance in the temblor-prone region.

Today's final session in the three-day hearing was devoted to testimony from valley homeowners, speaking at the Santa Rosa Catholic Church.

The committee, headed by Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., was told that some private insurance firms had pulled out of the earthquake protection business until aftershocks ended from the disasterous quake.

Cal Tech seismology scientists have previously reported that it's not uncommon for such earth tremors to continue one to two years after a quake of such magnitude as Feb. 9. The state's chief deputy insurance commission defended the private insurance industry and told the subcommittee hearing the federal government doesn't have to take over the task.

Commissioner Lawrence C. Baker Jr., testified, "I don't think that a federal program is necessary when it comes to earthquake insurance for dwellings."

He said homeowners could buy such protection at a price they could afford, but that businesses would have considerably more difficulty securing quake insurance.

Even if there were a federal insurance program, testified Baker, "It would not be utilized properly unless coverage were made mandatory in order to secure FHA-VA loans.

Showdown Vote On State Budget Set

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Assembly Democratic and Republican leaders have set the stage for a showdown vote next week on the house's expanded version of Gov. Ronald Reagan's proposed state budget.

Speaker Bob Moretti, D-Van Nuys, said Friday he will call for a vote next week on the Assembly $7.06 billion proposed budget, which is $250 million more than suggested by Reagan.

But GOP Caucus Chairman John Stull warned Republicans will block passage of the spending plan unless the measure is trimmed back to the sum proposed by the governor and welfare reform is reached.

"The Republican party is not voting for the budget in this form," the Leucadia lawmaker said.

Reagan's welfare program, meanwhile, was killed by a Senate committee and the governor has said he will not support a Democratic-sponsored substitute.

The Legislature must pass a budget by midnight June 30, or the state will be without authority to pay its bills when the new fiscal year begins.

For the past two years, Democrats have held up passage of the spending blueprint while they negotiated for more school aid with the governor. Both times the government functioned as usual.

However, this time the Republicans are the party which must supply the necessary votes—two-thirds in each house—to adopt the plan. Democrats have only majorities in each chamber.

"I don't think we can wait any longer than the middle of next week to vote on the budget," said Moretti. The Senate's version of the budget is stalled in the Finance Committee.

Assembly Republicans have issued Democrats an "ultimatum" warning that they'll refuse to vote for the budget unless bipartisan compromises are reached on welfare, educational finance, tax revision and Medi-Cal.

Stull said negotiations are continuing in all areas but welfare. "That thing has ground to a halt," he said.

But Assembly Welfare Chairman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael, said negotiations are progressing. He said Democratic and Republican Assembly leaders will be given an outline of possible areas of agreement on welfare reform next week.

Soledad Trio Counsels Get Extra Visiting Time

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) —A Superior Court judge granted additional visiting time Friday to attorneys for three convicts charged with killing a guard at Soledad State Prison.

Judge Walter F. Carpeneti also ruled that the attorneys' brief cases may be examined only for physical contraband.

Because of his his ruling, attorneys will now be able to visit their clients between 11 a.m. and 1 p.m., a period when until now guards were not available to escort them.

Carpeneti made the ruling because of the travel time needed for the visits by the attorneys who are John Thorne of San Jose and Richard Silver and Floyd Silliman on Monterey.

The judge rejected a request that sealed letters between the convicts and attorneys not be examined and ruled that outgoing communications pass through the usual prison security system.

The convicts, charged with killing guard John V. Mills in January of 1970, are George Jackson, 28, a Los Angeles robber; Fleeta Drumgo, 28, a Los Angeles burglar; and John Clutchette, 26, another Los Angeles burglar.

All are Negroes and the slaying was one of a series in the racially-troubled prison.

Because the defendants said they could not get a fair trial in Monterey County, there case was moved to San Francisco.

Bel Marin Keys Will Build New Park Facility

Bel Marin Keys Community Service District board has voted to spend up to $4,000 for a multipurpose court in Montego Park.

Chairman Anthony Sarganis was authorized Thursday to spend the money for a handball court with basketball nets at the park, according to Betty Zoeller, secretary.

The board also is looking for a part-time housekeeper for the community center. Applications are available from the secretary.

Members discussed the proposed joint powers agreement between the district and the county of Marin concerning future dredging of lower Novato Creek, Mrs. Zoeller said. No action was taken on the agreement which has not been drawn up yet, she said.

TriStar Tests Set New Mark

PALMDALE, Calif. (BW) — Lockheed's L-1011 TriStar jetliner has flown at 643 miles per hour — well beyond the maximum it is expected to reach in airline service, the company has reported.

"The aircraft felt very solid and flew very smoothly at speed approaching the sound barrier. Flight characteristics were very good," said L-1011 project pilot Hank Dees.

The new speed mark was established in a shallow dive from 37,500 feet, the maximum altitude the TriStar has achieved during its test program. Successful flutter tests were also conducted at the new speed, Dees said.

Corona's Attorney Will Seek Court Continuance

YUBA CITY, Calif. (UPI)—Defense attorney Roy Van Den Huevel said Friday he definitely will seek a two-week continuance in the preliminary hearing for mass murder suspect Juan V. Corona.

The public defender said he needs "more time to study the information I am receiving, which is far from complete."

He referred to evidence against Corona, 37, a former mental patient, in the slayings of 25 itinerant farm workers whose bodies were found buried in peach orchards and brush along the Feather River. The prosecution has been ordered to provide van den Heuvel the evidence.

The preliminary hearing for Corona, who pleaded innocent to 10 counts of murder, has been set for next Wednesday.

Sheriff Roy Whiteaker announced a material witness, Juan Mosqueda, 50, had been released subject to a subpoena to testify at the hearing. Undersheriff Frank Cartoscelli said Mosqueda, a field worker arrested Monday in Stockton and released Thursday, was "just held for questioning."

Roy Delong, 52, also held as a material witness, remained in jail.

Air Base Smoke Burning Exercise

Smoke seen billowing from Hamilton Air Force Base Thursday and yesterday was due to a controlled burning exercise, according to Hamilton officials.

The base fire department was joined by Novato firemen in practicing putting out fires. Being burned were condemned buildings, according to officials. They added that permission for the burn had been received from the Bay Area Air Pollution district.

Bill Signed To Cut Firefighters' Hours

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —A bill cutting the 96-hour duty week of state Division of Forestry firefighters to 84 hours has been signed by Gov. Ronald Reagan.

The governor praised the firefighters for their "excellent record of dedicated service" and added "it is a tribute to this effort that we are able to reduce the duty time requirements for these exceptional firefighters."

Whipping Ordered

ISLE OF GUERNSEY, England (UPI)—Magistrate Guy Blampied sentenced an 18-year-old youth to eight strokes of a birch branch Friday on conviction of traffic violations, disorderly behavior and resisting arrest.

CONTINENTAL TOUCH

A Brew Stirs Over Corkage

Marin County supervisor will uncork the issue Tuesday of whether public employees and citizens can wet their whistles while lunching in the Civic Center cafeteria or will have to trek a block or two for a beer or a glass of wine.

Cafeteria operators Donald A. Giovannoni and Camille Bamatter have told their supervisors their patrons want the continental touch of beer and wine with their repasts.

Supervisor John F. McInnis had the matter put over to Tuesday to give opponents a chance to say publicly what they had told him personally.

Among the critics are operators of at least three eating places within a half-mile of the Civic Center.

Beth Taylor, operator of the Taverna Yiasou across North San Pedro Road from the Civic Center was among the most vocal. She charged that the cafeteria operators already are in effect county-subsidized competition and said, "I'll fight it."

She said she was not opposed to beer and wine sales at the Veterans Memorial Building or at the county's McNears beach park.

Both the Marin County and San Rafael chambers of commerce denied intentions of taking any stand on the issue. Paul R. Ciampi, president of the San Rafael chamber, said Civic Center neighbors had opposed making beer and wine "so available" in the same building with the courts, jail and other county offices.

A spokesman at the state Alcoholic Beverage Control office in Santa Rosa said he was unaware of any law forbidding a beer and wine license in a county building. He said it would be researched by ABC attorneys if the question arose during a permit hearing.

200TH ANNIVERSARY

Still A Living Mission

By JERRY HENRY

JOLON (UPI) — Two hundred years ago three Franciscan Padres and a handful of soldiers hiked into an oak-dotted valley north of here in Monterey County and established the third of the California missions.

Like the others, Mission San Antonio, named by Padre Junipero Serra who hung its first mission bells on an oak tree limb beside the San Antonio River, formed the real beginnings of California's recorded history.

And like the other missions it was designed to bring nearby Indians into the web of civilization.

It was a living, working mission. The Padres taught the surrounding Salinan Indians how to farm to feed themselves, how to make cloth to cover their bodies, how to hammer hot iron into tools and how to pray to the white man's God.

Under Spanish rule it thrived and expanded. Under Mexican and early U.S. governments it declined and by the turn of the century it had fallen into ruins.

Tomorrow, when local residents celebrate its 200th birthday with a special fiesta, it stands restored, lying isolated in Father Serra's "Valley Of The Oaks" — a valley much the same as it was 200 years ago when the mission's only edifice was a brush hut.

Unlike some of the other mission sites, such as San Rafael's, there have been no urban encroachments here. The civilization which Mission San Antonio struggled to bring to the Indian has not descended to blot out its charm.

It remains surrounded by meadows of golden wild oats beneath a backdrop of untrammeled coastal mountains.

Also unlike the other missions it remains a living mission, in the sense that the Franciscans are again striving to make the mission meaningful these times.

families and single persons, have been living here since last summer, participating in what is called a Christian community program which was formulated at a Franciscan conference last summer.

The community members live in small apartments where former franciscans and Indians once dwelled. They share the same kitchen and the work including the tending of a milk cow, some chickens and a small garden.

In addition, they help the guardian, Father Francis Buismato, and Brother Timothy Arthur with various tasks about the mission including tending the museum and curio shop.

In their spare time they pursue their own interests, painting, carving, studying or just talking.

Mary Lou Goertzen, her husband Ernest and their three children, have been here since September. Both are accomplished artists from Berkeley, Calif.

Mrs. Goertzen explained the purpose is to make the mission relevant to today.

"It's a privilege to try to do this in such a beautiful place," she said. She is not sure of the outcome but she feels the project is moving in a positive direction.

"We live week by week," she said. "We have policy meetings every week to see where we are going."

It's an ecumenical program, not limited to Catholics. Mrs. Gertzen said she was a Mennonite-Quaker.

Possibly because of tourist visits, she does not have a feeling of being cut off from the world.

"It's deceptive," she said. "In a way it feels so remote. But I don't feel remote at all. I feel just as much in the middle of things as I did in Berkeley."

She and others will be among those who participate in the pageant Sunday to celebrate the founding of Mission San Antonio.

There will be a costumed procession, a barbecue, the celebration of masses, the old world custom of blessing the animals and the fields and other activities to commemorate the history of this adobe-constructed memorial of man's attempt to civilize an unfettered race.

The celebration is being held tomorrow, the fiesta day of St. Anthony, although Father Serra actually first rang the mission bells at a site some three miles from the present mission on July 14, 1771.

The mission grew and prespered until the Mexicans gained independence in 1821.

Government officials took more and more control over the mission and it went into a period of decline. The pattern continued after the United States government took over in 1846 and after the death of the mission's final guardian Father Dorteo Ambris in 1882, the buildings were abandoned.

During the period of abandonment the buildings fell into disrepair and tiles and timbers were taken by neighboring ranches.

Other neighboring families managed to save some of the relics including historic statues, paintings and even the mission branding iron.

When restoration began in 1949 following a $50,000 donation from the Hearst Foundation, many of the relics were returned and may now be seen.

MISSION'S ANNIVERSARY — Mission San Antonio, located in the oak-dotted valley north of Jolon in Monterey County will observe its 200th anniversary tomorrow. Looking over the mission on the eve of the celebration is Franciscan Brother Timothy Arthur, OFM.

New Church Official Is Announced

Dr. Robert D. Rasmussen, currently director of the Commission on the Ministry of the American Baptist Church, will become executive minister for the American Baptist churches in the Bay area in August.

Rasmussen will replace Dr. Russell S. Orr, who is retiring. Orr, will remain active, however. He will serve as interim executive secretary for the Chicago Baptist Association.

Rasmussen is a graduate of the American Baptist Seminary of the West in Berkeley and earned his doctorate of philosophy from Boston University.

The American Baptist Churches of the West includes 230 congregations in Northern California and Nevada.

New Office Will Deal With Draft

NEW YORK (LC) — The Lutheran Council in the USA has established an office of Lutheran Selective Service Information and has named Charles P. Lutz as director of the program.

Lutz, 39, who has been associate executive secretary in the New York office of the World Council of Churches for nearly two years, assumed his new post at headquarters of the Lutheran Council May 1.

The office, it was explained by Dr. C. Thomas Spitz, general secretary of the cooperative agency, will provide Lutherans with a central clearing house for information about the Selective Service System, including legal alternatives to military service.

For the first year, the office will be sponsored and financed by five units of the American Lutheran Church and the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod — the ALC's Board of Social Service and its Board of Youth Activity, and the LCMS's Board of Social Ministry, Board of Youth Ministry, and Walther League, its youth auxiliary.

The Lutheran Church in America's Board for Social Ministry and its Commission for Youth Ministry will be related to the program in an advisory capacity.

Each of the agencies plans to contribute staff time to the program in the equivalent of one-half day per week for a staff member from their respective units.

NBC Will Tape Discussion On VD

Following Friday's 8:15 p.m. Sabbath service at Congregation Rodof Sholom on South San Pedro Road, NBC will tape a discussion on venereal disease.

Panelists will be Rev. John O'Connor, formerly of Marin who is now with the Catholic Social Services Agency in San Francisco; Rev. Francis Geddes of the First Congregational Church of Santa Venetia, and Rabbi David Davis.

20 GERMAN CHURCHES UP FOR GRABS—FREE

MARBURG, Germany (GF) — Anyone interested in having an old, historic church for free? In the vicinity of West Germany's Marburg, there are 20 up for grabs.

The churches are all located in smaller towns and have long since closed down for religious services. In fact, a number are being used as storehouses, which disturbs many local officials and residents.

The churches were given up as religious centers as new ones were built or as communities grew smaller and attendance shrank to near zero.

Renovation costs of the historic structures simply became prohibitive for the towns with their small populations and this forms the expensive side of the contract for prospective new owners.

Namely, they can have the churches for free only if they agree to carry the maintenance costs. A possibility, of course, would be to reopen one of the renovated shrines as a religious museum.

COURSE IN ROME

Spooks, Demons In Respectable Spot

By BARRY JAMES

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — Spooks, demons and things that go bump in the night have found a respectable position at Rome's Pontifical Lateran University. It has an Austrian priest-psychiatrist, Rev. Andrea Resch, teaching a course in which such phenomena as poltergeists and possession by demons are seriously considered.

Resch, 37, calls his specialty "paranormology." In a dispassionate tone, he tells students there are some things that cannot be explained by normal means, and he examines "psychic phenomena" — including seances and what happens during them, water divining, the levitation and bilocation of saints, miracle cures, stigmata, ghosts and even Ouija boards.

Next semester, he promises "practical experiments" in extra-sensory perception, mental telepathy and spiritualism — but has yet to describe exactly what he will do.

Although the Roman Catholic Church bans participation in seances, it makes an exception for scientific researchers.

Another man who combined the priesthood with the study of the bizarre was the Rev. Victor Jouet, who died in Rome in 1912 after having amassed a unique collection of finger marks scorched into religious books and other objects. He believed they were made by souls in purgatory.

Jouet began his singular research after a fire destroyed the main altar of his church. The priest believed he saw a tormented soul among the flames.

After this, Jouet traveled extensively in Italy, France, Belgium, Austria and Germany for earthly evidence of purgatory.

His findings used to be kept in a museum off the neo-gothic Sacred Heart church in Rome. But the present custodians of the church apparently care little for the collection, and have reduced the museum to a small showcase of finger-charred objects.

There is, for example, a scorched shirt which an explanatory note says was once the property of Joseph Leleux of Belgium.

This unfortunate gentleman, the note says, was terrified in 1789 by 11 nights of demonic noises followed by the apparition of his late mother in a whirlwind of flame.

Handbell Choir Will Make Tour

The Jubal Ringers, senior handbell choir at St. Luke Presbyterian Church in San Rafael, will leave tomorrow for a four-city tour presenting concerts in Salinas, Bakersfield, Whittier and Long Beach.

Directed by James Groves, the group's repertory includes music from the classic, romantic and baroque periods, hymns, folk tunes, popular and contemporary selections and novelty pieces.

Making the tour will be Pam Bergman, Debbie Daunt, Chris Dill, Cathy Ford, Cinda Gilliland, Susan Maggy, Lisa Provencher, Mark Showers, Larry Simmelink, Karen Smith, Nancy Walker, Kathy Van Herwynen, and Sandy Van Herwynen.

Also accompanying the group and their director, will be Mrs. Arthur Koenig and Mrs. Robert Maggy.

The Jubal Ringers will present a pretour public concert at the church, 10 Bayview Drive, at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow.

Blessing Of Pets Set Tomorrow

The Community Congregational Church of Tiburon will celebrate the Festival of St. Francis tomorrow with blessing of pets at the 8 and 10 a.m. services.

Weather permitting, the services will be held on the hilltop adjacent to the church.

Following the 10 a.m. service, David Youngdahl, who has a painting exhibit at the church, will present a lecture.

Registration Set For Bible School

Registration for the annual vacation Bible school at the First Baptist Church of San Rafael will be held at 10 a.m. next Saturday.

The school will begin at 9 a.m. June 21 and continue through June 30 at 1411 Lincoln Avenue. The school is over at noon each day.

President Leaves

Rev. John P. Strand, first and only president of the Association of Free Lutheran Congregations in its nine years in existence, has resigned from the office effective Oct. 1 to return to parish ministry.

Church Youth Will Join Work Project In Mexico

Twenty-eight senior high school youth and adults of Lucas Valley Community Church will leave tomorrow for a three-week work project in Mexico City.

As guests of the Seminario Bautista de Mexico, the students will work on finishing aspects of the "Aviacion Civil Iglesia" and cleanup details at the Aztec conference grounds.

While in Mexico outside activities will include fiestas staged by the Mexican church and sightseeing tours to the Pyramids of Teotihaucan, the Museum of Anthropology and the Floating Gardens of Xochomilcho.

The trip is being paid for by $1,500 which the students have raised over the past yer.

Accompanying the students will be a registered nurse and the church pastor, Rev. Dale Nystrom, and counselors Mr. and Mrs. George Unsoeld, Suzy Gazlay, Laveda Vinson, Kelly Donaldson and Mrs. Nystrom.

Students making the trip by car caravan include the group's officers, Kathy Wells, president; Margie Unsoeld, vice president; Nina Wlsterlund, secretary, and Jodi Nystrom, treasurer, and Debbie Hibbs, Cindy Hibbs, Kathy Stephens, Vickie Taylor, Melissa Toninni, Wendy Hamilton, Dianne Campbell, John Anderson, Jeff Ashmun, Clarke Harding, Jim Owens, Rick Tallariti, Jim Peterson, Jay Baker, Chris Unsoeld and Caren and Sheri Nystrom.

Services Will Be By Church School

Landon Court at the First Presbyterian Church of San Anselmo will be the setting for the 10 a.m. worship service tomorrow, prepared and conducted by church school staff and children.

Immediately following the service, which concludes the year's church school for summer, a reception will be held for Rev. and Mrs. Roswell C. Gordon and their family. Gordon will become pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of St.Helena on Tuesday.

The transition from the North Shore to Marin is an easy one. This home is located on an acre site in the old vineyard. All architectural specifications available upon request. However, this Architectural Forum Award Home has several distinguishing features. The master suite consists of bedroom, bath and large sitting room or den. The children's wing of 3 bedrooms and bath and a half has a large sliding wall for slumber parties or a super suite. The servant's quarters are quite adequate. The large living and dining area with a natural stone fireplace surpasses the other features of this home. Privacy and seclusion are at a maximum, of course. Offered at $150,000.

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING IN THE MATTER OF CITY OF MILL VALLEY

The California Regional Water Quality Control Board, San Francisco Bay Region, will hold a public hearing on Tuesday, June 22, 1971 at 7:30 p.m. in the City Hall, 26 Corte Madera Avenue, City of Mill Valley, to consider issuance of an order pursuant to Section 13301 of the California Water Code requiring the City of Mill Valley to cease and desist from discharging waste in violation of waste discharge requirements which were adopted on February 25, 1971 and directing said discharger to comply with said requirements forthwith or in accordance with a time schedule to be set by the regional board. The specific requirements in question are the following:

Effluent disinfection, 5-day BOD, toxicity, turbidity and excessive flow

Receiving water floating matter and discoloration

Bypassing of untreated sewage

The board's staff, the discharger and other interested persons will be given an opportunity to present evidence concerning whether the discharge requirements have been violated and plans and time schedules for obtaining compliance at the earliest practicable date. The discharger and all other interested persons may, but need not, be represented by counsel. The board will further consider whether to restrict or prohibit the volume, type or concentration of waste that may be added to the sewer system by dischargers who did not discharge into the system prior to issuance of the cease and desist order.

If possible, written copies of testimony to be presented at the hearing should be furnished to the board in advance of the hearing.

The regional board file on the discharge of the City of Mill Valley is open to public inspection from 8:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m. on weekdays.

Name's Spelling No Legal Import

Marin County Marine inspector Richard L. Larson was trying to figure out yesterday how he corresponded for two years with the owner of a Gate 5 houseboat without knowing the man's correct name.

Larson said the discovery that 24-year-old Russel Grisham does not spell his name Grissom — as the county had thought — will not affect marin's case against the artist's houseboat.

It was the removal of Grisham's boat from its Waldo Point berth Monday that touched off a miniature naval engagement on Richardson Bay.

"The action is against the boat, not against the owner," said Larson today. "Having the wrong name is immaterial."

The inspector said he got the incorrect spelling of Grisham's name — a spelling used in a story in Tuesday's Independent-Journal — from the artist himself.

"If a person doesn't straighten us out on his name, we can't know we have it wrong," he said.

Larson said he corresponded with Grisham for two years and "he accepted mail in that name" without informing the county of the error.

The inspector also said, "Some of the names (of houseboat owners) we get are pretty mixed up at times."

Jail Time For Use Of Card

Donald Gilbert Kennedy, 27, of Marin City, has been sentenced to 90 days in jail for having a credit card without the owner's consent.

Judge David Menary Jr. of Marin Municipal Court gave Kennedy credit for time already spent in jail. Kennedy was arrested May 4 on suspicion of possessing stolen property, as well as the credit card charge, but only the misdemeanor charge was filed against him.

San Rafael police said he attempted to make a purchase in a shoe store with a credit card that had been reported stolen.

Mill Valley Bond Issue Discussions Set On KTIM

Mill Valley city officials and a city councilman will discuss the $1.8 million capital improvement bond issue, set for a June 29 vote, on a series of programs on KTIM radio starting Monday.

City Mgr. William H. Cunningham will explain the entire bond package at 9:15 a.m. Monday on Home Town News, with Virginia Spalding of Homestead Valley.

Other bond issue discussions, all beginning at 9:15 a.m., are Wednesday, Don L. Dimitratos, parks and recreation director, speaking on park improvements and a municipal swimming pool; June 21, Ross Benson, public works director, on streets and sewers, and a representative of the fire department on a proposed East Mill Valley fire station.

Councilman Jean S. Barnard will conclude the series on June 28, the day before the election, with a general discussion on why the bond issue is important to Mill Valley.

Included in the bond package are repair of almost every city street, $500,000; sewer main replacement and repair, $450,000; a new fire station, $240,000; storm drain improvements, $300,000; two tennis courts for Boyle Park, $90,000, and a swimming pool, $250,000.

City voters may approve some of the items and reject others. If all are approved, the city manager has estimated the city property tax rate will go up 40 cents per $100 assessed valuation.

Radiology Equipment Lease Purchase Pact

A five year lease-purchase agreement totaling $105,000 for radiology equipment has been approved by the Marin Hospital District board.

The lease was approved Thursday as an alternative to purchasing the replacement equipment outright at a cost of about $80,000.

According to Ray K. Bolinger, the board's decision to pay General Electric Co., the higher amount over a period of years will allow patient fees to purchase the equipment.

Had the board selected the lower figure, he said, a cent and a half tax rate would have been required.

"This insures that those that use the equipment pay for it," he said.

The Marin Hospital District board also:

HOSPITAL PRIVILEGES — Extended courtesy hospital privileges to Dr. Kenneth M. Kressenberg of Novato, a surgeon; Dr. Leslie D. Kurian of Kentfield, a psychiatrist; and Dr. Natalie K. O'Bryne of San Anselmo, a psychiatrist; also associate privileges to Dr. James A. Bahtiar of Kentfield, a psychiatrist.

OFFICE LEASE — Authorized the Marin Community Mental Health Center to sign a two-year lease at $15,180 per year for office space at 20 H Street, San Rafael.

BON AIR ROAD — Heard a report that proposed realignment of Bon Air Road must be delayed another year.

CAPITAL OUTLAY — Received preliminary reports on the district's capital outlay budget which will be considered at the board's next meeting, June 22. Under consideration are proposed remodeling projects at the hospital's nursery, coronary care unit and radiotherapy unit and upgrading of the hospital's electrical system. No cost figures were presented for the budget.

Public Housing School Funds Backed In Senate

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Senate has voted for the first time to compensate communities for educating children from public housing.

The provision was contained in a $5.6 billion school aid appropriations bill approved unanimously Thursday.

The Senate refused on a voice vote Thursday to eliminate from its version of the legislation a $60 million allowance activating the public housing provision which Congress authorized in 1969 but had never financed.

The bill exceeds President Nixon's request by $904 million, according to an administration memorandum circulated on the Senate floor. But Senate supporters said it was only $451 million higher.

Houseboat Rock Event Nets $850

A benefit rock concert held this week by Sausalito's houseboat colony netted $850 and drew approximately 600 persons to the ferryboat Charles Van Damme where the event was held, according to Robert Kallock, a spokesman for the houseboaters.

He said the residents plan to use the money for legal fees and other expenses resulting from their fight to keep Marin County from removing and demolishing some 30 houseboats now located in the Waldo Point area. The county, which made an unsuccessful attempt to remove the five boats Monday, contends the vessels do not meet county safety and sanitary standards.

The concert Wednesday included rock bands and entertainer from the colony, Kallock said.

McCarthy Hints Primary Interest

NEW YORK (UPI)—Eugene McCarthy, who unsuccessfully sought the Democratic presidential nomination in 1968, said Thursday he might enter the party's 1972 primaries in order to exert some influence at the national convention.

McCarthy, in an interview with The New York Times, did not rule out the possibility that he might run as a third party candidate or that he might do both—run in the primaries and on a third ticket.

"I don't close any doors," The Times quoted him as telling 50 New York Democratic leaders at a private meeting Thursday.

Bird, Animal Lecture Is Set

An illustrated lecture of birds and animals of the Falkland Islands, Antartica and Patagonia will be given by Ian Strange at 8 p.m. Tuesday in Olney Hall at the College of Marin.

Strange, an English naturalist, has spent the past eight years studying and photographing wildlife of these areas. He seems to gain public support to preserve the rich and varied wildlife of the region.

His lecture is sponsored by the Peninsula Conservation Foundation, the California Academy of Science, California Institute of Man in Nature, the Sierra Club, the Committee for Green Foothills and Audubon Society.

Mets Goof, Giants Snap Loss Streak

Mays Has A Hand In Win

By FRED McMANE
UPI Sports Writer

Once again the New York Mets got crossed up pitching to Willie Mays.

This time, however, the circumstances were a bit unusual.

The 40-year-old Mays, playing his first game in New York this season, was batting in the 10th inning with two out and Hal Lanier on second Friday night when reliever Tug McGraw, misreading a sign from catcher Jerry Grote, uncorked a wild pitch. When Grote lost sight of the ball and was unable to retrieve it, Lanier scored from second to give the San Francisco Giants a 3-2 victory.

Lanier, a late inning replacement, led off the inning with a double and was waved home by Mays as McGraw was forced to retrieve the ball himself. The Mets argued that a fan touched the ball after it hit the backstop but home plate umpire Lee Weyer disagreed and eventually Mets' Manager Gil Hodges was ejected from the game for protesting too strenuously.

As it turned out the Mets' argument carried no weight since the rulebook states that even if a fan touches the ball it still is up to the umpire to decide whether the interference had any bearing on the play. In this case, Weyer felt that it did not.

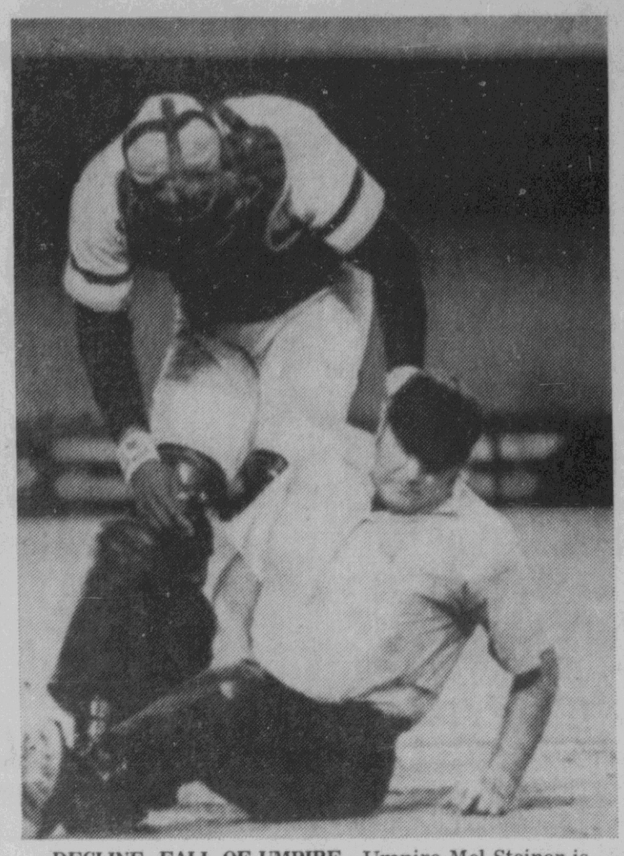
"Even if the fan did touch the ball, and I don't think he did, there's no way in the world they could have gotten that man out," said Weyer. "The ball tipped Grote's glove and hit my mask and went straight up in the air."

Grote said the wild pitch resulted because of a mixup in signals. "I thought I called for a screwball and McGraw thought I called for a fastball. My target was low expecting a screwball and the pitch was a high fastball," said the Mets' catcher.

"There was a human error in there somewhere," added McGraw, "but how could I let Lanier hit a double off me in the first place?"

McGraw's wild pitch spoiled a dramatic ninth inning comeback by the Mets, who tied the score at 2-2 on a two-out, two-run homer by Dave Marshall. Willie McCovey's two-run homer had accounted for the Giants' early runs. Mays collected a single and a triple in five at bats before 52,486— the largest crowd in the National League this season.

In other NL games, Los Angeles routed Montreal 12-1; Pittsburgh trimmed St. Louis, 11-4; Houston nipped Atlanta 5-4, San Diego edged Philadelphia 2-1 and Cincinnati topped Chicago 4-3.



DECLINE, FALL OF UMPIRE Umpire Mel Steiner is assisted by Pittsburgh catcher Manny Sanguillen after he was hit on the arm by a pitch during last night's game against the Cardinals in St. Louis. Steiner recovered and the Pirates defeated the Cards, 11-4.

Carpeted Fields May Make Bunts Obsolete

Only three men in the history of baseball have piloted the same team longer than Walter Alston has managed the Dodgers — Connie Mack, 50 years with the Philadelphia Athletics, 1901-50; John McGraw, 31 years with the Giants 1902-32, and Cap Anson, 19 seasons with the Cubs 1879-97.

Alston, in his 18th season this year as manager of the Dodgers, properly is called today's "Dean of the Dugout." Six times he has led the Dodgers to National League pennants, four times to World Series championships in 1955, 1959, 1963 and 1965.

So Alston must be recognized as a knowledgeable manager. Yet, like every manager before him and every manager who will follow him, Alston is not immune to second-guessing in which some baseball fans take particular delight.

There was the time Alston was politely second-guessed on a Giant-Dodger game in 1962, an important game that the Giants won on their way to their pennant. He was asked why he didn't flash the bunt sign to a batter in what seemed to be an ideal sacrifice situation. Why did he signal the batter to hit away?

"How many of you would have bunted?" Alston asked his luncheon audience. Half of the crowd stood.

"How many of you would have hit away?" The remaining half of the audience stood.

"Well," said Alston, "that merely goes to show that whatever I did I would have been wrong with half of you."

Now, the bunt or hit away decision was one that Charlie Fox had to make not once but five times in a tight ball game last month in Candlestick. Four times the manager of the Giants signalled batters to hit away. Four double plays by Pittsburgh's classy defensive infield resulted.

The one time Fox did flash the bunt sign the sacrifice worked. Juan Marichal not only laid down the bunt but beat the Pirates 2-1 with a three-hitter.

With his pitcher at bat, Alan Gallagher on first base with a leadoff single in the fifth inning and the Giants trailing 1-0, Fox naturally had no hesitancy in ordering the sacrifice which ultimately resulted in a tie 1-1 score when Ken Henderson delivered a two-out single.

But why didn't he order the bunt in the preceding inning when the Giants had two aboard and nobody out or in the following inning with two aboard and again nobody out? After all, it wasn't until the seventh inning that Henderson knocked in the decisive run after Bobby Bonds had doubled.

"I realize better than anyone else that I put myself on the spot for a lot of second-guessing," said Fox, "but the bunt may become obsolete on baseball's new artificial playing surfaces.

"It's extremely difficult for a batter to lay down a soft bunt on the carpet which gives added momentum to the ball. But don't get me wrong. I'm not forgeting the bunt. I've just been giving it some extra thought not that we have carpeted infields."

Fox also gave some extra thought to another problem presented by the artificial grass surfaces. He re-aligned the Giants' infield defense, moving the corner mean away from the lines and the shortstop and second baseman closer to the second base bao. The result? Immediate improvement in the team's double play production.

Fox is appropiately named, a foxy percentage player.

OAKLAND (UPI) —Jack Aker never forgets, and everytime he gets a chance to pitch against the Oakland A's, the adrenalin starts to flow.

Aker, who once pitched for the A's and left the club after a long faud with owner Charlie Finley, shut out Oakland over the final two innings Friday night as the New York Yankies rallied for a 6-4 victory.

"I haven't had much luck against the A's the last two years, said Aker, "but every time I get a chance to pitch against them the adrenalin starts to flow. I want to beat them more than any other club."

Aker has no quarrel with the Oakland players. In fact, many of them are his friends and he wishes them well. He's still mad at Finley.

Aker, it will be recalled, was the A's player rep while the club was still based in Kansas City. During the team's now famous plane trip late in the season he helped solve some club problems.

But Finley didn't like what was going on and fired Manager Alvin Dark and released Ken Harrelson.

"I was the man in the middle," Aker said, "mostly because I was the player rep. Finley, I guess, doesn't care to have any player tell him what to do."

After the plane incident Aker languished on the bench and even though he pitched well in 1968, Finley let him go to Seattle in the American League expansion draft."

Aker took over the New York pitching Friday night after the Yankees jumped Jim Hunter and Bob Locker for four runs in the eighth to wipe out a 4-2 deficit.

Hunter, who had helped himself with a run scoring double in the fifth and a runscoring single in the seventh, was five outs away from his 10th victory when the roof caved in.

A tripple by red-hot Jerry Kenney and a double by Bobby Murcer cut the lead to 4-3 and when Hunter walked Roy White, locker took over. He proved no mystery and A's manager Dick Williams indicated the veteran right hander may be passed up in favor of Jim Roland until he works things out.

"He's simply not getting the job done," Williams said of Locker. "I may go to Roland for a while and see what happens."

After Hunter departed, a single by Danny Cater off Sal Bando's glove filled the bases for New York. Thurman Munson followed with a two-run single and Gene Michael added a sacrifice fly to complete a four-run inning.

Singles by Kenney and Murcer and a double by White produced New York's first two runs in the opening inning.

Solo homers by Reggie Jackson, his 12th, and Dave Duncan, his eighth, accounted for Oakland's first two runs and Hunter drove in the others.

The loss coupled with Kansas City's victory over Boston, shaved Oakland's lead in the American League west to six games.

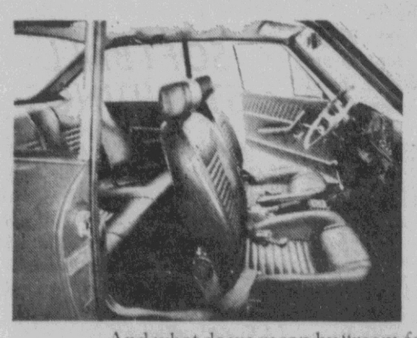
MOST CAR SALESMEN WILL TELL YOU THIS DOESN'T EXIST.

A SPORTS CAR WITH ROOM FOR FOUR ADULTS.



First, what do we mean by a "Sports Car"? Well, we don't mean a souped-up sedan with racing stripes.

The Fiat 124 Sport Coupe has a 1608 cc engine with twin overhead camshaft that turns out 104 bhp at 6,500 rpm.

It has power-assisted disc brakes on all four wheels and a standard 5-speed gearbox.

It's a car you actually drive, unlike most modern cars which you merely point.

And what do we mean by "room for four"? We mean legroom, headroom and elbowroom for four 180-lb. men. With baggage.

If you find this hard to believe, all you have to do is take the car out on the road. Any Fiat dealer will arrange it for you.

You may find that a sports car with room for four adults is exactly the kind of car you'd like. In which case, to be honest, you have a choice. It's the Fiat 124 Sport Coupe or something like a Ferrari 2+2.

But for the price of a Ferrari 2+2 you could buy four Fiats. And you'd have room for sixteen people.

The Sad Plight Of Denny McLain

By JOE CARNICELLI
UPI Sports Writer

Fame is fleeting and if you don't think so, just ask Denny McLain.

Four years ago McLain was the toast of baseball and the topic of every fan's conversation as he followed his quest to become the first pitcher in 34 years to win more than 30 games. He succeeded with a 316 record before hard times fell upon him.

Following a couple of suspensions for various charges ranging from carrying a pistol to bookmaking, McLain last year was dealt from Detroit to Washington, where owner Bob Short welcomed him with a six figure contract.

Short's investment seems to have gone sour, however, as McLain currently ranks as the "losingest" pitcher in the major leagues. He went down to his sixth straight loss and 11th of the season in 15 decisions Friday night when the California Angels rallied to beat the Senators 4-2.

McLain, who sat out most of last season and ended with a 35 record, lasted only six innings in absorbing his ninth loss in his last 10 decisions. He allowed nine hits, walked three and struck out four and left with his club trailing 4-1.

Ken McMullen's ninth homer of the season highlighted a three-run fifth that proved to be McLain's undoing. Frank Howard hit his eighth homer in the third to give the Senators a 1-0 lead but California tied the game in the fourth on winning pitcher Clyde Wright's double and went ahead in the fifth on Tony Gonzalez' sacrifice fly, McMullen's homer and Ken Berry's RBI single.

Elsewhere in the American League, Kansas City downed Boston 6-3, Baltimore beat Chicago 8-5, Detroit topped Minnesota 4-1, New York surged past Oakland 6-4 and Cleveland edged Milwaukee 2-1.

Cookie Rojas' bases loaded triple highlighted a four-run first inning as torrid Kansas City stunned Boston. The victory was the third in a row for the Royals and ninth in their last 10 games.

Luis Tiant, back in the majors after a stay in the International League, walked the bases full and Rojas delivered all three runners. He scored on Chuck Harrison's sacrifice fly. George Scott had a two-run homer for the Red Sox.

Lunn Grabs Kemper Open Golf Lead

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (UPI)—Last fall, California pro Bob Lunn stepped on a motel scale and was stunned as the needle soared to 240 pounds.

The 26-year-old, 6-foot two-inch golfer made up his mind to lose weight — not by a strict diet, but by quitting the snacks and other "things that were fattening."

Now "Big Bob" of Sacramento is a svelte 180 pounds; he's trimmed six inches off his waist—and trimmed his scores in the process.

Lunn cupped seven birdies against a solo bogey Friday for a six-under-par 66 and the 36-hole lead in the $150,000 Kemper Open at nine-under par 135.

One stroke back at 136 was Dale Douglass, the 1969 Kemper champ, who fired a 65 that included nine birdies and tied the tour record for the year.

Mason Rudolph was two shots off the pace at 137 after a four-under round of 68.

First round leader Tom Weiskopf was even par 72 for 138, and fell into a tie with Larry Ziegler and Miller Barber.

South African Gary Player came in with a 67 for 139 and Arnold Palmer, with 71, headlined a group at 141, six strokes behind.

"I think the weight loss helped my game," Lunn said. "I feel better and as long as I'm feeling better, it's got to help my game."

He said constant practice on the links has helped him maintain the lean shape which went from a 39 to a 33-inch waist on his own diet.

"It's not a strict diet," he said. "I just cut out things that were fattening—like toast and home fries at breakfast, mashed potatoes, soft drinks and sandwiches and snacks—that kind of thing."

Lunn began his diet around Christmas, one of the most tempting seasons for would-be dieters, and reached the 180-pound mark about a month and a half ago.

"I feel maybe a little stronger, but haven't noticed any difference in the distance I'm getting," he said.

Lunn won the Los Angeles Open in a playoff with Billy Casper and finished ninth in the PGA Championship and at Atlanta since he began taking on the new look.

Russ Hodge Leads In Decathlon

PORTERVILLE, Calif. (UPI)—Five men, led by Russ Hodge of the Southern California Striders, had point totals of over 4,000 Friday after the first five events of the National AAU Decathlon Championships.

Hodge, 31, a 6-3, 215-pound former football player, totalled 4,233 in the 100 meters, long jump, shot put, high jump, and 400 meters. He won the 100 meters in 10.5.

Hodge is a former world record holder coming back after a series of injures.

Other leaders were Mike Hill, Mt. San Antonio (Calif.) Junior College, 4,110, who won the long jump with 24' 5¼"; Rick Wannamaker, Des Moines, Iowa, 4,031; Steve Gough, Seattle, 4,091; and George Pannell, Santa Barbara, Calif. 4,104.

Novato's Thomas Drafted By The Pittsburgh Bucs

Tommy Thomas, third baseman who played high school baseball for the Novato Hornets, was drafted Wednesday by the Pittsburgh Pirates in the secondary baseball draft for players who have been drafted previously but remained unsigned.

Thomas played one year at Menlo College after graduation from Novato High, and then two years at Washington State University where he is a senior. He was drafted previously by the California Angels.

Football

SAN FRANCISCO — The San Francisco Forty Niners have signed 10th draft choice Ron Cardo of Oshkosh State. Cardo, a running back who gained 2,706 yards during his career at the Wisconsin school, was signed by former Forty Niner star fullback Joe Perry. Terms of the deal were not disclosed.

PHILADELPHIA (UPI)—The Philadelphia Eagles on Friday acquired punter Tom McNeill from the Minnesota Vikings on waivers.

The Eagles also signed Jim Ettinger, a 6-3, 200-pound, quarterback as a free agent. He played with Indianapolis of the Atlantic Coast League last season after graduating from Kansas.

The Eagles released running back Andy Livingston, who failed a physical examination on an old knee injury after he was acquired from New Orleans on waivers.

BUFFALO, N.Y. — The National Football League Buffalo Bills have signed of their number one collegiate draft choice, wide receiver J.D. Hill of Arizona State.

Hill, a 6-1, 195-pound sprinter, was on the receiving end of 58 passes for 908 yards and 10 touchdowns last season. Although terms of the pact were not announced, Hill said he was "satisfied."

Baseball

PHILADELPHIA (UPI)—The Philadelphia Phillies traded veteran infielder Tony Taylor to the Detroit Tigers Friday for minor league pitchers Mike Fremuth and Carl Cavanaugh.

Taylor, 35, played 11 years here after he was acquired from the Chicago Cubs in 1960. His best year was last season when he batted .301 in 124 games.

Fremuth, 24, will stay with Montgomery in the Southern League and Cavanaugh, 22, will remain with Rocky Mount in the Carolina League.

ST. LOUIS (UPI) —The St. Louis Cardinals have acquired pitcher Al Santorini from the San Diego Padres in exchange for outfielder Leron Lee and lefthanded pitcher Fred Norman.

Santorini, taken from the Atlanta Braves as the Padres' third selection in the expansion draft of 1968, had an 0-2 record and 3.79 earned-run average in 18 games, mostly relief appearances, this season.

Tennis

MUNICH, Germany (UPI)—West Germany reached the finals of the European Zone group BBB Davis Cup competition Friday after taking an unbeatable 3-0 lead over Hungary.

LONDON — The International Lawn Tennis Federation (ILTF) Friday lifted suspensions imposed on four tennis stars for failing to compete in the recent French Championships at Paris.

The players involved were Tom Okker of the Netherlands, Yugoslavian Nikki Pilic, Ismael El Shafei of the United Arab Republic and West Germany's Inge Buding.

ALMANAC

Today is Saturday, June 12, the 163rd day of 1971.

The moon is between its full phase and last quarter. The morning stars are Mercury, Venus, Mars and Saturn. The evening star is Jupiter.

Those born on this day are under the sign of Gemini.

American author Frank Chapman was born June 12, 1864.

On this day in history:

In 1630 the first governor of the Massachusetts Bay Colony, John Winthrop, entered the Harbor of Salem.

In 1924 President Calvin Coolidge received the Republican presidential nomination and was elected that fall by a huge majority.

In 1963 a sniper killed Negro civil rights leader Medgar Evers at Jackson, Miss.

In 1967 the U.S. Supreme Court ruled that states could not outlaw interracial marriages.

A thought for today: Plato said, "No evil can happen to a good man, either in life or death."

"What time is it when the big hand is on zero and the little hand is on fourteen?"

Teen Held On Stolen Property

A 17-year-old San Rafael boy has been booked into Marin Juvenile Hall on suspicion of possession of stolen property.

Marin County sheriff's deputies said yesterday that Robert Elton Yates of 86 Forest Lane was arrested Tuesday after he attempted to use a credit card at a Santa Venetia service station.

The card reportedly was stolen in a burglary of the residence of Sol Goldstein of 28 Forest Lane, deputies said.

HOW TO PLAY

WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

South's Hurried Play Hurts When The Points Are Counted

Most bridge hands are played quite quickly in ordinary rubber bridge. You win a trick as soon as you can, you draw trumps, you go after a long suit of some kind, and you score it up and go on to the next hand. If it turns out that this is the wrong line of play, at least you can truthfully claim that you wasted no thought on it.

Wastes No Time

South wasted neither thought nor time on today's hand. He took the first trick in dummy with the ace of diamonds and drew three rounds of trumps, ending in the dummy. Then he led a club.

East played low, and South decided to play low rather than put up the king. It was a good decision, but nothing could help him any more. West won with the jack of clubs and led a diamond to make South ruff.

Declarer led a heart to dummy and returned another club from dummy. This time he put up the king, losing to the ace. West led another diamond, and South had to use up his last trump.

LOSES DIAMOND

South had to give up another club, and West was able to cash his last diamond to defeat the contract. "Hard luck," South said, and he scored 100 points for the opponents as he waited to pick up his next hand.

Of course you have seen South's error. Perhaps he would have seen it too if he hadn't been trying to set a new indoor record for the play of a hand at four spades.

CLUB IS BEST

After taking the first trick with the ace of diamonds declarer should lead a club at once without touching the trumps. West leads a diamond, and South ruffs. South gives up a second club, ruffs the diamond return, gives up a third club, and ruffs still another diamond return.

South now has only two trumps, but dummy still has three trumps. South can draw two rounds of trumps from his own hand and the third from the dummy. The rest is easy.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one no-trump, and the next player passes.

You hold:
♠ - 7 5 4
♥ - 6 4 3
♦ - Q J 10 9
♣ - A Q J.

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid three no-trump.

You have 10 points, and your partner shows 16 to 18 for his bid. The total should be 26 to 28 points, enough to provide a good play for game.

Color Coded Doors

TAIPEI (UPI) —Nationalist Chinese customs officials plan to build one red door and one green door at Taipei International Airport to help speed arriving passengers through customs. Passengers who carry items subject to customs duties will be directed to pass through the red door. Passengers with nothing to declare walk through the green door.

The Editor's Notebook

Cut Top Salaries To Balance Budget

In light of the week's developments at Sacramento, the Editor's Notebook column which filled this space last March 6 is more timely today than when it first appeared.

Here it is:

EVERYBODY KNOWS that California state government is facing another financial crisis. It is committed to spend more than its income.

The legislature took characteristic action in the face of the crisis. Legislators raised their own expense allowances.

The governor has a plan for meeting the crisis. It is extremely doubtful whether the legislature will accede to the governor's plan.

Where does this leave us?

In the same old bag, probably: the legislature will have to vote new taxes upon us.

THERE MAY BE another alternative, a better way out.

So far as we know, no one else has yet thought of the possibility we have in mind. It is not likely that anyone in state government would think of this particular approach. If they did think of it, you can be sure that they would breathe not a word of it publicly.

We call it the Salary Suspension Incentive Plan. It is something like this:

Whenever the state finds itself with more outgo than income, all services to the public would be frozen — that is, they would neither be increased nor be decreased. They would remain constant.

But a system of cost cutting would automatically be instituted.

The extent to which this cost-cutting system was applied would be determined by the extent of the threatening deficit. Costs would be cut merely enough to bring outgo into balance with income.

The cost cutting system is simplicity itself.

The state would merely suspend salary payments to certain state employees to the degree necessary to balance outgo with income.

Salary suspensions would be instituted according to a priority list of state employees. The order of priority would be determined by the size of an official's salary. The largest salary would be first. That would be the governor.

Right behind him on the list would come the top administrators of state super-agencies.

Since the legislature shares with the governor the responsibility for keeping state spending within bounds, it is only right that the top legislative officials — the president pro tem of the Senate and the speaker of the Assembly — share top priority with the governor, although legislative officials received somewhat less salary than top administrators.

Legislative committee chairmen, in both Senate and Assembly, would constitute the next priority level, followed by individual legislators according to seniority. Those with the longest seniority (and presumably the most influence) should be the first to be affected by the salary suspension plan.

SUCH A SYSTEM of salary suspensions in time of fiscal crisis has so many advantages and good features that there is not space enough here to touch on more than the mere highlights.

First, services to the needy, the poor, the aged, the blind, the ill, etc., would continue unaffected. Those at the bottom of the pay scale in state service, like hospital orderlies, would be unaffected. The meager salaries on which they and their families depend for existence would be protected.

On the other hand, those at the top level whose salaries would be cut or eliminated — like governor Reagan — would not be hurt appreciably. It may be that the most noticeable immediate affect on them would be an income tax deduction, an obvious benefit.

The overall effect on the top administrators and top legislators should be, from the taxpayers' standpoint, very good. Salary suspension would motivate these influential officials to find immediate solutions to the state's critical problems with a minimum of political shadow boxing.

Obviously the Salary Suspension Incentive Plan would benefit everyone in the long run.

IT IS PRETTY CERTAIN that such a plan would not be advocated by the governor nor voted into being by the state legislature, however.

If it is to be implemented, it will have to be by initiative petition of voters. We can count on little help from experienced politicians in putting the measure on the ballot and getting it passed.

The whole operation would have to be a do-it-yourself operation by voters.

Voters of California, arise!

We have it within our power to bring about our own solution to our state's recurring fiscal crises.

If we don't unite to protect ourselves against further invasion of our pocketbooks, our paychecks and bank accounts by Sacramento, we will have only ourselves to blame.

One of the great things about spring fever is that it enables a man to sit back, look up, and see more easily and more clearly how the complex problems of our day can be solved so simply.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Muscular Dystrophy Backs Sheriff's Circus

As a member of the board of directors for several years, vice-president, and newly elected president of the Muscular Dystrophy Association of Marin County (a totally volunteer organization), as well as the parent of a child with muscular dystrophy, I wish to add my voice as well as that of the association to other agencies that have protested the action of the chamber of commerce and various merchants in rejecting the Deputy Sheriff's Association circus charity.

I have closely observed the work done by these dedicated people in not only providing an inexpensive entertainment for a whole family, but using their entire percentage in assisting agencies to carry out their work in Marin County.

Our agency would have been hard pressed to provide all the accessory services to dystrophy patients, mostly children, without the Deputy Sheriff's Association contribution. At their request and our total agreement the entire amount is spent for services to Marin County patients. . .

Drydock Complaint Sent To Wrong Party

I'm surprised at the I-J for the dishonest journalism expressed in the headline, "Please, Mayor Joe, just Stay Away" and the related cartoon showing Mayor Alioto aboard a fireboat trying to put out the drydock blaze.

From the headline and the artist's cartoon, one would infer that the mayor of San Francisco was butting in where he wasn't wanted. But that would be a false inference according to your own story, which stated, ". . .Marin firemen tried in vain to douse the flames. . . The San Francisco fireboat was then called for by the Coast Guard. . ."

You owe Mayor Alioto and your readers an apology for publishing this obviously false headline and cartoon. You should chastize the Marin firemen and the Coast Guard for not allowing the drydock to burn up.

More Information On Buses Needed

It is a well known fact that Marin County is one of the wealthiest counties in the country — at the same time, it has provided no public transportation. This really is sad because Marin County is situated so that it is absolutely impossible for one to travel throughout the county without a car.

At long last a Marin Transit service has started but I think this necessary service will fail if the public remains uninformed of the bus schedules and locations of the various loading zones. . .

Let's get on the ball and have public transportation that is up to par with our county.

Big Unions Deserve Their Share Of Blame

Many people blame "big business" for most of our ills now. And of course we have to add "big government."

But how about "big unions"? They seem to have achieved first place in that category. They are trying to run both government and business.

Long Hair Is Symbol Of Serious Alienation

DEERFIELD, MASS. — The lot of the commencement speaker in these times is not a happy one. The walkout is a form of protest so mild as to make the speaker and the others on the platform positively grateful. Rising to utter a few carefully chosen words, you cannot but recall other horrendous forms protest has taken.

In another day platitudes came trippingly off the tongue. The earnest young graduates were facing a challenge. Their elders had faltered, stopped short of the goal. Now youth must seize the torch and carry on to shape the brave, new world shining on the distant horizon. That stuff today would be a sure invitation to something worse than a walkout.

A great deal of nonsense has been written about the generation gap. And adding to that often-fatuous accumulation is a risk. Charles Reich's "The Greening of America," which stayed at the top of the best-sellers list for so long, is a prime example. In consciousness III, the last section, Reich says that bell-bottom trousers, rock music and other attributes of the new life style will make over the country if only the oldsters can overcome their inhibitions.

BUT, FATUOUS though much of the comment is, the division is real enough. The long hair, the deliberately disreputable dress, the resistance to all the status symbols of the old order — these are the surface irritants that set fathers to quarrelling with sons over the breakfast table.

The deeper sources of alienatior go down to the war; the immorality as many see it of bombing undefended villages and helpless peoples; the appalling total of civilian casualties — men, women, children. The older generation too often fails to appreciate the intensity of this conviciton. It is dismissed as merely another aberration like long hair and dirty blue jeans. Fathers and sons clash with a bitterness that seems often to make reconciliation impossible.

The young who simply pull out, daughters as well as sons, are the cause of profound sorrow. Police headquarters in the favorite cop-out cities — San Francisco is high on the list — get hundreds of appeals from parents. The want-ad sections of the newspapers and the underground weeklies are filled with: "Mary Jones: Please call home collect to let us know where you are."

WHAT, THEN, to say to a doubting generation seeming to reject all the values of the past? Has protest become merely a conditioned reflex? Are these mass rallies as mindless as the movements of the lemmings, those mouselike creatures that end by pushing themselves into the sea off Norway and Sweden?

One may ask the degree to which though, the painful process of thought, enters into the individual's decision. So much unreason, irrationality, goes into the vilification of the position. A four-letter word shouted over a bull horn is a confession of impoverishment of mind and spirit. The often-quoted words of Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes have a special force today:

"If there is any principle of the constitution that more imperatively calls for attachment than any other, it is the principle of free thought — not free thought for those who agree with us, but freedom for the thought that we hate."

THE FREE TRADE in ideas, the test of truth in the market place, was a fundamental in Holmes's philosophy as in the New England from which he came. The New England preparatory schools with their ancient lineage and religious and idealistic backgrounds have not been immune from the troubles growing out of the generation gap. Since the enrollment in these schools is mostly from middle- and upper-middle-income families, they have had more than their share of the revolt of the young in all its manifestations.

Someone suggested recently that if the young from privileged backgrounds want to cop out and reject the perquisites and advantage to which they were born, let them go and their places can be filled from lower down in the scale. That is the kind of easy answer which is really no answer at all.

War Could Complete East Pakistan Tragedy

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI FOREIGN NEWS ANALYST

The human suffering resulting from Pakistan's civil war scarcely can be overstated. But as victims of cholera and starvation die in uncounted thousands and the number of refugees pouring across the Indian border from East Pakistan reaches an estimated five million, one thing more could make the tragedy complete.

That is the very real possibility of war between Pakistan and India.

An American diplomat in Dacca, capital of East Pakistan, has estimated the chances "just under 50-50."

AT THE ROOT of the problem are the refugees whose numbers include both Moslem Bengalis of East Pakistan and Hindus of whom some 10 million normally reside in East Pakistan.

In India there is a suspicion that Pakistan President Yahya Khan intends to push all of the Hindus out of East Pakistan as part of his determination to achieve a military solution to East Pakistan's secessionist movement.

There is further the matter of providing medical care and food for the refugees, cost of which is estimated at a minimum of $10 million a month.

The United States reportedly plans to contribute half of the cost for the next 90 days.

Among the donations have been $2.4 million from Great Britain and the promise of more, unlimited aid. Australia's relief organization, Austcare, has launched a drive for $5 million to assist the refugees. The 7Austrial government is contributing $500,000 in relief supplies.

Other pledges of aid have come from Belgium, Finland, Norway, West Germany, Canada, Denmark and Japan.

WESTERN RELIEF officials estimate that in the Indian state of Wsst Bengal alone some 20 million cholera shots will be needed to protect the local population and the regugees whose numbers have doubled and tripled the populations of communities along the border.

Reports from both sides of the border indicate the Indian army is keeping to its promise to stay within its own frontiers.

But Pakistani "freedom fighters" who train inside India and strike against the Pakistan army across the border, and Pakistani shelling of the frontier provide major irritants between the two countries.

Indian Prime Minister Indira Gandhi's sympathies openly are with the East Pakistanis. Toward the conflict itself she had kept a hands off attitude but has warned:

"If the world does not take heed, we shall be constrained to take all measures as may be necessary to insure our own security and the preservation of our social and economic life."

OTHER INDIAN government officials have said India cannot cope with the millions of reguees indefinitely and that eventually they must be returned to Pakistan by force if necessary.

What Mrs. Gandhi has done is to warn the major powers clearly that they have a stake in the Pakistani conflict not only as it affects Pakistan but India as well. A war between Pakistan and India could bring in Red China and a shift in the world balance of power which other nations could not ignore.

ART BUCHWALD

You Can't Outlaw Handgun —It's Symbol Of Virility

WASHINGTON — The bleeding hearts in this country are starting to scream again for the registration of handguns or the licensing of their owners.

Fortunately for those of us who love guns, the Nixon administration has rejected any legislation that would offend the gun lobbies in this country.

The suggestion by the National Commission on the Reform of Criminal Laws to ban the possessioc of handguns by all except the police has been rejected by the president and the attorney general as politically unsound.

But despite this, the antigun people persist in wanting to disarm the nation.

WALLABY HORNBLOWER, chief lobbyist for the National Cheap Handgun Association, is not concerned about the recent bad publicity that handguns are getting.

"We go through this nonsense every few years," Wallaby told me. "But America will never give up its handguns."

"Thank God for that," I said.

"The trouble with the media is that they're always writing about the bad things a handgun does. When a cop gets shot with a handgun, they put it on the front page — or when some bank gets held up they play it up big if a gun is used. But you never see the good stories about handguns or read about the pleasure they give people."

"I'LL SAY YOU don't," I agreed.

"The newspapers never write about the fun people have at target practice or shooting rabbits or practicing how to fast-draw in front of a mirror."

"Why don't they?" I demanded.

"Because it's not news," Wallaby said. "Do you know for every person who uses a handgun in a robbery there are a thousnd gun owners who have never shot anybody?"

"Yet you never hear about them," I said in disgust.

"But," said Wallaby, chuckling, "the United States will never ban the handgun."

"How can you be that sure?"

"BECAUSE," HE SAID, "the gun is a sex symbol."

"It is?"

"Most American men who own handguns have virility problems. The gun is an extension of their manhood. If you take the gun away from a man in this country, you're emasculating him."

"I never thought of that," I said. "But it's true."

"The beautiful thing about it is that they don't know it. Most gun owners will fight any legislation because they think it's unconstitutional or an invasion of their property rights.

"But subconsciously what they really fear is impotence. When you ask someone to register his gun, you're really asking him to register his manhood."

"IT'S LIKE TRYING to get people to buy a license for sex," I said.

"Exactly. Those of us in the business have known this for years. You don't think gun registration would be such an emotional issue if sex weren't involved, do you?"

"No wonder you're so relaxed about Congress not passing any strong gun legislation."

"Every American child, from the day he can watch westerns on television, knows that guns and virility go together, and you can't have one without the other. So when you talk about disarming the people in this country, you're dealing with a Freudian problem, which no gun owner will face up to."

"Then what you're saying is if we have to choose between crime and protecting the American male's manhood, we'd rather put up with the crime."

Wallaby smiled. "You said it, I didn't."

A Smoky Relic

Not long ago, almost all sawmills had one or two wigwam burners to get rid of sawdust, odd bits of wood, planings and bark. Now these smoky relics are being phased out in the interest of cleaner air and more economic use of waste forest products.

Much of it goes to the pulp mills. Sawdust is used as garden mulch or pressed into handy, little fireplace logs. Bark finds its way into the garden too. In big mills much is used to fuel the power boilers. Anything that's left after these uses is bulldozed into land fill.

They were colorful old smokers, but we can't really say we are sorry to see them going. It made us a bit sad to see all that useful stuff go up in smoke.

REMEMBER WHEN?

10 YEARS AGO

JUNE 12, 1961

A federal judge lifted a restraining order which barred "freedom riders" from Alabama.

Seventy-two U. S. guerrilla warfare experts arrived in Saigon to help train South Vietnamese troops to fight the Viet Cong.

20 YEARS AGO

JUNE 12, 1951

J. Paul Leonard of San Francisco State College presented the Sausalito School District board a report on his survey of the district which recommended sweeping changes. Among them was abolition of special teachers for various subjects in the elementary schools.

The California State Senate passed a bill consolidating all Marin's inferior courts in a single municipal court, and sent it to the Assembly.

U.S. Command Reports North Vietnam Bombings

SAIGON (UPI)—The U.S. command today reported another in a series of attacks by American fighter-bombers against Communist antiaircraft sites inside North Vietnam. For the first time in the war, the Communists shot down a Cambodian helicopter.

Military spokesmen said a U.S. Air Force F105 Thunderchief fighter-bomber penetrated two miles inside North Vietnam Friday and fired a Shrike missile at a radar controlled Communist missile site four miles west of Dong Hoi.

Results of the attack were unknown.

Military sources said it was believed the F105 was escorting B52 bombers over neighboring Laos when the Communist missile battery's radar "locked on" the bombers, indicating they were preparing to fire.

It was the 44th such strike which the U.S. command calls "protective reaction" this year in North Vietnam and the 111th since Nov. 1, 1968 when former President Lyndon B. Johnson ordered a halt in the bombing of North Vietnam.

The area involved Friday was within 25 miles of Ban Karai Pass on the Laotian border, one of three entrances to the Ho Chi Minh Trail over which the North Vietnamese truck men and supplies into South Vietnam and Cambodia.

A communique from Phnom Penh said Communist gunners Friday shot down an American-supplies Cambodian Air Force helicopter 12 miles east of Phnom Penh.

It was the first Cambodian helicopter to be lost to antiaircraft fire since the fighting began in Cambodia. The four-man crew of the UH1 Huey jet helicopter was reported missing in Communist-held territory.

A second helicopter was hit by gunfire in the same incident.

Open House Set At Art Center

Dancing, music, films and an art and crafts exhibit will be featured at an open house sponsored by the Sausalito Art Cen-Center next Saturday from 2 to 10 p.m.

Center director Robert Ellis said the program will also include demonstration workshops in painting, ceramics, photography, etching, silkscreen, dancing and ferro-concrete construction. Refreshments will be served.

Further information can be obtained from the center, 630 Nevada Street.

Plane Crash Injures One

A Mill Valley woman was injured last night when the plane in which she and her husband were flying was forced to make a crash landing when it ran out of gas near Gnoss Field in Novato.

Jacqualine Carlson, 40, of 309 Tennessee Valley Road, was treated for collarbone and breastbone separations at Marin General Hospital. Her husband, Morris, 42 the pilot, was unjured.

The plane, a Piper Cherokee 180, made a crash landing about 1:30 a.m. alongside Atherton Avenue near Bugeia Lane, Novato police said.

Police said they were about to start clearing Highway 101 for the landing when the plane crashed.

Damage to the plane's wing, landing gear and propeller was estimated at several thousand dollars, according to Carlson.

Carlson, a pilot for 18 years, told the Independent-Journal today the forced landing was a mystery to him because he had taken on about three-and-a-half hours of fuel before taking off from Petaluma at 7:30 p.m., and estimated he had 90 minutes of fuel left when the craft went down.

"I still don't know why it happened," he said. "It sure was scary." Carlson is sales manager of Domasco Bakery Supply Co. in Oakland.

After leaving Petaluma, the couple flew to San Jose and picked up friends. From San Jose, they flew to Vacaville for dinner before returning their friends to San Jose.

The accident occurred when the couple was returning from San Jose to Petaluma.

Fresco Painting Workshop Set

A four-week workshop in fresco painting, taught by A. Garcia Alvarez, will begin June 21 at the Sausalito Art Center, 630 Nevada Street.

According to center director Robert A. Ellis, the three-hour classes will be held Monday through Friday and will include the entire fresco painting process, from preparation of the wall to the final painting.

Alvarez is an instructor in painting at the University of California at Berkeley.

Deadline for registering for the course is June 15 and further information can be obtained from the center.

New Marin Budget Hits 'Best Sellers'

Marin County's proposed 1971-72 budget, 372 pages of seemingly dry statistics and financial data, is a hot contender for the best-seller list.

County Auditor-Controller Michael Mitchell said yesterday that interested citizens have snapped up 820 copies of the budget since June 1. Only 30 copies remain in reserve for the board of supervisors' budget hearings that will begin at 9 a.m. Monday.

Judge Studying Abortion Case

I-J Special Report

REDWOOD CITY — A judge took under submission yesterday a case in which a Sausalito woman and a codefendant are challenging a law prohibiting distribution of "do it yourself" abortion information.

Before Judge W. Howard Hartley of San Mateo County Superior Court is a ruling by the District Court of Appeal that he should retry the cases of Patricia Marie Jean Maginnis, the Sausalitan, and Rowena Gurner.

The appellate court said the original trial did not properly link the defendants with the distribution when the case began almost four years ago.

Lt. Leonard Cardoza of the San Mateo sheriff's office testified yesterday he attended a meeting in 1967 at which the two women lectured on "do it yourself" abortion methods and distributed literature on the subject.

There was no cross examination.

In question is whether the law conflicts with a constitutional amendment that guarantees the right of free speech. The late Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes held that the amendment applies unless a person "shouts 'fire' in a crowded theater."

Hartley indicated he will rule after briefs are filed by attorneys within 90 days. Paul N. Halvonik, attorney for the American Civil Liberties Union, is representing the women.

Miss Maginnis, 42, has long advocated unrestricted abortion. She has been in and out of jail, has had three abortions herself — two of them self-induced — and estimates she has helped more than 15,000 other women obtain abortions.

She has conducted "do it yourself" abortion classes in Marin and has passed out literature on county sidewalks, but has not been arrested by Marin authorities.

Plan Eyed To Combine Draft, Vote Registration

By BENJAMIN SHORE
I-J Correspondent

WASHINGTON — Selective Service offices throughout California soon may provide an extra service for young men who stop by to register for the draft on their 18th birthday — deputy voter registrars to sign them up to vote in federal elections.

California Secretary of State Edmund G. Brown Jr. was in Washington last week to propose such a plan to Draft Director Curtis Tarr.

Tarr rejected Brown's idea of having outside registrars sit in draft offices, but said he might allow draft board clerks to become deputy registrars.

"Either way is OK with me," Brown said afterward.

Brown said California's draft director, Carlos Ogden, "likes the idea but will defer to Tarr's decision."

Brown said he had not sought a reaction from Gov. Ronald Reagan.

The same day Brown met with Tarr, the Senate passed an amendment to the draft law by Sen. Thomas Eagleton, D-Mo. allowing 18-year-olds registering for the draft to register to vote at the same time. However, a governor could choose not to allow this procedure in his state.

As for 18-year-old girls, who have no legitimate need to report to a draft office, Brown suggests that voter registrars be available in Social Security offices when girls sign up for identification cards. He planned to propose this to Social Security Administration officials here.

Brown said 200,000 persons become eligible to register to vote each year in California.

"Only 51 per cent of eligible Californians are registered," he said, "and this despite thousands of temporary registrars who seek voters around election time."

He said that a recent survey of the state's 14 largest counties revealed that of those between 18 and 21 years of age who are registering, 59 per cent have registered as Democrats, 20 per cent as Republicans, with the bulk of the balance stating no preference and the remainder joining minor parties.

As City Administrator McCown Handles Millions, But Once Spent Billions

By THERON NEWELL

One man knows San Rafael better than anyone else.

He may not know as many people as some old-timers, because he has not been here that long. But he knows the city and its workings.

He knows the city's streets and the flow of traffic on them. He watches as pedestrians and cars move about the city, trying to find solutions to the traffic bottlenecks and the scarcity of parking.

He watches as the pedestrians walk around the city, studying their habits and shopping patterns.

HE KNOWS THE city's finances, even down to the amount taken in by individual traffic meters on the streets and in the city's parking lots.

That man is the city manager, James H. McCown, who directs the six-million-dollar city government machinery with the ease of someone who knows every detail of his job.

And he should. Because, for most of his life, he handled billions instead of millions. Instead of having fewer than 300 personnel under him, he had thousands.

HIS HAIR IS thinning and getting a little gray, and he is probably a little heavier than in his younger days, but he still carries himself with a military bearing, which bespeaks his background.

McCown was born 58 years ago in Huntsville, Ala., when it was a village of about 1,000 population. Today, with the Redstone Arsenal located there, it has mushroomed into a city of 100,000.

His family moved north, and McCown received his Bachelor's Degree from Carroll College at Waukesha, Wis., in 1933. He went to work forNorthern States Power Co.

WHEN HE LEFT college, he had a commission as a reserve second lieutenant in the army. He was called to active duty a year later, in 1934.

The military was to be his career until he retired in 1963.

He was first attached to the Sixth Corps Area with headquarters in Chicago, and was stationed there for five years. During that time, he became a graduate of the University of Chicago School of business.

Later in his career, he was stationed in North Carolina and attended the Army's finance school at Duke University, Durham, N.C.

IT WAS WHILE in service that he put this formal business training to its longest and best use. He was on special assignment to the U.S. Treasury Department from the Pentagon. Then in 1943 he was transfered to Fort Mason, where he learned to like the Bay Area.

Some of his other assignments were Panama, New Guinea, Philippine Islands and Australia.

HE MARRIED Virginia Stokes of Indianapolis, Ind., in 1946. The couple has two sons, James H. McCown Jr., 22, a student at Chico State College, and Robert K. McCown, 19, a student at the College of Marin.

McCown transferred from the Army Air Corps to the Air Force in 1948. While stationed at Wright-Patterson Air Force Base, Ohio, he took his Master's Degree in finance in 1950.

He was in the first group of officers to transfer to the Air Force and was made director of finance in the Air Materiel Command at the Air Force Finance Center in Denver, Colo. There he handled all procurement for the Air Force.

HE WAS PROMOTED to colonel in 1951 and returned to Wright-Patterson Air Force Base as director of finance. He was then in charge of all central procurement for the Air Force.

PHOTOGRAPHED in front of the San Rafael City Hall where he has his offices, San Rafael City Administrator James H. McCown is the chief administrative officer responsible for a municipal government with a six-million-dollar annual budget. But as a colonel and procurement officer for the Air Force, McCown was accustomed to dealing in billions — not millions — of dollars. And so, while he approaches his present job with a keen awareness of the problems and a concern for city finances, he is not overawed by his tasks. (Independent-Journal photo)

When he began his work with the Air Force, that service had four or five billion dollars worth of all types of equipment — planes, parts and everything else necessary to running the new military branch.

During his term as head of procurement, the Air Materiel Command expanded until the Air Force owned $78 billion dollars worth of equipment and supplies, all under his direction.

McCOWN SUPERVISED 30 offices throughout the United States in their purchasing for the Air Force. Many of these were on the West Coast because the major aircraft firms were based here.

Among these firms was Boeing in Seattle. When McCown first started buying B-52 bombers from Boeing, the price was 20 million dollars per plane; but, as more were purchased, the price dropped to eight million dollars per plane.

During this period, there were several accounts in the Pentagon which would honor McCown's signature on checks up to a million dollars, he said.

HE WAS TRANSFERRED to the center for Air Materiel for Europe as controller of the depot there. He had to keep track of 270,000 items charged to the Air Force throughout Europe and in Asia Minor as far east as Pakistan.

From 1956 to 1958, he was comptroller of the Fourth Air Force at Hamilton Air Force Base, where he learned to like the Novato area.

He had served for many years as a colonel specializing in finance and purchasing, and was not a general officer, so he did not receive a promotion to general, he said.

HE RETIRED IN 1963 from the Air Force at Wright-Patterson Air Force Base.

The following year he came to Marin County and bought a house at 17 Truman Drive, Novato.

"I wanted a job in this location where I knew the climate was mild and I could be happy," he said. He took the position of finance officer in San Pablo, which he held from 1964 to 1968.

HE RENEWED his acquaintance with Dan E. Anderson, San Rafael city manager, whom he had first met in 1954.

"Anderson asked me to come to San Rafael as finance officer," McCown said. He accepted and became finance director April 2, 1968.

After Anderson died of a heart attack, McCown was named interim city manager on Aug. 4, 1969. Then on Oct. 21, he was named city manager.

"San Rafael has an excellent city staff and I have tried to encourage the staff to work together. It is an excellent organization," he said.

HE PRAISED THE fire and police departments for their efficiency.

McCown said that he hopes that the city will continue on its

"What Do All Those Terms On Hang Tags Mean?"

Here are additional terms defined by the U.S. Dept. of Commerce booklet "Fibers and Fabrics."

Heat Sensitivity: Property of a material which causes softening, shrinking, melting or discoloration when heat is applied.

Heat Set: The use of heat on man-made fabrics to stabilize size or shape, or to make pleats or creases durable to repeated laundering or drycleaning.

Pilling Resistance: Resistance to the formation of pills (bunches of balls of tangled fibers) on the fabric surface.

Sanforized: A trademark indicating that fabrics so labeled conform to the shrinkage requirements of the trade name owner not to shrink more than 1% in length or width.

Wash-and-Wear: A term applied to garments which satisfactorily retain their original appearance after repeated wear and suitable home laundering with little or no pressing or ironing.

Water Resistance: Resistance to wetting and penetration by water.

Wrinkle Resistance: The property of a fabric which enables it to resist the formation of wrinkles. "Crease Resistance" is a term commonly used for the term "Wrinkle Resistance."

A Marin Profile — City Administrator Knows San Rafael

James McCown Makes A Point Of Studying Town And People

present policy of annexing areas contiguous to the city.

"These annexations should be in the best interest of both the old and new city areas," he said.

However, such areas must be brought up to the standards of the city in such facilities as sewers and streets, McCown noted. Then the city would provide services such as police and fire protection, and recreation programs.

"IT WILL TAKE careful analysis and preparation before an area such as the remainder of Terra Linda is annexed to the city," he said.

Residents there pay a higher tax rate than do property owners in San Rafael. But there are problems with such things as swimming pool indebtedness, and the special districts there, that must be ironed out before any serious attempt could be made to annex to the city, McCown said.

Another example is the Country Club area where there are water mains, but where most of the houses are on septic tanks, he said.

HE THINKS THAT the Bayside area may soon get a sewer system so it can annex to the city. This could be done by assessment districts, he said.

McCown particularly wants to eliminate the "islands" within the present city area and can foresee the expansion of San Rafael northward until the city limits of San Rafael and Novato meet at Big Rock Ridge.

"There's no question that ultimately Novato will be the largest city in the county. It has many miles of open areas into which it can expand," he said.

McCOWN DOES NOT think that Novato will ever become the business and industrial rival of San Rafael.

"San Rafael has the jump on Novato in business and industry. Novato just can't seem to get organized and get a workable plan," said McCown, who is still a resident of Novato.

He sees San Rafael developing two separate, major shopping centers — the downtown area and Northgate.

"NORTHGATE HAS a fine future with Sears going in there, and there is a bright future for downtown San Rafael because it is getting more specialty shops, and some of these are very good ones," he said.

"Of course, the courthouse square is the key to downtown San Rafael. Some new groups are interested in developing it, and one of these days, it will get going," he added.

The Smith Ranch area holds the key to the industrial future of San Rafael, McCown thinks.

"IT IS BEHIND the Northgate Industrial Park and would be hidden by the hills," he said. "That way people would not see the industry from the highway."

The city manager recognizes that the city has some problems, although it is in good shape in most areas, including finances.

"Traffic and parking are the biggest problems in the downtown area," he said. "We must expect these to get worse and plan to meet the challenge."

ONE OF THE main functions of a city manager is to recognize problems before they become serious, he said.

"We must develop a long-term capital improvement program," he declared.

Several years ago there was a movement to get a municipal golf course. "The city could not afford it at the time, and probably could not now; but if we plan ahead, these things can be realized," McCown said.

HE THINKS THAT the recently purchased Black Canyon ranch should be kept as open space.

"As the areas in the county fill up with homes and apartments, the people will need a place which has been left in its natural state," he said.

Asked about his hobbies, the athletic city manager said he enjoys all sports. He plays golf and likes to get out into the open spaces. Then he paused.

"I GUESS MY work is really my hobby; I dearly love my job," he said. "I have always been the public service type. It does not matter whether it is national or local; the only difference is the scope of the work."

"I like people," McCown stressed.

He likes to watch them as they work and play, and observe them where they live. That is why he spends so much of his off-working hours just roaming around San Rafael. He wants to know every aspect of the city and its people.

THEN A FAR-AWAY look came into his blue eyes.

"It's been a long time since I've played a game of golf, and I still want to see the Giants play."

That is the man who is at the wheel, steering the city of San Rafael, a man devoted to his job, his city and its people.

Music In The School Bus —

The Room That Travels

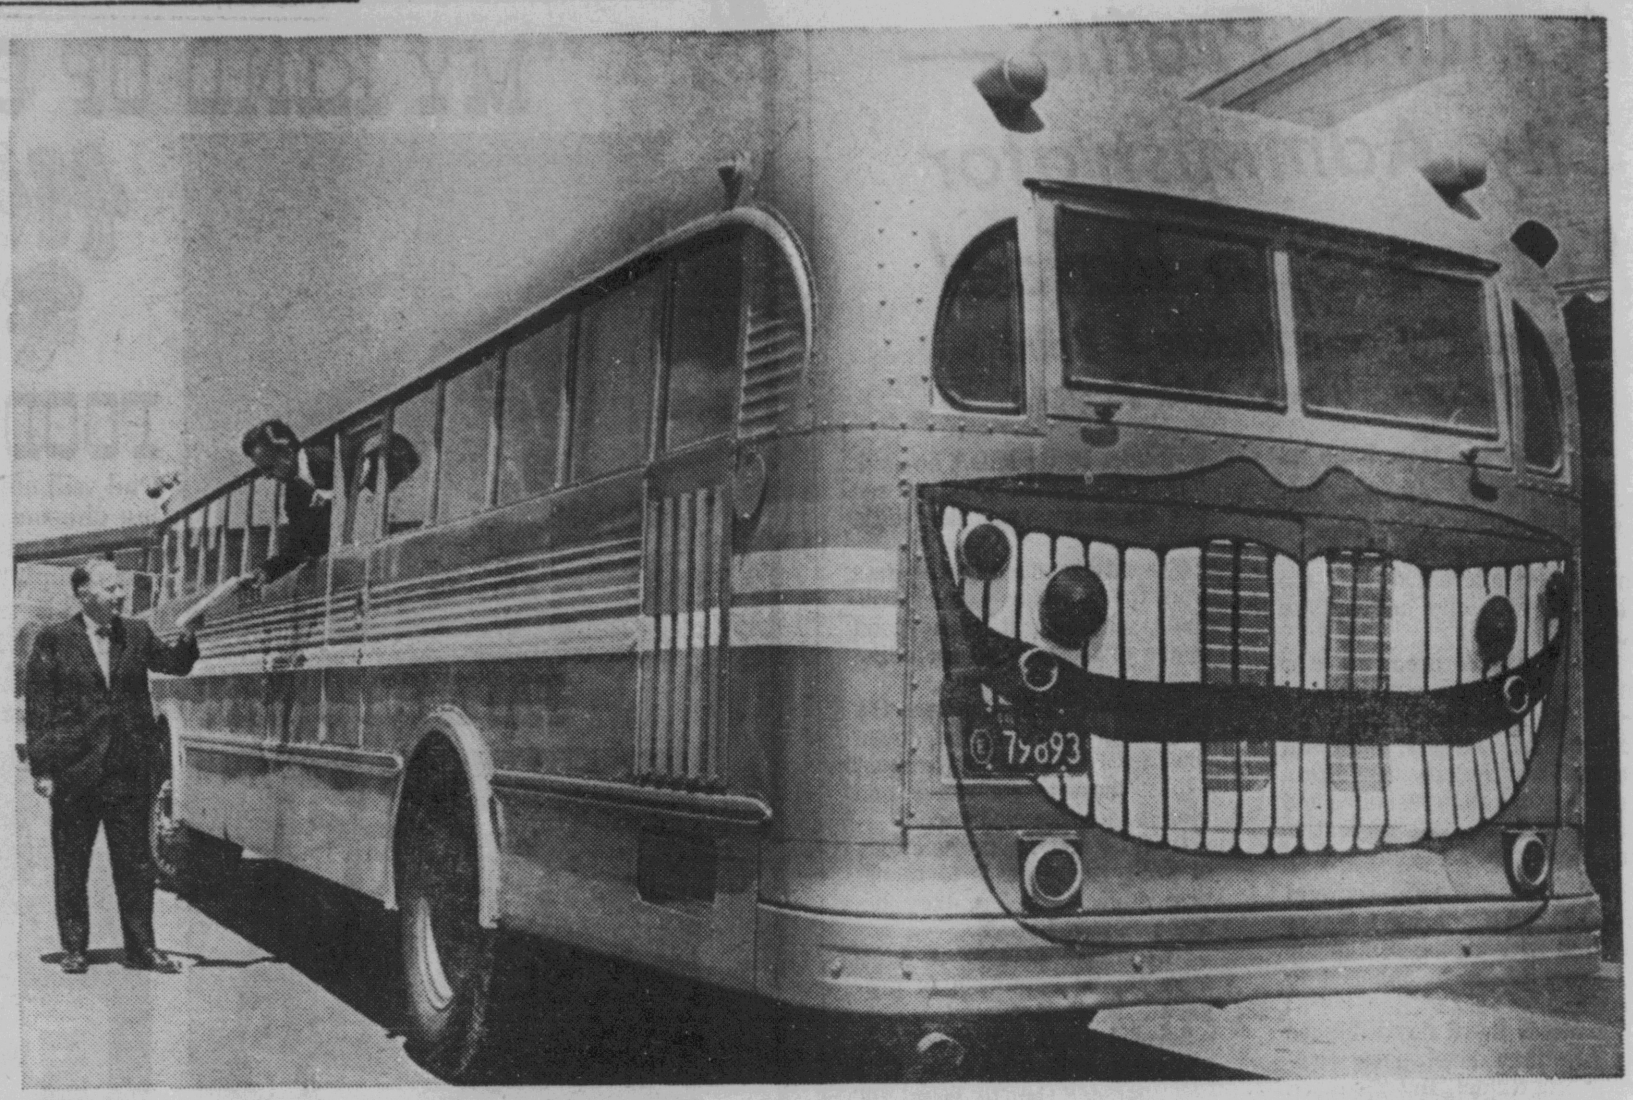
By DON KEOWN

Without the necessity for a bond issue or a special tax levy, seven of San Rafael's 10 elementary schools have grown by one room — a music room.

And actually, it is the same room at all seven schools.

A large and surplus bus of the 73-passenger size and transit type has been converted into a mobile music room for the use of string instrument students in the schools.

It is the answer devised jointly by Hugo Rinaldi who heads the music program in the San Rafael City Schools, by Charles Condrotte who is the business manager for the district, and by music instructor Robert Jacobson to an acute space shortage problem.



THE SCHOOL BUS converted by the San Rafael City Schools district into a mobile music room for use for string instrument classes at seven of its schools is given an inspection by two of the men responsible for the idea, Hugo Rinaldi, music program head, and Charles Condrotte, district business manager, standing outside the bus. Some interior refurnishing and a new exterior paint job gave the schools the traveling music room for $1,230. (Independent Journal photos)

IN THE PAST the music students have had to share the limited space available for such special purposes at the schools with a variety of other programs.

This resulted in such occurrences as the cancellation of the string music classes twice within one week at one local school where the quarters were in use by another group with a higher priority.

Music teachers sometimes taught in hallways or in the teachers' rooms, which were totally inadequate for that purpose.

"It just was not music instruction," says Rinaldi.

AND RINALDI, Condrotte and Jacobson were realistic enough to recognize that a tight budget situation made impossible the construction of true music rooms at any of the schools.

But there was the big bus sitting idle. It had been condemned two years earlier by the California Highway Patrol because of its braking system. That defect had been repaired, but the bus had not been returned to service because of a slowdown in enrollment.

This, the three men decided, would become the needed music room, at least for the string instrument pupils. A classroom on wheels, it could be driven from school to school and used wherever needed.

The conversion program was a simple one.

THE SEATS, OF course, were removed, and replaced with chairs more suited to the needs of young musicians, plus music cases.

Most important, the bus was carpeted — not just the floor, but the sides as well, for acoustical purposes.

And the bus-become-a-music-room was repainted to get away from the traditional school bus yellow.

Rinaldi has dubbed the converted bus "The Music Man."

AND IT IS, he says, ideal for groups of as many as 20 youthful musicians. It can be parked conveniently close to the school entrance, yet far enough from the building so that the sound creates no problems.

Rinaldi says the bus idea — the conversion cost but $1,230 — has an economical aspect in addition to the obvious saving over the construction of music room facilities. Whereas in the past, each school had to have its own set of school-owned instruments for student use, now a single set can remain in the bus, travel with it, and be used at all the schools.

There is another saving — time.

IN THE makeshift, multi-purpose quarters used previously, Rinaldi notes, something like six minutes out of every 30-minute session were spent in moving and setting up the chairs and music racks. Now those remain in place. And the youngsters get a full half-hour of music education.

Rinaldi says there is a very real possibility that the bus

may be put into use at all 10 elementary schools on a regular basis. Certainly the other three schools will be serviced by it at least periodically. And something like 300 boys and girls will be affected.

And if it works out well for the string instrument classes, then the brass instrumentalists may also wind up making use of it.

IN THE SAN Rafael schools, pupils kindergarten through the sixth grade all take some kind of music education — in the choir, if not in one of the instrumental groups.

The classes meet for 30-minute sessions twice a week. "We try to keep them general enough to interest all the boys and girls," says Rinaldi.

The Music Man, Rinaldi admits, is something of a product of desperation, not as good, perhaps, as a regular music room or classroom, "but better by far than what we had."

"AS LONG AS we can teach, we're satisfied," says Rinaldi. "And we can teach in the Music Man."

Condrotte says the music students may be pioneering a program that will prove applicable to other departments in the schools.

There are a few other buses, although of the non-transit type, that are considered "semi-surplus." If the music program works out well, these may be put into use as mobile housing for other special activities now feeling the space squeeze.

"RIGHT NOW, these buses are used mainly for field trips," says Condrotte. "And it might just work out that it would be more economical to put these buses to regular use at the schools, and to charter buses for the field trips."

And the surplus bus fleet might grow if the enrollment slowdown continues.

To Rinaldi and Condrotte, the Music Man seems almost like finding a new classroom for each school.

Seven classrooms for $1,230?

The two figure that even the most cost-conscious taxpayer isn't going to quarrel with that kind of a bargain.

TWO STRING instrumentalists at Davidson Junior High School practice their music in the converted school bus under the helpful supervision of teacher Robert Jacobson.

AT THE STEERING wheel of his school bus-mobile music room, Robert Jacobson prepares to leave the Davidson School grounds for another school and more classes.

Charles A. Lauff — 80 Years A Marinite

Bolinas Pioneer Was A Source Of Colorful Tales Of Early Years

(Editor's Note: This is another of the manuscripts on early-day Marin County personalities and events completed for the Independent-Journal Marin Magazine by Historian Florence Donnelly prior to her death.)

By FLORENCE DONNELLY

One has come to expect that California's pioneer figures would be colorful personalities — men who led adventurous lives with zest and courage.

Charles August Lauff was certainly one who fulfilled all those expectations.

His life was crammed with adventure. And in addition, there are to be found in his biography a touch of romance and even an aura of mystery.

THE MYSTERY centers principally upon his place of birth. Was it Germany, France or Great Britain?

The great historian, Hubert Howe Bancroft, in his "Pioneer Register," listed Lauff as German-born. But the certificate of United States citizenship issued to Charles A. Lauff on May 11, 1867, states that he was "late a subject of the Queen of Great Britain and Ireland."

And the Marin County Register in 1898 adds to the confusion by declaring Lauff a native of France.

Indeed, Lauff himself is said to have given various countries of origin at different times, although he favored France, perhaps because it was then regarded as a romantic nation and its people were much in favor in California.

BE THAT AS it may, Lauff was a handsome man, slender, blue-eyed and dark-haired, the kind of figure who must have encouraged romantic speculation in his younger years as well as among later historians.

He claimed or was said to have been an acquaintance of the likes of John C. Fremont, Gen. Mariano Vallejo, Kit Carson and even the bandit Joaquin Murietta.

Certainly he was an intimate of such towering figures in early Marin County history as Capt. William Richardson, Don Timoteo Murphy and James Black.

He lived a long life, and his years were packed with diverse activities and excitement.

HE WAS A garrulous man, not at all adverse to talking about his past and his adventures. Even more importantly, he put down his memoirs in writing, unusual among the early settlers of Marin. And thus present generations are indebted to Charles A. Lauff for some of their best and most vivid word pictures of what life was like in our area in another time.

Lauff wrote that he was born Feb. 22, 1818, and that his widowed mother brought him to America when he was 5. He attended New York schools, and at 17 shipped before the mast on the bark Byron, bound for the coast of South America to hunt sea elephants for their oil.

"During a severe storm we drifted through the Straits of Magellan and the vessel was wrecked," he wrote. "I climbed on a floating spar and after drifting for three days was picked up and taken aboard the Warren, bound for the whaling grounds off Sitka, Alaska."

THE WARREN was in Alaskan waters for many months, but when it returned to San Francisco Bay, it landed Charles Lauff at Sausalito. It was then he met William A. Richardson, an Englishman who had become a naturalized Mexican citizen and had built the first dwelling in Yerba Buena (San Francisco) outside the mission and presidio.

Richardson was made captain of the port and later granted the Rancho Saucelito.

Lauff was to tell of hunts made with Captain Richardson and a Captain Bull, who had a hide ship and who employed Lauff to buy hides and tallow. The three men killed elk and bear. And Richardson, according to Lauff, was "a great hand" with a riata (rope) as well as a gun.

Lauff made a number of trips along the coast buying hides and tallows. He then made a voyage to San Diego with his acquisitions. There the hides were stored in large vats until they could be shipped east.

AFTER RETURNING to San Francisco, Lauff signed for a cruise on the Pisquame under Capt. J. B. R. Cooper, brother-in-law of General Vallejo, to Peru.

Upon his return, he went to work for Captain Cooper on his ranch holdings at Ross Landing or Kentfield. And when he rode into San Rafael, he met Don Timoteo Murphy — "the king of the whole country" — and their friendship began.

Later he was to meet such other early Marin leaders as Richard Reed, Peter Sais and Pablo Briones.

"Murphy," said Lauff, "was a big, powerful fellow, and the finest looking man I ever saw on horseback. He was an expert with the lariat."

LAUFF ALSO told of a ride over the old White Hill Trail to the Nicasio Valley. "It was a tough trail. There were about 200 Indians in Nicasio, and they treated me fine. I had an old pistol that I traded to them for two mustangs."

Years later, in 1916, he was to relate a story of how one of the Nicasio Indians with bow and arrow saved him from a wounded, angered elk.

When the Mexican War broke out, Lauff joined the American troops. In so doing, he must have alienated many of his friends, Californios who remained loyal to the Mexican government and who suffered indignities at the hands of General Fremont and his men.

It most certainly put a crimp in the romance that Lauff had going with pretty Maria Jesus Briones, daughter of the Gregorio Briones who were strong supporters of the Mexican cause.

BANCROFT HAS written that Lauff served as an officer with the California Battalion, Company B, Artillery. And Lauff himself claimed that "I was the first man to raise the American Flag for Commodore Sloat at Monterey."

He saw action and served with distinction before being discharged from service in Los Angeles. He then returned to Marin and went to work for Timothy Murphy in San Rafael and the Lucas Valley.

"I also hunted sea otters for Murphy . . . and I was employed by Rafael Garcia for a time on his rancho in Marin and in charge of his ranch in Mendocino," Lauff said.

LAUFF LEFT A priceless description of a St. Raphael's Day observance in San Rafael in October of 1847 while he was employed by Murphy:

"Don Timoteo sent for all the residents of Marin to have a barbecue and a general good time. Murphy, who was six feet, three inches tall, was proud of his ability as a rifle shot and loved to display his skill before a gathering.

"The day before the event the settlers began to arrive, (among them) Capt. William A. Richardson, dressed in a black suit, wearing a wide sombrero with long boots, and riding a beautiful black horse. His saddle and bridle were mounted in silver and gold.

"MURPHY HAD a beautiful white stallion with a magnificent silver mounted bridle and saddle. When I told him a guest was in sight, he mounted this charger and accompanied by 10 vaqueros, dashed down the slope to meet them."

Included among the visitors, according to Lauff, were Spanish dignitaries "literally covered with gold braid and gold trappings."

In contrast were the more roughly garbed hunters from the Tomales Bay area.

By name, Lauff listed such guests as Gregorio Briones, Rafael Garcia, Bartolome Bojorques, Ramon Mesa and James Black, all leading figures in pioneer Northern California history.

"WHEN ALL the guests arrived, the host housed most of them in the old mission," the narrator who had witnessed the event continued.

"At 6 o'clock the dinner of cooked antelope, bear and elk was ready, and the feast began. Wild ducks and quail were cooked on skewers and served to the guests by the Indian servants. Murphy had some wine made from the mission grapes and the guests drank their fill. He (Murphy) was the toastmaster . . .

"After the feast everyone gathered around an immense fire that was burning where the corner of Fourth and C streets is today.

"THE INDIANS were arriving from outside settlements, and in their paint and feathers

Story Of A Marin Pioneer

Bolinas Man Knew All Early Figures

ON LAUFF RANCH ROAD in Bolinas stands the hacienda of Don Gregorio Briones. Parts of the old house date back to 1849, it is believed. Don Gregorio, holder of an immense land grant with many trees, died in his hacienda in 1863, a year after the marriage of his daughter, Maria Jesus, to Charles A. Lauff. The daughter inherited a part of the Briones holdings at Bolinas.

presented a wonderful sight around the fire . . .

"The vaqueros, who accompanied their principals, brought along their guitars and played music and sang songs. It was past midnight when the jolly party retired.

"Dawn found many of the guests riding over the beautiful green meadow that makes up the town of San Rafael today. Deer, antelope and quail were plentiful in the foothills and wild birds dotted the bay. The tide waters in those days reached E and First streets, which in later years was used as a wharf.

"AFTER A breakfast of antelope steaks, Don Timoteo was ready for the day's sport.

"The vaqueros had driven in a band of wild cattle and a few of these were in the corral. Thomas Wood of Tomales Bay was the first to challenge the crowd in riding a wild bronco. He was a daring rider and hurled the riata with marvelous skill.

"A spry colt mustang was brought out and the two Indians who mounted him bit the dust. 'Irish,' who was a clever horseman, was also thrown. Wood mounted the mustang, and not only remained on him, but rode him back to the corral amid the plaudits of the spectators.

"Wood then tackled a wild bull by catching him with the riata, throwing him to the ground and dragging him along behind his horse.

"DON TIMOTEO, too, displayed his skill. He had an immense kennel of dogs, and, with them, he dashed down the valley in pursuit of two antelope that were feeding half a mile below. Before the two antelope could reach the clearing, he had bagged them, and then carried them back on his horse.

"The program continued all day with racing, jumping, horse riding, every sort of stunt was proper. Another barbecue and powwow at night brought the celebration to a close . . ."

Lauff remained with Murphy until he was caught up in the excitement of the gold discoveries to the north.

"NEARLY ALL the vaqueros of Marin left their herds and dashed for the fields," he was to recall. "I knew the upper bay country, and shipped aboard a scow landing at Sacramento. I went to Coloma, and after washing gravel and 'gophering' in the ground for six months, I returned to Sacramento to find it now a thriving settlement."

The fortune he had hoped for failed to materialize, and so Lauff turned to another career. He began piloting boats between San Francisco and Sacramento, and San Francisco and Stockton, and was the first man to take a boat through what became known as New River.

He became a partner in the ownership of a $10,000 schooner, and that ship paid off its investment on its first trip to Stockton, starting Lauff on the road to financial security.

LAUFF ALSO told of the success of another of his early-day Marin friends:

"I was in San Rafael in the

TWO OF the towering figures of early Marin County history with whom Charles A. Lauff was intimately acquainted were, at left, Capt. William Richardson, holder of the Rancho Saucelito grant, and at right, Don Timoteo Murphy, also a holder of huge Marin land grants and referred to by Lauff as "the king of the entire country." Lauff, in later years, was especially proud of his friendships with the two men, and reveled in telling stories of the times when he had enjoyed the hospitality of their homes. Both, said Lauff, were impressive men, talented riders and marksmen. And both took a special pleasure in the role of hosts for barbecues and other celebrations that drew huge gatherings.

The Man Who Was Mr. Pioneer Marin

fall of 1849 and my friend, James Miller, was engaged in farming and raising cattle in Santa Margarita Valley. He was a fine-looking man, industrious and honest. He was also a good business man, and the idea had struck him that meat would be very scarce in the gold country.

"He got 150 head of fine stock, and with 10 vaqueros, started overland with the herd. He encountered a good deal of trouble, but finally got to Marysville where he butchered the cattle and sold the meat for $1 to $1.25 a pound. The venture netted him a handsome sum, all of which was paid in gold dust . . ."

LAUFF ALSO described the Christmas hospitality he enjoyed at the William Richardson Saucelito hacienda in 1849 for which a hunting party had brought back bear, elk, antelope and deer for the feast.

"Our host," he said, "was a splendid character and dry and witty. He had a charming wife and she greeted us (a Captain Healy and Lauff) most cordially."

The dinner was followed, he recalled, by an impromptu musicale during which Mrs. Richardson sang several songs to a guitar accompaniment. Captain Healy provided Irish tunes and danced a lively jig.

In 1850 Lauff went to the Bolinas area where, he said, "I had procured a contract from Hoff & Hatch to get out lumber and piles for the wharves of San Francisco. The only up-to-date sawmills at that time were located at Bolinas, back of what is now known as Dog Town.

"I FOUND Frederick Miller getting out lumber, and I made a contract with him."

Lauff also related how he had rented a horse from Timothy Murphy for the ride to Bolinas. And went on to explain the origin of the name Dog Town:

"The place was alive with vagrant dogs, which were used by hunters from time to time."

Lauff lodged with the Frank Millers, and told of meeting lumber checkers and cattle buyers while there.

"ONE THING that startled me in Bolinas was the giant size of the redwoods," he wrote. "The forest extended about midway from the bay, back of Dog Town, to the summit of the mountains. In Dog Town and the gulches were trees that measured almost as large as any of the trees found today in Calaveras Grove. It is too bad that all those beautiful trees were sacrificed.

"In the early days nearly all the timber used in San Francisco came from Bolinas. A number of lumber schooners plied between the two places.

"Some of the larger timbers were floated down the bay and loaded on scows at the wharf at the lower end of the bay.

"GREGORIO Briones and Francisco Sebrean (Editor's Note: more often spelled Cibrian) owned the timber, and James W. Hough, a bridge contractor of San Francisco, was engaged in the lumber buying business.

"Bolinas was a very busy place in the early fifties. Lumber was worth $2 a foot delivered in San Francisco, and the contractors were coining money. All the Indians who cared to work earned from $5 to $6 a day, and a man with a good team of oxen or horses was considered well-to-do."

Lauff named among those engaged in "getting out the lumber" Benjamin Thomas Winslow, Joseph Almy, Charles Henderson, John Garcia, Gregorio Sais, Edward Sawyer "and many others."

THE OBSERVANT Lauff also told of Bolinas transportation of that time.

"Communication was held between San Francisco and Bolinas by a double-ended steamer operated by Capt. Thomas Winslow. The trip took five hours and the fare was $10 or $15 for the round trip. But if you survived one trip, you never cared to venture another, especially if the weather were rough.

"The boat would land at the head of the bay with a cargo consisting of hogs, cattle, hides and shingles."

ONE EVENT of which Lauff made no mention was the wedding of Maria Jesus Briones and Francisco Cibrian. But Marin W. Pepper in her book, "A Native of Days of the Dons — Bolinas," said Lauff, at the request of Don Gregorio Briones, built the platform for the wedding celebration.

After the nuptial rites, held May 20, 1850, at Mission San Rafael Arcangel, the wedding party returned to Casa Briones at Bolinas for a great barbecue feast, and then for dancing upon the Lauff-built platform to the music of guitars and violins.

A few years later, Francisco Cibrian died in a smallpox epidemic. His widow and her small son, Francisco, remained at the Casa Briones.

RESPECTING THE widow's grief, Lauff did not immediately press his earlier suit. He busied himself in Bolinas, making frequent trips to San Rafael where he saw the beginnings of county government, now that California had been admitted to the Union, and became acquainted with its leaders.

He watched the sports of the time, and many of them were cruel. One he described thusly:

"Six turkeys were placed in a pit so that four or five inches of their necks and heads were above ground. The vaqueros would ride their horses past them at break-neck speed, and the trick was to pluck off the head of a turkey. Seldom, if ever, would these wiry Spaniards fail to pluck their prize."

ON HIS RIDES from Bolinas to the county seat, sometimes via Olema, sometimes "over the summit," and sometimes by way of Willow Camp (Stinson Beach) and Mill Valley, Lauff would carry with him his rifle "and it was no trick to kill a deer without leaving the trail."

In the fall of 1850 Lauff pulled off a coup by arranging with Capt. Leonard Storey of Sausalito for the construction of a raft of 100,000 feet of piling that they saw safely to San Francisco.

The trip enabled him to again visit his friend, Captain Richardson, and also to view the operations of a small sawmill "in the bottom of the gulch known as New Sausalito today." The enterprise was owned jointly by Tom Botts, Albert McCormack, Robert Parker and Capt. T. F. Peck. Its supply of lumber came from Mill Valley and was floated to Sausalito.

COMMENTING upon the life of that time, Lauff was to say: "The pioneers had the advantage of cheap Indian labor and they used it to full advantage."

He was also to comment upon the hospitality of the people.

"Life was worth living in the early days of the county," he said, looking back. "You never crossed the path of a snob. Everyone was on the same level.

"There was little care for the morrow. It was a case of open hospitality and if you found yourself out in the country or on the road, you stepped into the first house you came to and made yourself perfectly at home."

LAUFF'S MEMOIRS have very little to say about his later years.

County records show that the

THE CHARLES LAUFF STORY

Bolinas Pioneer Lived A Life Of Adventure

marriage of Charles Lauff, age 40, and Maria Jesus Briones Cibrian, 32, took place April 18, 1862, "in the township of Bolinas" with Justice of Peace W. T. Chapel officiating. The old romance had been renewed and this time blossomed into marriage.

Before this, Lauff had left Marin County twice, to take charge of a Fort Ross ranch for its owners, and then to prospect in the Coast Range mountains. When he returned he was for a year in charge of Rancho Punta de los Reyes under Joseph McCorcle.

THEN, IN 1857, he purchased a squatter's claim near Olema and settled down to the life of a farmer. He was industrious and prospered.

After his marriage he and Maria Jesus made their home on the 298 acres she had inherited near Bolinas, and Lauff added more land. They operated the property as a dairy ranch, and there reared a large family.

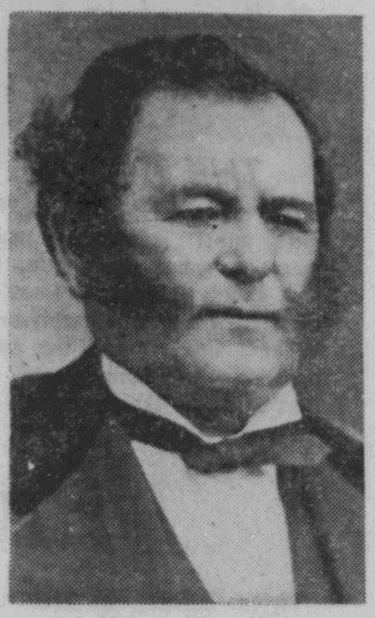
Mrs. Lauff died in 1893. Her husband survived her for many years and was often honored as a Mexican War veteran and pioneer at parades and public assemblies. He enjoyed the limelight. One such occasion was the first Old Settlers' Day gathering held Dec. 2, 1910, at Kentfield Stadium under Tamalpais Center Club auspices. Congressman William Kent presided and 90-year-old Charles Lauff was accorded special honors and spoke vivdly of his recollections of an earlier Marin.

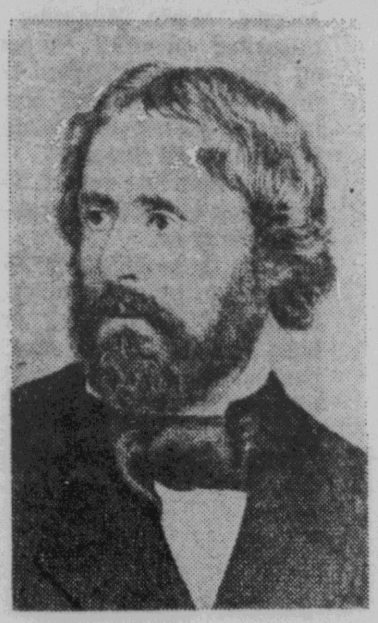
IN JANUARY, 1916, he was still able to give a San Rafael Independent reporter a delightful interview about the days "when no fences marred the landscape in any direction, nor prevented the traveler from riding his horse to any point of the compass."

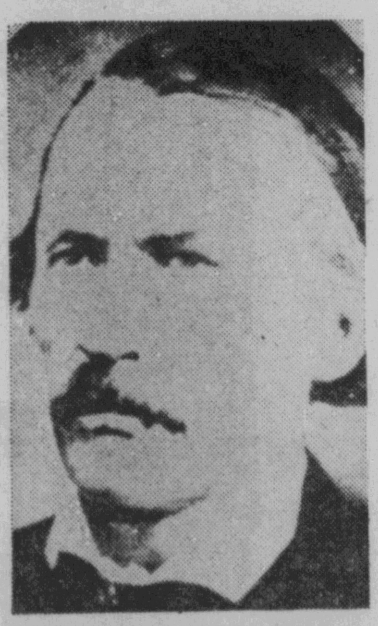
The Independent carried a long and laudatory obituary for Charles August Lauff on July 24, 1917. If Lauff's own birth year of 1818 were to be accepted, he barely missed living to 100. If the age of 70 given for him in the Marin County Great Register of 1892 were correct, then he died at 95. This agrees, too, with the date given for his marriage.

But regardless of their number, his were full and exciting years. And they held a special historical importance because Charles Lauff realized the drama of pioneering and saw to it that his unique experiences were recorded for posterity.

There are indications that, like many another old timer recalling bygone days, Charles Lauff was not reluctant to giving a good story a bit of added "window dressing." But the flavor of an era that he recreated in memoirs, in interviews and in stories he used to spin for public gatherings or simply for the neighbor children, were genuine. And invaluable to those who probe for the county's historical roots.







THREE OF the historical figures who came in for frequent mention in Charles A. Lauff's stories of the early 1800s when he first came to California and fought in the Mexican War were, top to bottom, Gen. Mariano Vallejo, the Mexican governor; Gen. John C. Fremont, the U.S. military commander, and Kit Carson the famous scout.

Twice before, in 1966 and again in 1968, the Independent-Journal Marin Magazine has presented pictorial "reports" on Tiburon artist Willard Cox's project of preserving Marin's landmarks for posterity through pencil sketches.

Since that last report, Cox's collection of drawings has continued to grow.

So, on these pages, the Marin Magazine displays another collection of Willard Cox drawings, featuring scenes that are part and parcel of Marin's history and its special cultural flavor.

Reproduced by lithography, Cox's drawings of more than 100 California scenes continue to enjoy popularity, particularly in Marin, as postcards and as prints for framing.

And the five-and-a-half-inch by seven-inch drawings found a new use when magnified to eight by 10 feet dimensions, they became wall murals at the Tiburon Lodge, the Old Mill Tavern in Mill Valley and the Lobster Pot in Foster City.

More murals are planned.

Cox, who calls his drawing style "designed realism" and explains that "I try to put as much design in the pictures as

And he plans to continue to do more scenes in Marin and elsewhere in California.

Right now he has a special interest in still-standing, historically-significant redwood buildings for a future project.

He is also currently involved in doing some art object drawings for Gumps, and he has been commissioned by the J. Walter Thompson Co. advertising agency to make a series of drawings of The Village, a major land development project near San Jose.

But the drawings of Northern California landmarks to which he has devoted five years, working first on location and then at his Tiburon studio on Spanish Trail, will continue to receive a generous amount of his time.

"I feel that in these drawings I am doing work that will be lasting," he says. "And so far I haven't even scratched the surface. There is an almost endless potential of deserving subject material in California."

Include Graz When You Visit Austria

Americans considering Austria as a travel destination invariably think of Vienna first and Salzburg next.

They could be making a mistake if they stop there.

Their list should also include Graz, Austria's second largest city with a population of 253,000 and the capital of the province of Styria.

Graz lies in a magnificent mountain landscape at the eastern edge of the Alps on both sides of the River Mur. Because of its many fine parks, it is called the "City of Gardens."

GRAZ WAS mentioned in documents as early as 1115. For centuries, Graz remained the strongest fortress of Christendom against assaults from the East.

The Hofburg (imperial palace) and the Gothic cathedral (1438)62) date from when Graz was the imperial capital and the residence of the German emperor, Frederic III.

In the center of Graz a landmark rises 404 feet above the town: Castle Hill crowned by the Clock Tower, the Renaissance belltower with the charming open-air theater in the casemate of the ancient fortress. From the top of Castle Hill, the panorama encompasses tall mountains in the north and west, gentle hills in the east, and distant vineyards to the south.

HOUSES WITH steeply pitched roofs and courtyards encircled by loggias cluster around Castle Hill. Buildings of the late Gothic, the Lombardian Renaissance and the early Baroque periods dominate the vista.

A massive Renaissance building, the Landhaus (1557-65) in the Herrengasse, contains a courtyard with cheerful three-story arcades.

The neighboring Armory with its impressive portal (1644), the largest military museum in Europe with the most precious collection of medieval arms in the world, still holds complete war equipment for 30,000 Styrian militiamen.

ONE OF THE prime examples of the early Baroque style is the mausoleum built in 1614 by Emperor Ferdinand II; the interior was designed by Johann Bernhard Fischer von Erlach, the great architect who was born in Graz.

Beyond the lovely grounds of the Town Park stands the oldest church in Graz: the high Gothic Deutschordenskirche am Leech (Teutonic Order of the Church on the Leech, 1275-93).

The Joanneum guards a unique treasure in its collection of Gothic sculptures. Important geological mineralogical specimens are among the exhibits in this institution founded by Archduke Johann.

THE FOLKLORE Museum at the foot of Castle Hill gives a comprehensive survey of Styrian costumes and folklore. The splendid Baroque castle of Eggenberg, in whose stately halls music by old masters is performed, also houses a hunting museum.

The 1,500-seat Opera House was the largest stage in the German-speaking area at the end of World War II. The Playhouse, seriously damaged during the war, was rebuilt and is finer than ever.

As a university city, Graz is renowned.

THE UNIVERSITY, founded in 1586, and the Technical University have an enrollment of 10,000. A third school, the Music Academy, was opened in 1963.

The Graz Trade Fair, held twice a year, is a barometer of the economy.

The city houses metal, vehicle, paper, glass, shoe, leather and textile industries, large breweries and printing plants.

Take Care In Choosing A Charter

Some Have Been Stranded When Organizers Ran Into Troubles

By MURRAY J. BROWN

Industry surveys indicate that one of four Americans who will fly overseas this year will go by charter planes at savings of up to 50 per cent under regular fares.

Everyone loves a bargain. But, caveat emptor - let the buyer beware!

There are hundreds of legitimate low-cost GIT (Group Inclusive Tour) flights offered to the public by reliable tour operators. But thousands of Americans have been victimized by unscrupulous fast-buck operators eager to cash in on the increasing demand for charter flights.

LAST YEAR, more than 3,000 American students were left high and dry in Europe and up to 2,000 more who had paid for the trip and were waiting to go lost their money when a foreign study group organizer in the Midwest went bankrupt.

Early this year, the crackdown on illegal charters stranded 112 Americans in London and 183 Europeans in New York. They had to shell out the regular trans-Atlantic fare to get back home.

Now government agencies, airlines — scheduled and supplementary — tour operators and travel agents have joined forces in an all-out campaign against violators of regulations governing charter flight.

THE TRAVELER, therefore, would be well advised to check carefully before signing up and paying for a charter flight. If there is any doubt, contact the Civil Aeronautics Board in Washington, the local Better Business Bureau or an established travel agency.

Most of the illegal operations are connected with the so-called affinity group charters. But to qualify for an affinity flight you must be a member for at least six months of a bona fide organization, formed basically for purposes other than travel such as a labor union, professional society, garden club, etc.

Steer clear of tour promoters who offer to backdate your membership in some organization which, according to the travel trade publications, is one of the most common come-ons. It is a violation of CAB regulations.

HERE ARE SOME of the tightened CAB regulations on affinity charter flights which went into effect in April:

Solicitation material for the charter must be sent only to members of the chartering organization and may not be sent until the charter contract has been signed.

The carrier must be identified with the type of plane and number of seats specified. If a per-seat price is stated, it must be made clear that the price is subject to cange depending on the number of passengers.

Persons who travel on the charter must have been members of the chartering organization for at least six months before flight time, except in the case of student or employee charters.

An eligible member may take his immediate family — wife, children or parents residing in his household — but not other relatives or friends.

Charges to each passenger must be a prorated amount of the actual cost of chartering the plane. This means that the passenger cannot know until the plane departs exactly what his cost will be. The charge must not include any charitable deductions.

The carrier must collect full payment or else arrange security for full payment before flight time. If there is to be more than one charter group on the plane, the carrier must collect full and non-refundable payment of the total charter price at least 30 days before flight time.

VIOLATIONS BY chartering organizations, carriers or organizers of any of the regulations make them subject to heavy fines and other penalties. For the traveler, it could mean cancellation of vacation plans, loss of money paid for his transportation, or being stranded overseas and having to arrange other passage home.

At this writing, the CAB is considering what would be known as "non-affinity" charters at low budget fares. Basically, these would permit groups of travelers to charter all or part of a plane. Membership in an organization would not be a preliminary condtion. A decision may be announced shortly — watch your newspapers. It could mean more money in your pocket.

San Francisco school teachers Paul Juarez and Bill Mitchell are still accepting high school students for their Amtrak rail tour of America and its historic points, leaving San Francisco for two weeks on Aug. 22, with information available from Hi-Tours, 681 Market Street, No. 771, San Francisco.

Cosmopolitan Cuisine? The U.S.

American tourists used to be so anxious to please they would praise dishes in Paris, London or Rome that they probably would pour over the chef's head back home.

But all that appears to be changing. The United States finally seems to be getting over its inferiority complex about foreign food. And about time, too.

This does not mean European writers will stop calling American edibles the worst in the world. They have been doing it too long to suddenly admit the truth — even if their taste buds were capable of recognizing it. Besides, it not only makes the natives feel better about some of the stuff they have to eat, but it also impresses those travelers who haven't bothered to see America first.

There are splendid French restaurants in France and memorable Italian restaurants in Italy. But try to find great German food in Paris or Rome. Or great Japanese or Mexican food. Not easy. All you can grant other countries is that ahey may excell in the local cuisine — rarely anything more than that.

For truly cosmopolitan eating you've got to hand it to the homeland. Many open-minded visitors from abroad are frankly surprised at the variety, decor and expertise of the top rate spots. It simply doesn't square with what they have read.

If you can afford it — and blue-ribbon food is expensive everywhere in the world these days, you can find French restaurants of grace and elegance which are not inferior to the finer restaurants of France.

Recently in Madrid the head waiter of a leading hotel confided that outside of a few purely local specialties like baby eels he thought New York Spanish food the equal of any. And America's many and prosperous Italian colonies assure that their eating places match those of the motherland.

Ditto the German. And so on — around many of the cuisines of the world.

GETTING AWAY FROM THE MAIN HIGHWAYS

"Back Roads of California" by Earl Thollander, a Sunset Pictorial book, is in part a travel guide to direct you into the state's more rural and less populated regions, and in part a sketch book in which the author has recorded the sights he has seen and the impressions he has experienced while making these trips himself.

Some 40 itineraries away from the cities and off the freeways are suggested.

All parts of the state are accorded attention, starting in the south and working northwards.

Our own area is represented by the Panoramic Highway and Ridgecrest, by the Point Reyes-Petaluma and Marshall-Petaluma roads, San Pedro Road, and the Black Point Cut-Off on north to the Valley of the Moon via the Lakeville Road, Stage Gulch Road and Arnold Drive.

Thollander's pictures include a color spread of the Hicks Valley and black-and-white sketches of the Mountain Home Inn, the Tower House, the Mount Tamalpais amphitheater, grazing Point Reyes cattle, the Marshall boatworks and the town of Marshall, plus drawings of some of our wildflowers.

The Marin-Sonoma treatment is typical of that accorded other sections.

Thollander's rather primitive artwork has a certain charm that seems appropriate to the rusticity of most of his subjects. And while his travel directions are quite brief, they serve to suggest a number of generally overlooked trip possibilities into quiet, unspoiled pockets and to make certain that some interesting if non-spectacular sights are not missed.

Country lanes, as they grow fewer, also grow more and more attractive to Americans.

Mary McCarthy About Taste And Time

BIRDS OF AMERICA by Mary McCarthy; Harcourt Brace Jovanovich Inc., 344 pages, $6.95. Reviewed by Don Keown.

The thin line dividing taste from snobbery, and the erosion of both by time and change furnish Mary McCarthy with her principal themes for her novel "Birds of America."

Her chief protagonist is 20-year-old Peter Levi, although he shares the spotlight with his mother, Rosamund, concert artist, inteliectual, free spirit, and, in the opinion of many, based upon Miss McCarthy herself.

The book begins with Rosamund and Peter returned to the New England coastal village of Rocky Port where they had spent an earlier idyllic summer and now attempt to recapture that magic. But already, they discover, in the brief interim of their absence, change has left its imprint upon Rocky Port and it is not the town they remembered.

Peter is something of a "momma's boy," having committed himself to the kind of Kantian existence espoused and practiced by Rosamund. It involves a rejection of much of what we call progress in favor of the old standards. And it involves an egalitarianism that is often in conflict with their elitist cultural values.

But the near shambles of the experiment at Rocky Port nudge Peter along the path toward individualism and a life-philosophy of his own. It is a process completed in the last half of the book with Peter on his own, a student at the Sorbonne, trying to adjust old ideals to new realities, with Paris and its student culture providing an interesting and restless backdrop.

In the end, Peter realizes that he must not only loosen his ties with Rosamund and her outdated life style, but also with his second mother, Nature, who no longer exists in her purist form.

"Nature is dead," says the spectre of Immanuel Kant in a dream-like visit to Peter's bed-side. It is an ill-fitting concluding scene that leaves the reader embarrassed. But more importantly, it is a climactic message that will leave many readers sharing Peter's and Rosamund's fondness for the "finer things" feeling betrayed.

For even Rosamund, we are told has come to realize "that there were things she could not do."

Miss McCarthy has elaborated: "If nature — in the beautiful form that we normally think of it; that is, the outdoors, plants, farms, forests — if all this were to disappear, which it's doing, there'd be nothing stable left to stand on, no ground for ethics . . .

"Nature for centuries has been the court of appeals. It will decide one way or another. Not always justly, but nevertheless . . . the appeal is always to this court, to Nature's court. And if this is gone, we're lost.

"And I think we're lost, I'm not an optimist."

Early criticisms have dwelt upon the precept that Mary McCarthy is a better essayist than a novelist, charging her with an inability to empathize with her characters and to present them as believable human beings.

But Miss McCarthy denies any intent to write a realistic novel. "Anybody who thought that ("Birds of America") was a realistic novel would be crazy," she says.

Here the message is the thing, and Petr's task is to define it.

A more legitimate criticism of Miss McCarthy's work as a novelist, it would seem, would be its unevenness, and her difficulty in achieving cohesion. Her novels are invariably better in their parts than they are as a whole. Thus the reader encounters nuggets that make the reading of "The Birds of America" well worthwhile; but to uncover and savor them, he must also wade through long, arid, dull passages.

The vegetarian girl at the rightwing general's Thanksgiving Day dinner in Paris is a comic delight. Peter's letter to his mother, occupying a full chapter, is, on the other hand, extremely tedious, divided between a revolting description of the unsanitary conditions of the toilets of cheaper Parisian hotels and a wearisome exposition of his philosophical opinions.

A long dissertation in conversational form on tourism is another bog into which the reader sinks, despairing that it will ever end. Much of the interlude in Rocky Port, on the other hand, is amusing and interesting.

The novel, which Miss McCarthy began way back in 1964, is assured of best-seller status by the mere presence of her name. It has more to recommend it than just that. It deals with problems and issues that bother many of us. And the fact that the view is a less hopeful, more bleak one than we might desire may be testimony to its honesty.

A Melancholy Tale Of Terror

CRAWLSPACE by Herbert Lieberman; Atheneum, 306 pages, $6.95. Reviewed by Maxine Keown.

Herbert Lieberman has written a strange and haunting novel, a story filled with terror and melancholy, and yet a book with tender, strongly moralistic implications.

A retired couple, Albert and Alice Graves, hungry for companionship, invite the youth, Richard Atlee, who comes to their home to repair the oil burner, to remain for dinner.

A relationship is established, even though the Graves are puzzled and made uneasy by some mysterious qualities within the young man. Then they discover that Atlee has returned unannounced and is living in the crawlspace between the floor of the house and the ground. Their relationship takes a new turn, and the town sheriff, Birge, becomes another principal.

Inevitably, the alliance leads to tragedy. And it is only then that the Graves learn the true background and motivations of their unorthodox "guest."

In his second novel (he has also written two plays), Lieberman has shown a genuine flair for a kind of story that is especially difficult for the writer to achieve, and when well done almost impossible for the reader to forget.

The Veteran Home From Vietnam: Patriot Or Victim?

NO VICTORY PARADES by Murray Polner; Holt, Rinehart and Winston, 169 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Frank Farrara.

Vietnam War veterans are coming home not only unsung, but generally unnoticed; some on hard drugs, some embittered and many with the feeling that it was all for naught.

Murray Polner, a former university history professor, tells of nine, three "hawks," three "doves" and three "haunted," as representative of the more than 200 veterans he interviewed.

Veterans are returning with doubts about the kind of war they were forced to fight, and the interviews revealed an "erosion of faith, a growing degree of alienation . . .," Polner observed.

The veterans themselves tell of many incidents of atrocities, indicating that My Lai wasn't unique; of corruption in X South Vietnam, and of cynicism about body counts.

One infantryman tells of killing a wounded North Vietnamese as ordered rather than be labeled a coward by his friends, another recalls Americans destroying a school full of children, and a former Hell's Angel tells of killing about 100 civilians while under the influence of pills issued by the Army for combat fatigue.

On return to home, one veteran said people were "either indifferent or hostile," and another felt that nobody in the U.S. cared about the soldiers of Vietnam.

"Everyone in the states had forgotten us, left us to live or die, anything, so long as they weren't involved."

They somehow acquire an immunity to brutality, justify atrocities and compromise their humanitarian ideals, a frightening development.

Another veteran said he kept asking himself, "What is the veteran of the Vietnam War? Victim? Mercenary? Patriot? Lemming?"

There is some disheartening evidence, that the Vietnam War, as its critics have claimed, has had a dehumanizing effect on U.S. troops.

Expert Looks At Southland Building Styles

LOS ANGELES: THE ARCHITECTURE OF FOUR ECOLOGIES by Reyner Banham; Harper & Row, 256 pages, $6.95. Reviewed by Don Keown.

Reviews Of New Reading

It comes as a shock to a Northern Californian that anyone would want to write seriously about Los Angeles architecture. But Reyner Banham, professor of the history of architecture at University College in London and a frequent visiting teacher at universities in our own Southlands, has not only done so, but has concluded that Los Angeles "has a comprehensible, even consistent quality to its built form, unified enough to rank as a fit subject for an historical monography."

And he defends Los Angeles construction against the accusations of monotony and confusion.

Mobility, he says, is the key: "The language of design, architecture and urbanism in Los Angeles is the language of movement."

History and the ecology have both had their impact upon the architecture, and are responsible for much of the variety that exists within this mobility theme. The Hispanic mixes with the Anglo-Saxon; the shoreline, the foothills, the flatlands all stimulate certain kinds of building. And there is the influence of Hollywood in the Disneyland-like fantasy forms that have developed.

Banham discusses them all, and the architects who played the major roles in all the various waves that Los Angeles architecture has experienced. The book is profusely illustrated.

And finally Banham concludes: "Such a very large body of first-class and highly original architecture cannot be brushed off as an accident, an irrelevance upon the face of an indifferent dystopia. If Los Angeles is one of the world's leading cities in architecture, then it is beause it is a sympathetic ecology for architectural design, and it behoves the world's architects to find out why."

Bitter pill though it is for a Bay Area resident to swallow, one must admit that Banham does change our image of Los Angeles architecture, making of it a good place to visit in order to see building styles that are diverse and yet peculiarly akin to one another, and expecially suited to their city. Even then, we wouldn't want to live there!

Biography Of Literary Giant Who Was Also An Idealist

VICTOR HUGO: A TUMULTUOUS LIFE by Samuel Edwards; McKay, 330 pages, $8.95.

By DON KEOWN

Almost invariably the end result of serious biography is to lessen the stature of the subject, destroying myths and exposing human foibles.

Samuel Edwards' "Victor Hugo: A Tumultuous Life" has quite the opposite effect. Hugo emerges from its pages larger than ever, a heroic figure of gargantuan talents who lived a life as fascinating and as eventful as any of his fictional characters.

This is true, in part, because Edwards has written the book from a standpoint of frank admiration. But it is also true because of the overwhelming greatness that dwelt in Victor Hugo, one of the giants of all time.

Edwards does not overlook Hugo's arrogance and conceit that made him at times a difficult man. He discusses openly Hugo's many romantic affiars that made him one of the most notorious rakes in a Paris filled with philanderers. He makes clear, too, that Hugo was capable of erratic and quixotic behavior that made him sometimes unpredictable.

But all of this was overshadowed by the brilliance of his literary career. And by his political and social idealism, and the courage with which he practiced his beliefs.

His mistress, Juliette Drouette, wrote to Hugo:

"I am speechless with admiration before the catalogue of your masterpieces. Your genius is unmatched in our century."

Notes Edwards: "Her assessment may have been heavily prejudiced, but it was accurate."

After reading Edwards' evidence, the reader finds himself in full agreement, too. Not only was there tremendous depth in Hugo's literary talent, but there was also remarkable versatility. He wrote great novels — of which "Les Miserables" was but one — that not only enjoyed unprecedented popularity, but also helped to shape the social and political structures of his and other lands. He penned some of the most beautiful poetry ever to be created by man. He wrote plays that were commercially successful and which spoke bravely and pointedly to the true issues of his time. He wrote travel books and essays and scathing political satire and personal memoirs.

And in all of it was reflected the genuis that placed Hugo alongside Voltaire and Rousseau as the foremost men of letters in all French history, presenting a trio of great minds and extrordinary talents that quite probably only one other country on earth can reasonably challenge and match.

But Victor Hugo also had a second career — in the political arena. And there he was a steadfast idealist, often advancing ideas — a United States of Europe, for instance — that were a century in advance of his times. He was always the champion of the common man, and in later years of democracy, and an implacable foe of the would-be tyrant Napoleon III. He was an eloquent speaker for his causes.

And such was his courage of his convictions that he underwent a long exile upon the channel islands rather than to live in Paris under the Bonaparte yoke.

Even in his chaotic domestic and romantic life, there was a strain of honor and consistency. He was faithful to his wife, until she was unfaithful. His love for Juliette Droucette, an exceptional personality herself, never wavered, even as he had literally hundreds — probably thousands — of affairs with other women, ranging from the famous Sarah Bernhardt to Parisian streetwalkers. But when, in their last years, the understanding Juliette demanded his fidelity, he gave it to her.

He was genuinely fond of his family, the ranks of which were decimated by tragedy, and he was loyal and generous to his friends.

He was a man of tremendous appetites — for food, for women, for work, for the arts, for politics.

And his life, as recounted by Samuel Edwards, would make a motion picture as spectacular as the film versions of any of his epic novels. With, if we are to have an English-language picture, why not Richard Burton in the Hugo role?

In the end, Victor Hugo left France, and the world, not only an awesome body of literature, but also its Third Republic of which he was probably the chief architect.

Something of his prestige and impact upon his country and his times were evident when on Feb. 27, 1881, the Republic of France saluted him with a national holiday, with a huge parade through the streets of his beloved Paris and a great banquet. He was then 81 (he died four years later). Nations are given to honoring their politicians, their generals and their admirals, their explorers, their aviators and now their astronauts. But what other literary figure can you think of who was so honored in his lifetime by his countrymen?

It is fitting that Victor Hugo stands alone in this respect, for he was a unique figure in literature and in history.

Some readers may be bothered by Samuel Edwards' undisguised admiration for his subject in "Victor Hugo: A Tumultuous Life." For instance he presents such a one-dimensional picture of Hugo's arch-foe, Louis Napoleon, that it borders on the unfair. But it is also apparent that no person could delve into the life of a man of Hugo's qualities and achievements without being impressed to the verge of intimidation and awe.

"I am a national institution, embodying in my one person all the best that is France," said Victor Hugo, well aware of his special qualities and not adverse to mentioning them.

History, and "Victor Hugo: A Tumultuous Life," confirm his immodest evaluation.

A PORTRAIT of Victor Hugo as a young man, by A. Deveria, is reproduced on the jacket of Samuel Edwards' new biography, "Victor Hugo: A Tumultuous Life." The book also contains a portfolio of illustrations showing Hugo, members of his family, his intimates and his contemporaries. David McKay Co. is the publisher.

Sleuths & Suspense

THE SHADOW GUEST by Hillary Waugh; Doubleday, 254 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Maxine Keown.

A veteran author of mystery and suspense novels has outdone himself in this gripping and eerie tale tinged with the supernatural and capped with a surprising and ironic conclusion.

When the Whelans had to move from New York to London, things begin to go downhill for them. They appear to have hit bottom when Howard suffers a heart attack, and the doctors order them to the English country for a rest.

For some reason Angela is drawn to a dank, forbidding seaside cottage. And while her husband cannot understand the choice, they go there.

What was bad in London becomes worse in this isolated habitation with its history of tragedy and its reputation for being haunted. Howard becomes increasingly concerned as Angela begins to experience nightmares and her health deterioates.

Waugh expertly maintains an aura of menace and the supernatural as the couple struggle to maintain their emotional balance and preserve their lives against an enemy they cannot see.

STERLING Sherwin (John Milton Hagen) of Mill Valley, whose production of verse is exceeded only by his output of western music, has two more songbooks of cowboy tunes available now through his publisher, Francis, Day & Hunter Ltd. of 138 Charing Crow Road, London — "Cowboy Songs" and "Saddle Songs."

Along with Sherwin originals, the books also contain his adaptations of some old western favorites such as "Red River Valley," "Home on the Range" and "Bury Me Not on the Lone Prairie."

As for Sherwin's own work, there are the likes of "He Was Only a Cowboy," "The Cowboy's Prayer" and "The Phantom Trail." For some, Sherwin did both music and words. But for most he concentrated on the music, and the lyrics are the work of assorted collaborators with such colorful names as Mustang Mike and Bronc Peeler Ben as well as more conventionally named craftsmen such as James Grafton Rogers and Roger Pocock.

Along with piano and voice, the music is generally chorded for the guitar. And it is fine, too, we discovered, for the harmonica.

BAKER BOOK House, 1019 Wealthy Street, Grand Rapids, Mich., has issued a $5.95 hardcover reprint edition of "The Life of Mary Baker G. Eddy and the History of Christian Science," written by Georgine Milmine with the help of Willa Cather. The book first appeared 62 years ago and almost immediately disappeared, probably because Christian Scientists bought up all the copies. Although copies can now be found in only a few libraries and private collections, it was nevertheless not until now that a reprinting was undertakenm

A PACKET of softcover books from Naturegraph Publishers of 8339 West Dry Creek Road, Healdsburg, includes:

"Natural Remedies for Better Health" by Dr. Ingrid Sherman, naturopath and osteopath, suggesting fruit, vegetable and mineral combinations for healing and health. Examples: for sunburn, cucumber, or coconut butter or cold tea; for pimples, linden blossom tea. In addition to the $2.25 paperback, there is a $4.25 clothbound edition.

"Wild Edible Plants of the Western United States" by biologist Donald Kirk with 350 line drawings and descriptions of plants that can be safely eaten. It is intended as a guide for the camper and hiker. With 312 pages, the paperback is $3.95 and the hardcover $5.95.

"An Illustrated Guide to Fossil Collecting" by Richard Casanova, a revised edition of a book the paleontologist first had published in 1957. Aimed at the rock hound, $2.25 softcover, $4.25 clothbound.

"Indian Talk" by Iron Eyes Cody, part Cherokee, television and movie actor, and an authority on Indian culture. Photographs depict the hand signals used by redmen to communicate. This one is $1.75 softcover, $3.75 hardbound.

New Books For The Juniors

The Animals That Dwell On Beaches, In Tidepools

Does a starfish think?
How old are mussels?
Why does a periwinkle have a trap door?
How do crabs make babies?
Does a jelly fish have eyes?
Can a scallop tell up from down?

These are the kinds of questions asked and answered by Ilka Katherine List, art teacher and invertebrate zoology student, in her book for 6 to 10-year-olds, "Questions and Answers About Seashore Life" (Four Winds, $5.50). Mrs. List will be remembered for her earlier book, "Let's Explore the Shore." And like its predecessor, "Questions and Answers About Seashore Life" should hold a special interest for Marin youngsters with their easy access to beaches and tidelands.

One by one Mrs. List takes up the most common of the seashore animals and asks and answers the questions about them that are most likely to arise in inquisitive young minds.

It is no comprehensive, sweeping text on seashore invertebrates. But it does hit the high spots and will likely whet the appetites of many boys and girls for more detailed information obtainable elsewhere.

There is an abundance of illustrations — woodcuts by the author and line drawings by Arabelle Wheatley.

"THE SEA" (Harcourt Brace Johanovich, $4.50) by Ruth Brindze goes out beyond the shores to delve into the oceans to analyze some of the factors that make these waters so important to man, present and future. It is rather a hit-and-miss affair studying in detail man's underwater explorations and research to increase seafood production. But it barely hints at some of the great dangers to these resources — mercury poisoning, pollution, tanker collisions, etc. It leaves with the small reader an unrealistic impression of the proximity of the time (if ever) when man will dwell beneath the seas. And all in all, it minimizes problems in favor of a rather rosy and shortsighted view of the future of the seas. The illustrations are photographs.

Some other new books for juniors:

Why do animals behave the way they do? And how does their behavior throw light upon man's conduct? Such questions have given birth to a whole new science — the observation and analysis of the behavior of animals in their natural habitat, called ethology. Some of ethology's discoveries to date furnish Daniel Cohen, the former editor of Science Digest, with the material for his book "Watchers in the Wild" (Little, Brown, $5.95). Juniors whose interests lie in this direction will be intrigued by his reports — on gulls, geese, gorillas, chimps, jackdaws, etc. And the controversy over the role man's biological origins play in his own problems, particularly his aggressions. "We apes, it seems," writes Cohen, "are still debating over what sort of apes we are."

If you have a young science fiction fan in the house, he'll appreciate a copy of "The Days of Tomorrow" (Little, Brown, $5.95), an excellent collection of short stories of the genre, chosen and edited by Hans Stefan Santesson, a veteran of anthology projects. The stories are sharp, clean and entertaining. Authors like Arthur C. Clarke, Randall Garrett, Isaac Asimov and Robert Silverberg rarely write otherwise. Along with exciting adventure, they provide some thought-provoking insights into what might well lie ahead for earthlings.

Dog stories have long held a fascination for young readers, particularly boys. "The Long Trail Home" (Four Winds, $4.95) by Dr. Josh Durfey is in that tradition, a story about a golden collie living with her master in the remote Alaskan woods who becomes lost in those wilds and must then adapt to a far different kind of life — that of the wolf with whom she mates. The account of their existence is excellent, but the book's conclusion seems a bit too melodramatic. Dr. Durfey is a Downey, Calif., resident, a surgeon and a breeder of both dogs and horses. This, his first novel, is for boys through the ninth grade. And fairly well done.

The Nervous System: The Inner Networks" (Prentice-Hall, $3.95) will interest only a specialized segment of the young reading audience — the future surgeons or those interested for other reasons in human physiology and psychology. Dr. Alvin Silverstein, a biologist, and his wife, Virginia, a writer, explain the communications system of the body — whey we move, or sometimes fail to move. Ullustrations are by Mel Erikson. And the explanation is generally successful if hardly stimulating to young intellects.

"Dissent in America" (McGraw-Hill, $4.95) is writer Robert A. Liston's exploration of a subject currently of keen interest to many young Americans. It is both history and sociology, tracing American reaction through centuries to dissent, and probing the causes and forms of that dissent and evaluating its success or lack of success. The discussion sparkles at times and lags at others. Hardly scholarly, still it cannot be put down as superficial.

"Finding Out With Your Senses" (McGraw-Hill, unpriced) is a "Let's-Try-It-Out" series book by Seymour Simon for younger children. The child is invited to experience, with the help of illustrations by Emily McCully, some of the many ways in which our senses serve us. The suggested experiments can be undertaken easily. And the child should wind up with a greater appreciation of the marvels of sight, smell, taste, sound and touch.

NEEDLE AND THREAD STAGE A COMEBACK

THE COMPLETE GUIDE TO EMBROIDERY STITCHES AND CREWEL by Jo Bucher; Creative Home Library (Meredith), 393 pages, $8.95. Reviewed by Maxine Keown.

No question about it — the once almost dormant craft of fine stitchery has experienced an amazing revival of interest.

Today's women —and a good many men — are finding in it the special satisfactions that come from fine things created by their hands, all the more enjoyable in an age when most of our look-alike products are produced by machine.

The publisher claims that "The Complete Guide to Embroidery Stitches and Crewel" by Jo Bucher, needlecraft teacher and designer, is a "one of a kind" manual.

It offers detailed instruction and illustrative demonstration of every known type of embroidery and every stitch. It is, essentially, a book for the beginner, but it will also serve to carry her farther along into the craft if she already has mastered the fundamental skills.

In all, there are more than 300 stitches discussed and shown, plus a thousand suggestions on how to put them to creative use.

There is also a glossary of embroidery terms.

And along with line drawings and how-to-do-it shots, there are several color plates of beautifully finished work to inspire the novice to persist.

Many a family now cherishes heirloom tablecloths and pillowcases embroidered by grandmother or great grandmother. But what will great grandchild treasure in year 2030 as personal remembrances of today's generation? The answer a few years back would have been "very little." But now it seems that the women have again taken up needle and thread to turn out beautiful things that will be the family heirlooms of the future. Jo Bucher's book should be a source of encouragement and instruction for hose who find the going a bit difficult at first, or who wish to advance into the more difficult stitchings.

A NEW series of quality paperbacks for children, from Holt, Rinehart and Winston's picture book backlist has appeared under a Holt Owlet label. Fuchsias Until Fall

Garden Page

Fuchsias have been blooming for several weeks in Marin, and they will continue to bloom for several more — and then some.

Color can be enjoyed from these prolific shrubs until the shorter days and cooler nights of late fall.

This should serve as a reminder that it's never toolate to plant Fuchsias. Young plants almost ready to bloom and mature specimens already showing color are to be found at your nursery.

THE VARIETIES and types of Fuchsias are numerous.

Many garden situations can be filled by Fuchsias, as there are tall erect varieties, low spreaders, compact types, and still others that trail in tantalizing fashion. There are also Hanging Basket Fuchsias for decorating the porch or patio.

Nurseries have the Fuchsias best-suited for our conditions. Check out the many possibilities — including new 1971 introductions.

Fuchsias like cultural conditions similar to those needed by Camellias.

They thrive in the same acid soil, and the same filtered shade. Where you live will determine how much sun the plants will tolerate. In the coastal fog belt, Fuchsias may take full sun, but further inland valleys some will not survive in sunny afternoon exposure.

YOUR NURSERYMAN can provide the advice needed to gain the maximum of pleasure from these plants.

The California Association of Nurserymen points out a good cultural practice is to pinch-off the tip growth of Fuchsias, to encourage bushiness.

As with Roses, new wood carries the bloom; pinching Fuchsias also promotes an unbelievable number of fascinating flowers.

Fuchsias enjoy frequent overhead waterings, and respond to feeding. Your nurseryman can recommend a specially-formulated plant food for Fuchsias.

Hobbyists find year-round enjoyment from tending their Fuchsias, and the plants respond to the attention. One happy feature about the plants, however, is that they still perform admirably for the gardener who isn't inclined to undertake growing Fuchsias as a hobby.

Fuchsias offer beautiful rewards for amateur and hobbyist alike.

The Fibrous Begonia Can Give You Beauty In Hurry

When it comes to masses of garden color, the beauty provided by Fibrous Begonias rivals that of any other flower variety.

Massed in beds, or used in borders as an edging, the fibrous-rooted Begonias add sparkle to the summer garden.

There are dwarf types and taller-growers, which makes possible their versatility in the home landscape.

Nurseries have Fibrous Begonias available for planting now. These are small transplants of varieties which bloom in pink, red and white.

Certain ones have crisp, apple green foliage and other Fibrous Begonias boast rich bronze leaves, which are especially valued for accent purposes.

SHOPPING MAY turn up Fibrous Begonias in larger-size nursery containers, which makes it possible to achieve a desired effect in a hurry.

The plants are usually to be found in nurseries in bloom, and Fibrous Begonias will continue to flower until frost — providing a never-ending show of color.

In our coastal gardens, these free-flowering gems will take more sun than inland, where Fibrous Begonias want some protection from the summer sun. They thrive in light shade, and often are the answer to which flowering plant to use where sun-loving bloomers fail to flower because of insufficient light.

AN EXAMPLE of such a garden location would be on the east, or north side of the house.

Don't overlook the chance to grow Fibrous Begonias in pots for decorations on the patio, or porch.

Their more spectacular cousins, the Tuberous Begonias, produce large, awesome individual blooms which defy description. But, the trim small flowering Fibrous Begonias exude a charm of their own which draws admiring comments from all who view them.

MOST GARDEN soils will satisfy these bedders, but one that is liberally worked over with peat moss or leaf mold is preferred. A simple solution is to incomrporate a recommended planter mix with the soil as you set out the plants.

Fibrous Begonias appreciate frequent watering, such as might be expected along the edge of a lawn.

A CHECKLIST FOR GARDENERS OF MARIN

Here is the Marin gardener's checklist for the coming week:

- Camellias, Azaleas and Rhododendrons should be fed this month. Your nurseryman can recommend a specially-formulated plant food for these acid-loving specimens.
- Harvest tasty vegetables in late summer and fall by planting these now: Pole and bush beans, corn, squash, carrots, beets, eggplant, tomatoes, radishes and melons.
- For a summer show of color, the Flowering Maple (Abutilon) is a prime candidate. Not a tree, this is a handsome shrub, adorned with maple-like leaves.
- When Delphinium flowers fade, cut the stalks back to about six inches. In about two weeks, feed them and watch the results: You'll be rewarded with another flush of color in mid-summer.
- Lawns watered deeply, and less frequently, are the happiest. If compaction prevents water penetration, consult your nurseryman — he can outline a course of action to relieve the situation and create a carpet of green.
- Summer-flowering vines are an attractive way to provide cool shade for outdoor living areas and the home during warm spells.

Future Home Will Be Well Plumbed

Handyman's Pages

How would you like to have a home that includes vanity lavatories in the bedrooms to ease the bathroom rush-hour traffic?

An entertainment sink with hot and cold running water in your family room or on the patio? A mudroom off the kitchen to trap dirt before it gets into the house? An outdoor drinking fountain to keep the kids out of the kitchen on hot summer days? A central vacuum cleaning system?

You'll find these marvels — and much more — in the typical "Wateright" Home, according to the Plumbing-Heating-Cooling Information Bureau. It's a term the industry has coined to describe the conveniences and comforts that can be yours through your plumbed-in appliances — of which there are nearly 50 in call. They include:

1. A bathroom for every bedroom or, alternately, at least two full bathrooms and a powder room or mudroom.

2. Food waste disposer, dishwater, double-bowl sink and instant hot water dispenser in the kitchen.

3. A laundry area with water and drain facilities.

4. Such outdoor water features as an entertainment sink with hot and cold running water on the patio, a drinking fountain and water outlets on all four sides of the house for lawn sprinkling, car washing, etc.

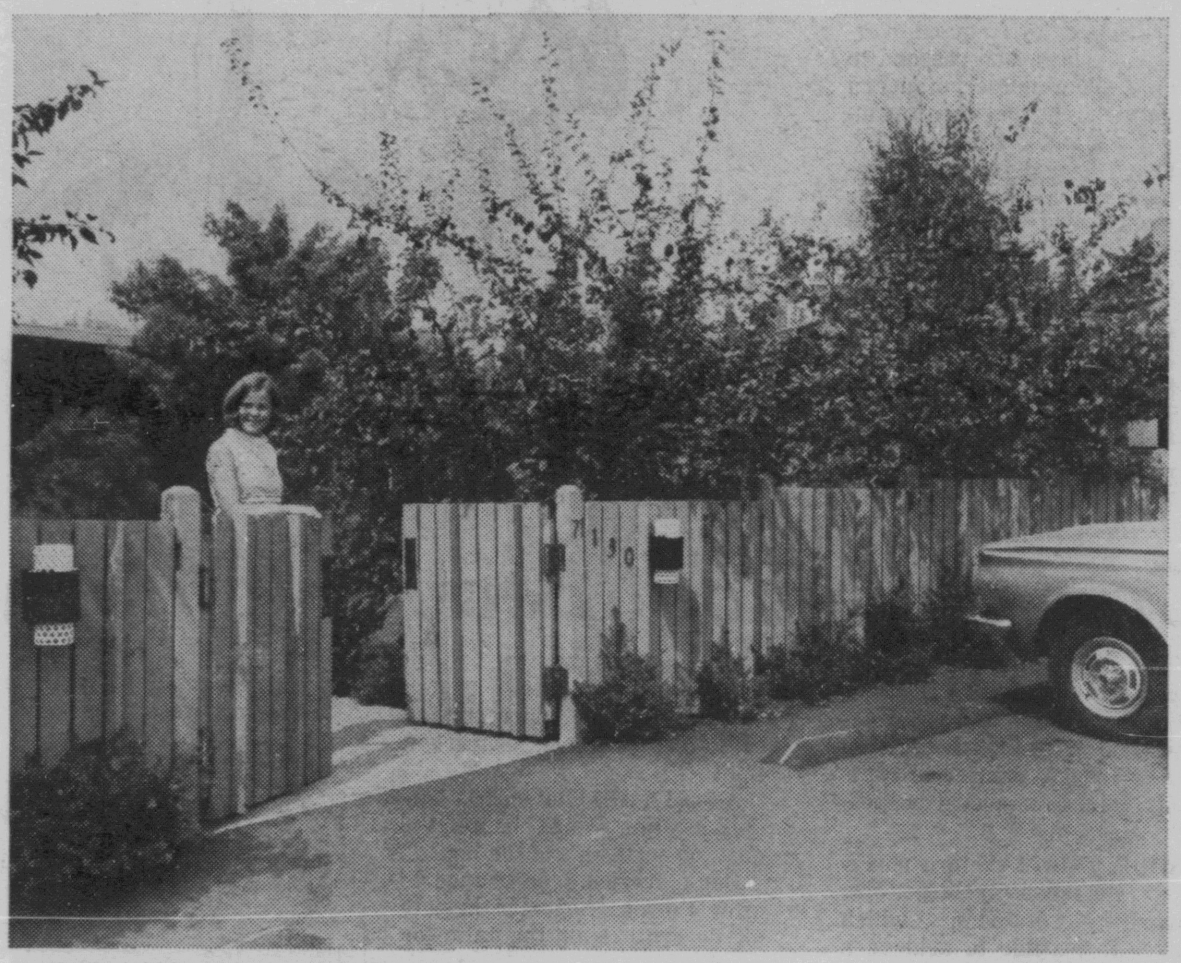
5. At least a 50-gallon water heater to assure plenty of hot water. Where needed, there's also automatic water conditioning equipment.

6. Single-handle faucets at all the sinks and thermostatic water controls for the showers.

7. A hydronic (hot water) heating system that's zoned. This means that different parts or "zones" of the home have their own temperature controls to reflect the type of activity there.

8. Such features to assure quality plumbing as adequate-size pipe, shut-off valves at the various fixtures, etcm

That's the picture for the future — one in which plumbing worries will be lessened, and in which plumbing appliances will add greatly to your comfort and convenience.



A DECORATIVE FENCE can make all the difference in the world in the appearance of a yard. And when combined effectively with trees, it can block automobile headlight glare and afford you privacy, even as the gate directs welcomed visitors to your door. Here the fence steps uphill on four-by-four-inch posts and two-by-four-inch stringers. Resawn one-by-four-inch cedar boards have been nailed on both sides of the fence, with every fourth board on edge. (Western Wood Products Association photo)

An Ornamental Fence Can Also Be A Practical Asset To Home

An easy way to add practical beauty to a home is with a decorative fence — providing a backdrop for flowers and shrubs and drawing together the house, yard and garden.

On the practical side, a fence safely limits young children's play areas, discourages intruders or stray animals and defines boundary lines.

THE BEAUTY of a fence is enhanced by the imagination used in its construction.

There are hundreds of different designs and variations on them and booklets about fences, with illustrations showing many possibilities and providing building tips, are available at book stores and building materials dealers.

It is important to remember that while a fence should be useful and attractive, it should not dominate the scene. Here's where it may be necessary to vary traditional designs to suit the home and lot.

A FENCE needn't be tall or massive to fulfill its duties. Indeed, in some localities there are limitations set by law. Slightly spaced one-by-three-inch slats on a frame of two-by-four-inch western cedar can set off an area yet retain a feeling of openness.

Adding to the possibilities are the materials used. Board fences of one-by-six-inch pine, cedar or fir may be woven horizontally, vertically, louvered, even diagonally.

The boards may be smooth or rough-sawn, and stained or left to weather naturally for easy maintenance. Posts or boards in contact with the ground should be pressure-treated.

HORIZONTAL one-by-six-inch bevel cedar siding is suggested when a solid fence is desired.

A cross-rail style fence of two-by-four-inch pine or fir gives a pleasing open effect. And there are many variations of the old standard, the picket fence.

Gates should harmonize with the fence design, and extra sturdy hinges and latches should be used just in case "little people" in the neighborhood are tempted to swing.

ONE FAMILY added a low decorative fence at the front of the house which, combined with shrubs, set off the yard and blocked headlights at night.

Resawn one-by-four-inch cedar boards were face-nailed on both sides of two-by-four-inch stringers, with every fourth board on edge for accent.

Pets Need Safe Lair For Play

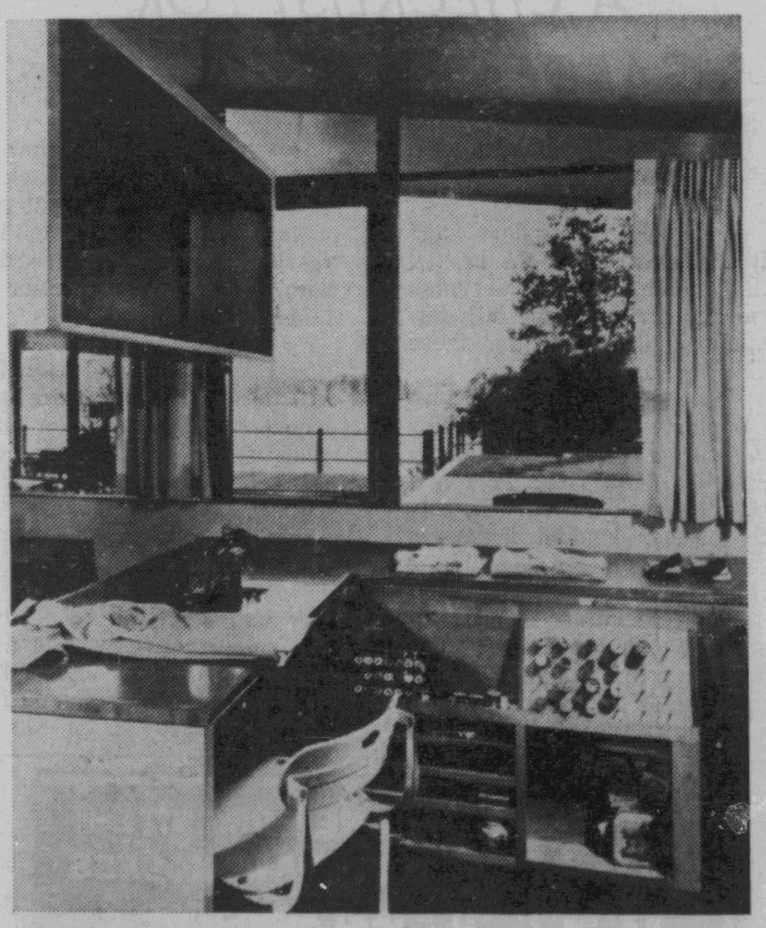
Young pets, like children need security and benefit from lairs of their own.

A 12-by-24-inch playpen lets a small kitten or puppy frolic or snooze safe from careless human feet.

One two-foot length of 12-inch board will form the floor. Twelve and 24-inch lengths of two-by-twos make corner uprights and toprail. Slats make up the sides, spaced close enough so your pet can't squeeze his head through.

Any of the easily-worked western soft woods are suitable. Add washable padding on the floor and a catnip mouse or rubber bone.

AN END TO CLUTTER



THIS COMPACT sewing cabinet can spell the end to the clutter that has traditionally plagued the seamstress. For the how-to-build-it plan, send 25 cents with your request for Form 57-70 to American Plywood Association, 1119 A Street, Tacoma, Wash., 98401. The cabinet provides generous working space on its formica-covered cutting surface. The machine rests in a well that places the sewing surface level with the countertop during operation. Sewing accessories and tools all have conveniently-located storage places. The spools of thread are held by wooden dowels mounted on a sloped plywood surface. Lipped shelves hold bobbins, scissors, spare needles and other articles in place. It is a relatively easy project for the handyman with rudimentary carpentry skills.

Build Your Own Patio Table To Double Outdoor Enjoyment

It's A Relatively Easy Project With The Help Of A Pattern

With the arrival of June, it seems that more Marinites are eating outdoors than indoors.

For truly relaxed and enjoyable outdoor meals, a comfortable, utilitarian table is an essential.

You can build your own, plus benches. To help you accomplish this task, send $1 to Steve Ellingson, San Rafael Independent-Journal Pattern Department, Post Office Box 2383, Van Nuys, Calif., 91409, and ask for barbecue table and benches pattern No. 62.

THE FULL-SIZE pattern makes the project a relatively simple one for the handyman. You simply trace it onto wood, then saw out the parts and assemble them according to instructions.

Along with the patterns and the directions, you get illustrations and a full list of the required materials.

The table and the benches are all handsome additions to the patio. And all are strong and sturdy, so that they can be expected to last for many years.

Just give them a fresh coat of paint or stain each spring, and a decade from now they will be as attractive and as useful as the day they were built.

THEY CAN EVEN be left outdoors through the winter.

Ellingson has also developed some other useful patterns for the outdoor living enthusiast. Included are an outdoor serving cart (No. 204) for $1, a glider swing (No. 276) for $1, and an outdoor rocking chair (No. 350), also $1.

If you want your pattern or patterns sent to you air mail, include an additional 25 cents per pattern. That will enable you to make an earlier start on your project, and speed the time when you will be enjoying breakfast, luncheon or dinner, or even all three, on the table that dad built.

THE PATIO table and benches shown here were built 11 years ago by a handyman with the help of a Steve Ellingson pattern, and remain as attractive and functional today as they were when first put into use.

Family Treasures Deserve An Attractive Showcase

Antiques are "in" these days and many people proudly display old family treasures in their home decor.

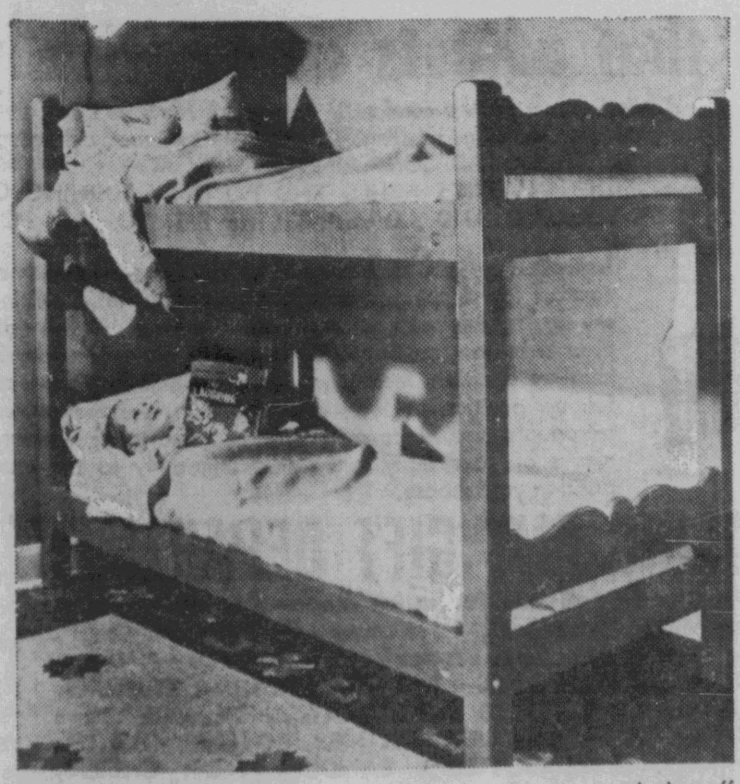
Those not lucky enough to inherit fine old furniture haunt antique shops or second-hand and junk stores, even flea markets, depending on their resources.

For a family hand-me-down or an old cabinet you've found and refinished, a built-in display unit will give it prominence and protection.

Shelves display smaller items, and cabinets below provide storage, fitted with locks if desired.

Adding to the unit's usefulness is a wet bar for entertaining. If the unit is to be placed in a large entry area instead of a family or living room, the wet bar can be replaced with storage for umbrellas, overshoes and coats.

The display unit is constructed of one-by-10 or one-by-12-inch western fir or pine boards. Doors are one-by-four-inch tongue-and-groove paneling, which also may be used to face the inset area.



BUNK BEDS retain their popularity with the youngsters and also offer a solution to the space problem when two side-by-side beds might overcrowd a bedroom. With the help of Easi-Bild's Bunk Bed Pattern No. 87, available for $1 from Independent-Journal, Post Office Box 215, Briarcliff Manor, N.Y., 10510, the man of the house can build the double-decker shown here at very little cost. The youngsters can even lend a hand in the project.

TV NOTES

By JACK GAVER

Mosel is getting a lot of mileage out of "All the Way Home." His play won the Pulitzer Prize and the New York Drama Critics' Circle award in 1961. David Susskind made a movie of it. Now it is on the "Hallmark Hall of Fame" schedule for a television version on NBC during the coming season. Joanne Woodward and Richard Kiley will star in this bittersweet story of the impact of death on a family as seen through the eyes of a little boy.

Meanwhile, Miss Woodward and daughter, Nell Newman, are busy in Idaho making a 60-minute feature for the "G.E. Monogram" series of specials for broadcasting next January. The 12-year-old Miss Newman is making her video acting debut in "Eagle and the Hawk," which is a blend of documentary and drama dealing with protection of birds of prey.

Dave Garroway will be star-host of "The CBS Newcomers," a one-hour comedy-variety series that will be a summer replacement on CBS for Carol Burnett's show, 10 to 11 p.m. Mondays, starting July 12. The show will feature fresh professional talent discovered by the network and its affiliates during a search in 56 cities. This will mark Garroway's return to network television after a 10-year absence.

ABC announced plans for beginning a monthly series of original 90-minute dramas for daytime televidion early in 1972. Major talents and high production standards are promised for the shows, which will be taped in New York and Hollywood.

The new title for NBC's monthly "First Tuesday" program when it shifts to a monthly Friday in the fall is to be "Fourth Friday," 9 to 11 p.m. The final "First Tuesday" telecast will be on Sept. 7; the first under the new title will be on Oct. 22.

On The Stereo Scene

BY JOHN SUNIER

Angel Records continues to bring to U.S. listeners excellent stereo recordings of Russian music from the Soviet Union on the Melodiya-Angel label.

Two stereo "firsts" lead the recent batch, newly recorded in the U S S R and pressed in this country.

A SYMPHONY that was very popular in the U.S. early in this century receives its stereo premiere on Melodiya-Angel SR-40132, Kalinnikov's "Symphony No. 2 in A" The U S S R Symphony Orchestra is conducted by Svetlanov.

Written in 1898, the work is full of very Russian melody and bears some resemblance to the music of Borodin. There is a grandeur about the symphony that is thoroughly convincing in this performance by Soviet musicians who obviously feel very close to the score.

RODION SCHEDRIN is a fine Russian composer of today, perhaps best known for his spectacular "Carment Ballet" arrangement heard on an earlier Melodiya-Angel LP.

His ballet "The Humpbacked Horse" is based on a Russian fairytale and is very often seen on the boards of the Bolshoi. Algis Zuraitis conducts the Bolshoi Theater Orchestra in the "Second Suite" from this ballet on SR-40106. It is music full of verve, charm and an optimistic sense of humor.

Sound, as on nearly all the Melodiya-Angel albums, is fully up to U.S. standards of stereo reproduction. Also, Angel's tasteful packaging always deserves praise.

PROKOFIEFF'S "Symphony No. 3 in C Minor" is presented on S R - 4 0 0 9 2 with Gennady Rozhdestvensky conducting the Moscow Radio Symphony Orchestra.

Completed in 1928, the Third Symphony is based on material from the Soviet composer's opera, "The Flaming Angel." It concerns a dark world of medieval mysticism with images of suffering, torture and excorcisms and is definitely not easy music of the socialist realism type that Soviet leaders eventually pressured Prokofieff into turning out.

Rozhdestvensky and his men dig into the score with such fervor and feeling as to outshine competing versions by Abravanel and einsdorf.

DMITRI SHOSTAKOVICH is probably Russia's most important living composer, and the Melodiya record company there has released through Angel in this country many fine LPs covering all aspects of the varied output of the Soviet master artist.

One of my personal favorites in the chamber music area has long been Shostakovich's "Quintet for Piano and Strings." It is now on SR-40085, coupled with Stravinsky's "Three Pieces for String Quartet," and featuring the Borodin Quartet who have been extremely popular in live appearances in the Bay Area. A strong flavor of Russian folk music is heard in the Quintet.

The Scherzo is one of the most exciting in all chamber music.

SOME OF THE most delightful humor in music is found in certain works of Shostakovich. Not least among them are the Ballet Suites Nos. 1, 2 and 3, composed between 1949 and 1952.

Therefore it is with thanks that I can retire my old mono Classic Edition LP of this music, a disaster in recording quality, and substitute the new stereo edition on Melodiya-Angel, SR-400115, with the composer's illustrious son Maksim, conducting the Bolshoi Theater Orchestra. These light movements are in the spirit of the composer's famous "Polka from The Age of Gold, "but mostly more melodic in nature.) Brilliant performances and reproduction.

WHAT VIOLIN-PIANO duo has received more superlatives than any other in recent history but David Oistrakh and Sviatoslav Richter?

Give them two rich Romantic chamber music classics, the Franck "Sonata for Violin and Piano in A" and the Brahms" Sonata No. 3 for Violin and Piano in D," and the good vibes that prevailed at a live recital in Moscow in 1968, and you have a breath-taking album preserved by Melodiya-Angel on SR-40121.

Many historic documents like this one leave something to be desired when compared to more perfect studio sessions by somewhat less high-powered performers. Not this one — it is incomparable in every way.

Russian audiences being noted for their super-quiet attentiveness, background noise is almost nonexistent, adding to the excellent sound.

ALONG WITH the abovementioned performers, the third most important soloist in the Soviet Union today is probably the cellist Matislav Rostropovich. On SR-40091 he is heard in the first recording of a new cello concerto by Boris Tishchenko.

The composer's music is very advanced without overstepping the bounds of tonality. Rather than using a full orchestra, the accompanying ensemble used by Tischenko is winds, percussion and organ, and is conducted by Igor Blazhkov.

The second side of the album returns to chamber music of Shostakovich with his "Trio No. 2 in E Minor."

In this rather sombre work Rostropovich is joined by violinist Mikhail Vaiman and pianist Pavel Serebryakov.

BOOT INDIANS — U.S. marshals stand on the dock at Alcatraz where they have ended the 19-month occupation in what has been called a surprise raid. The marshals, in a lightning afternoon action yesterday, landed on the island from Coast Guard vessels and removed the occupants without resistance.

Jetliner Hijacker Kills A Passenger

Daring Shoot-Out Following Slaying

NEW YORK (UPI)—A young Haitian, demanding to be flown to North Vietnam, shot and killed a passenger who tried to jump him when he hijacked a jetliner in Chicago. He was wounded in a shoot-out in the air with a U.S. marshal and a crewman and arrested today on landing in New York.

The alleged hijacker, identified as Gregory White, 23, forced his way on the Trans World Airlines 727 jet at O'Hare International Airport in Chicago as passengers boarded for the last leg of the Albuquerque, N.M.-to-New York flight late last night.

Stewardess Catharine Culver, 24, of Fond-du-Lac, Wis., tried to stop him because he did not have a boarding pass but before she could call for help White grabbed her and dragged her from the front of the plane to the middle of the cabin, she said. "He has a gun," she screamed.

Most of the passengers, still near the forward entrance, ran from the plane but one man, Howard Franks, 65, of Darien, Conn., rushed to the stewardess' aid. Franks, a management consultant, scuffled with the gunman and was killed with one shot in the head and one in the back.

Holding Miss Culver hostage, the slim, goateed gunman told Flight Capt. Robert E. Elder, 42, of Stamford, Conn., he wanted to go to North Vietnam. He also demanded $75,000 ransom and a machine gun and ammunition.

As the crew persuaded White to release the three passengers trapped at the rear of the plane, U.S. Deputy Marshal Joseph Zito, who was assigned to O'Hare to check passengers for guns, crawled through the cockpit window dressed in a TWA flight suit.

Elder said later at a news conference that to buy time he told the hijacker they would have to fly to New York to pick up another plane because the 727 could not make the trip to Vietnam. The airline prepared a 707 at Kennedy International Airport in case it was needed.

Miss Culver, who sat with the hijacker at the start of the flight, said he told her he left Haiti several years ago and

Nixon And Bunker To Confer

WASHINGTON (UPI) —U.S. Ambassador to Saigon Ellsworth Bunker is scheduled to arrive in Washington tomorrow for talks with President Nixon and other officials on two issues of increasing concern to the administration — one of them political and the other, military.
(See war story, page 29.)

Administration officials said Saturday there is greatly increased worry here on two points:

—The possibility that the ground rules for the October presidential elections in South Vietnam, approved by the National Assembly under pressure from President Nguyen Van Thieu, will so restrict the possible number of candidates as to lead to widespread belief that the South Vietnamese are not being given a truly democratic choice.

—The considerable increase in Communist military activity in recent weeks, particularly the buildup of North Vietnamese forces in Quang Tri province just south of the demilitarized zone, as well as evidence that conditions in Cambodia are deteriorating under increased Communist pressure.

Bunker, according to officials here, has already discussed with President Thieu the U.S. concern over the election law which requires presidential candidates in the October election to be endorsed by 40 assemblymen or 100 provincial councilmen.

The administration, feeling that the split between Thieu and Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky has already passed the point of no return, believe that the new ground rules will squeeze out all potential opponents of Thieu except for General Duong Van Minh. There are reports that Minh and Ky may have made a deal to throw Minh's support in the assembly to Ky in order to get him on the ballot.

While the National Assembly has passed the new rules governing the eligibility of presidential candidates, Thieu has not yet signed it. The hope in Washington apparently is to persuade him to send the measure back for liberalization in order to avoid giving the impression that the October elections are rigged in advance.

On the military front, administration officials acknowledge that they are somewhat worried over an increase in North Vietnam's military strength in Quang Tri province, where Hanoi now has at least nine regiments.

LUANDA, Angola (UPI)—A Portuguese plane on a chartered flight from Luanda was hijacked today to Pointe Noire in the Republic of the Congo, the Portuguese news agency ANI said.

INDIANS KICKED OFF

Surprise Alcatraz Raid

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Armed federal guards patrolled desolate Alcatraz today to prevent any Indian attempts to recapture the island they were effortlessly ousted from after a 19-month occupation.

An armada of U.S. marshals took back the rocky isle in San Francisco Bay in a surprise raid yesterday. The last 15 occupants offered no resistance and were carried off to a downtown hotel.

The angry Indians — who wanted to build a cultural center on the foggy island — charged they were betrayed by the government on orders of President Nixon. Some vowed to reclaim the island.

U.S. Attorney James L. Browning said a team of federal guards, with weapons, was stationed on the island and would resist any attempt at another takeover.

Authorities said fierce dogs and chain-link fences at strategic landing spots will also be put on the 12-acre former federal penitentiary to prevent a repeat of the Nov. 20, 1969, invasion by 89 Indian men, women and children.

Six bewildered men, four women and five children were all that remained of an Indian occupation force that once numbered more than 100 when 35 marshals covered by a circling helicopter leaped onto Alcatraz from three Coast Guard boats on a sunny afternoon.

Delbert Lee, 22, a Sioux, said the marshals were armed with automatic rifles and shotguns. "They were running around like chickens with their heads cut off," he said.

The 15 Indians were taken by the Coast Guard to Yerba Buena Island, fed lunch, and then put aboard a Navy bus for the Senator Hotel in San Francisco.

They shouted "Power to the Indian People!" and "We'll be back!" as they alighted.

Peggy Lee, 18, Delbert's sister who had lived on the island four months, predicted the government action would rally Indians throughout the country. She said calls were made to tribes in Montana, Washington and Southern California.

Browning said the decision to retake the island was caused by the Indian's refusal to cooperate in the investigation of a

Bus Garage Will Mean Employment

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

The Golden Gate Bridge District's $9.3 million bus system, with 300 new jobs, will be based in San Rafael. (See another story, page 3.)

The unanimous decision by district directors put the bus maintenance facility on 10 acres about a quarter mile past the San Rafael Post Office on Highway 17.

The district's fleet of 152 busses is scheduled to begin operation by December.

The bus facility will be on so-called Simms-Dodie Street property owned by Quail Hill Inc., according to the district's attorney, Thomas M. Jenkins. The site has been partly filled with material removed from Quail Hill west of the Northgate Mall.

Bridge district directors, after a 30-minute closed meeting to discuss appraisals of the property, authorized Jenkins to condemn 10 acres. Its price was not disclosed.

Also available from the owners was an option for an additional 15 acres. According to

ROSE GARDEN RITE

Tricia And Ed Exchange Vows

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Tricia Nixon married her "first and only love," Edward Finch Cox, Saturday in a Whitehouse wedding ceremony written by the bride herself.

The blonde and beautiful bride, in a low-cut, sleeveless white gown designed by Priscilla of Boston, went to the altar on the arm of her father, President Nixon.

Her attendants wore long silk organdy dresses of mint green and lilac. The groom, the father of the bride, and the eight groomsmen wore formal cutaway cuts, striped trousers, wing-collar shirts, ascot ties and grey gloves.

Tricia elected to be the first of history's 16 White House brides to say her vows outdoor in the floral splendor of the Rose Garden. She decided at the last minute to go ahead with the outdoor wedding despite possible showers.

Tricia's wedding gown, kept secret until the last minute, featured layers of translucent white silk organdy over a white crepe moulded underslip.

Appliques of rose pattern Alencon lace and embroidered white lilies of the valley beaded with miniature pearls patterned the gown. The sleeveless shaped bodice had an open neckline scalloped with Alencon lace and V'd to the front and back.

The skirting was a flared trumpet styling that flowed to a circular court train.

The bride's headpiece was a sculptured Juliet cap of pearling dimensioned with appliques of rose pattern Alencon lace and embroidered lilies of the valley to match those of the gown. Circlings of silk illusion, strewn with miniature pearls, in finger tip and floor length, cascaded from the sides of the cap.

Tricia wore white silk organdy gauntlets in three-quarters length, appliqued to match the gown. Her shoes were appliqued with lace. They had ankle straps and one and threequarter inch heels.

She carried a small bouquet of white roses, baby's breath, and Lillies of the Valley.

The marriage service, written by the bride herself, was notably brief. But it contained all the vows and promises needed to transform Miss Patricia Nixon, daughter of the President, into Mrs. Edward Finch Cox, wife of a third-year law student at Harvard University.

It was a stately ceremony, right out of Emily Post.

For President and Mrs. Nixon, it was a day of mixed emotions, as wedding days always are for the parents of much-

3-Year-Old Boy Drowns In Creek

A 3-year-old boy drowned yesterday while playing on the banks of Corte Madera Creek near the College of Marin in Kentfield.

Kentfield firemen and sheriff's deputies had to comb the dark labyrinth of a covered drainage culvert beneath the college athletic field for an hour before finding the body of Onnie T. Minyard, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Minyard.

Onnie had been visiting the home of his grandmother, Rosalie Victorino, 919 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, Kentfield. He and two cousins, Deanna Victorino, 5, and Deana Victorino, 3, had strolled from the home, crossed the creek at Stadium Way and were playing on the unfenced, rock-lined creek bank near the downstream end of the concrete channel.

The boy fell in at about 3 p.m. The incoming tide swept

HOSPITAL ROOMS

Rate Hikes In 'Secret' Budget

Room rate hikes to support a $10 million budget — whose contents were kept secret prior to adoption — have been approved by the Marin Hospital District board. (See another story on page 22.)

The 1971-72 budget adopted Thursday totals $9,967,000 and represents a $1,400,000 increase over this year's.

Efforts by the Independent-Journal Wednesday to obtain a copy of the multi-million dollar document for publication prior to the meeting were rebuffed by hospital officials.

They said the board's policy is not to release budget information until after the board had acted on it.

Marin General Hospital administrator Ray K. Bollinger said that to balance raising operational costs, the board agreed to increase hospital room rates.

A breakdown of daily rate increases shows: emergency room rates hiked from the current $8.50 to $10; nursery room rates up from $28 to $34; semi-private room rates from $50 to $58; special-care nursery room rates from $33 to $43; semi-private room rates in the coronary unit from $70 to $82; private room rates in the coronary unit from $100 to $112, and intensive care unit rates from $125 to $145.

Besides increases in room rates, Bolinger said, the board also approved hikes in certain hospital services.

Those include an average increase of $10 for child deliveries; $10 for operations, $2 each for X-ray services and radiation therapy, 25 cents for pharmacy use and 93 cents for physical therapy.

Bolinger said the approved increases still keep Marin General's patient costs substantially lower than at other Bay Area hospitals.

The overall budget, which the

'Hymn To Headlands' Is Tomorrow

"Hymn to the Headlands," a concert on Mount Tamalpais at 1 p.m. tomorrow, will feature symphonic, electronic and ancient classical Indian music in an effort to please people of various musical tastes.

Performing will be the Marin Symphony Orchestra, Marin Youth Orchestra, an electronic trio, and Indian instrumentalist Ali Akbar Khan.

The Marin Symphony will open the program with the Overture to Oberon by von Weber and will play the Prokofiev Symphony No. 5 as its major work. Sandor Salgo is the conductor.

Denny Zeitlin, a pioneer in electronic musical devices, will use four keyboards. He will be joined by Mel Graves on bass and George March, percussion.

The youth orchestra, conducted by Hugo Rinaldi, will play music by Chavez, Mozart, Rossini and Hovhaness.

Ali Akbar Khan will close the program with Indian music played on the sarod, a stringed instrument. He will be accompanied by Huessin on the tablas.

The concert is to be a benefit in support of creating a national recreational area in the Golden Gate Headlands.

Channel 9 Shows Gain

Public television is alive, well, and growing in Northern California, according to a recent audience survey of KQED (Channel 9), San Francisco.

The survey concluded that well over a third of the television viewing households in the Bay Area watch KQED at least once a week.

Prepared by Stanford University's Institute for Communication Research, the study estimated 636,000 households or 35.7 per cent of all TV-owning households weekly, representing a 20.6 per cent gain over the last similar audience measurement made in 1966.

The survey took place from Nov. 12 to 18, 1970. During that week 244 trained volunteer interviews placed 21,465 telephone calls throughout the Bay Area between the hours of 6 p.m. and 10 p.m.

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

Queen's Birthday

LONDON (UPI)—More than 1,000 guardsmen, wearing brilliant scarlet and glittering gold, slow marched before Queen Elizabeth and millions of her subjects today to recreate a centuries-old ceremony marking the monarch's official birthday.

All the household guard regiments were represented in the annual trooping the color as the queen, their colonel-in-chief, dressed in a scarlet tunic and tricorn hat, rode from Buckingham Palace down The Mail.

Reagan Prediction

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Gov. Ronald Reagan predicts that if a tax reform is not voted by the Legislaturean "you'll see another Proposition 9 on the next ballot —and it will pass."

The governor was refering to an unsuccessful 1968 proposition which would have limited property taxes to one per cent of property value, instead of the present roughly two per cent.

Egyptian Budget

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Egyptian Treasury Minister Abdel Asis Hijazi presented the People's Council a budget proposal of $6.77 billion budget today, including a record defense allocation 11 per cent higher than last year, Cairo Radio said.

The $1.56 billion earmarked for defense represented 23 per cent of the total 1971-72 budget Hijazi outlined before the council, or parliament. It compared with defense allocations of about $1.40 billion for the current fiscal year.

Hajazi had said earlier the budget for the next fiscal year would reflect Egypt's increasing needs for national security and military preparedness.

Posthumous Awards

NEW YORK (UPI)—The late Whitney M. Young Jr. will be awarded posthumous honorary degrees from nine colleges and universities at spring commencements this year, the National Urban League announced Friday.

The league said the schools which have conferred or will confer degrees are Columbia University, the University of Michigan, the University of Denver, Northwestern University, Muskingum College, Bowdoin College, Bradley University, Atlanta University and Hebrew Union College-Jewish Institute of Religion.

Young was executive director of the National Urban League when he died suddenly while visiting Nigeria March 11.

Fall Decision

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Iowa Sen. Harold Hughes still is considering making the race for the Democratic presidential nomination and will make a final decision in October.

An aide to Hughes Friday denied a published report the former Iowa governor was concerned about a faltering campaign. The aide said Hughes admits he is a long shot for the nomination but cited a rise in public "recognition factor" for Hughes from 11 per cent in January to 48 per cent at the present.

"No final decision will be made until October, but the commitment is until October," the aide said.

Probe Into Riot

MEXICO CITY (UPI)—The government began today an investigation of the mysterious "Falcons," a paramilitary organization that broke up Thursday's massive student riot with gunfire and clubs and left at least eight students dead and 45 other persons seriously injured.

The administration of President Luis Echeverria, who ordered the investigation Friday, never has acknowledged the existence of such a network. But Mexican journalists and students said the Falcons are highly trained and well equipped and on the government payroll. The newsmen said they have had other run-ins with the group, but none so violent.

Numerous journalists and students said they saw armed men in civilian clothing weaving throughout the student parade route, beating up people both selectively and at random and shuttling them into police vans while the uniformed police stood by without interfering.

To See Nixon

BONN (UPI). — Chanceller Willy Brandt left today for talks with President Nixon that will coincide with a similar summit meeting of East German and Soviet leaders.

Brandt told reporters at a plane-side news conference he and the American chief executive will review the Berlin question, proposed mutual troop reductions by West and East, the enlarged European Common Market and other topical questions involving the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO).

Soviet Communist Party leader Leonid Brezhnev will be discussing the same or similar matters in East Berlin also next week with Erich Honecker, first secretary of the East German Communist Party, diplomatic sources said.

Standard Routine

DUARTE, Calif. (UPI)—The barrel roll performed by the pilot of a Marine Corps F4 Phantom moments before it collided with an Air West jetliner last Sunday killing 50 persons, was described Friday as more or less standard procedure.

"The Marines say that quite often pilots coming back to El Toro (the Marine Corps air station where the Phantom was based) do a rollover because that is the best way to clear yourself before coming down," according Wo Martin Speiser, chairman of the operations committee of the National Transportation Safety Board.

Car Plunges Into River; Seven Lost

CHESTER, Ill. (UPI)—A car driven by a 30-year-old mother carrying nine children for a swim in the Chester Municipal Pool plunged down a steep hill and into the Mississippi River Friday.

The woman and two children were rescued but seven of the children disappeared beneath the water.

The St. Louis underwater rescue team recovered the bodies of Debbie Canady, 12, and Tammy Clark, 6, inside the car, which was found in about 25 feet of water.

The search for the other five victims was halted for the night, but dragging operations were to resume today in search of the bodies of Becky Clark, 10, Norma Clark, 11, Cindy Clark, 9, Robbin Phillips, 11, and Becky Roberts, 6.

The driver of the car, Mrs. Charles Clark, Chester, and the two children rescued from the river, Donna Phillips, 9, and Tammy Canady, 10, were taken to Memorial Hospital in Chester. Mrs. Clark was listed in critical condition and the two children were in fair condition.

Authorities said the accident occurred as the car was coming down a steep hill at right angles to the river. Police said the car's brakes apparently failed, causing the car to plunge into the water.

Authorities in this small Southern Illinois community said it was believed Mrs. Clark was taking the children to the swimming pool, but decided to take a drive by the river first. There were no known witnesses to the accident, but a store owner said he saw the splash of the car as he ran from the store.

A reporter, standing near the edge of the water following the accident, said he saw a woman he knew with tears in her eyes.

Asked what was the matter, the women responded, "Somebody called me and told me my kids were in that car, and I can tell you I never was so glad in my life when I ran down to the swimming pool and saw those three ornery little brats who looked just like angels."

Havoc From Tanks Fire

MONITOR, W.Va. (UPI)—Four gasoline storage tanks, containing a total of 180,000 gallons of fuel, exploded and burned at an American Oil Co. plant Friday night, killing a company truck driver and destroying a post office and four houses.

The victim, identified as Argus Fitzgerald, was loading a tank truck and had entered the bulk plant to shut a valve when the explosion occurred, police said.

Flames from the fire shot across U.S. 119 and spread over a creek behind the post office.

Only One Year Of Accreditation

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—The state Board of Education has voted to extend its accreditation of the University of California at Santa Barbara for just one year because of disturbances and bank-burnings near the campus.

The boards accreditation committee had recommended the usual five-year accreditation extension for UCSB. But board member Eugene Ragle said Friday it should be cut to two years to put the school "on notice to stop violent protests".

Space Station Team Works Around Clock

MOSCOW (UPI)—The Soviet Union's Salyut space station crew worked round-the-clock shifts today carrying out scientific assignments ranging from medicine to mapmaking.

Tass, the Soviet news agency, said the three cosmonauts had such a heavy schedule of experiments that it was necessary to devise a shift system.

The men, Georgi Dobrovolsky, Vladislav Volkov and Viktor Patsayev, have been in space since they blasted off Sunday aboard Soyuz 11. On Monday they docked with the Salyut station, which went into orbit April 19, and crawled aboard to set up housekeeping.

In previous Soviet spaceflights, Tass said, the cosmonauts had slept during the eight hours each day when their ship was outside the zone of radio communications with mission control.

But aboard the 25-ton Salyut space station "the crowded program of scientific research and technical experiments called for a revision of this schedule and now the cosmonauts take turns to rest," Tass said.

Much of the cosmonauts' work involved detailed medical examinations of each other to determine how prolonged weightlessness affects them.

Tass said they took blood pressure and pulse at regular intervals, determined calcium loss in bones and measured changes in the water-salt balance in bones and muscle tissue.

The measurements were important for finding ways to prevent serious physical ailments caused by weightless flight. Scientists have discovered the prolonged trips in space cause the body to throw off calcium and muscle to deteriorate.

The cosmonauts also performed experiments involving studies of the earth's surface, Tass said, including the plotting of topographical maps and analysis of the atmosphere.

Tass mentioned no specific astronomy chores, but said the cosmonauts carried out tests of various telescope elements to find out which ones will be best for use in space.

The Soviets have said future space stations will be equipped with telescopes to study planets and stars without the distorting effect of the Earth's atmosphere.

'Feud' Is Denied In New York

NEW YORK (UPI)—Mayor John V. Lindsay and Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller "are not engaged in a personal feud," a spokesman for the mayor has asserted.

However, there has been ample evidence in the past week that the historical, personal animosity between the public officials has been gaining in intensity as a result of actions by the recently adjourned 1971 session of the state legislature.

On Wednesday, for instance, Lindsay accused the state government of "raping" the city. The following day, Rockefeller said the mayor was "not responsible for what he's saying" because he was "emotionally upset" by the two-day municipal employes strike earlier in the week.

Also, Rockefeller cajoled an exhausted state legislature to grant him authority to create a commission to investigate the financial practices of New York City.

In all, observers in governmental circles on both city and state levels perceive the latest jousts of the mayor and governor as signs they are continuing a personal battle to determine who is the top Republican in this state.

Russia Campaigning For Arms Cutbacks

MOSCOW (UPI)—The Soviet Union campaigned today for talks on worldwide cutbacks in arms, to include warships on the seven seas and troops in Central Europe.

Leonid I. Brezhnev, general secretary of the Soviet Communist Party established the line of the campaign Friday by offering to bargain with the United States on pulling back the two nations' mighty naval fleets from distant shores.

In a speech before 6,000 Muscovites in the Kremlin Palace of Congresses he specifically mentioned the Mediterranean, where the U.S. 6th Fleet confronts a new and powerful 40-ship Soviet armada.

Senior Western diplomats said the offer, along with other disarmement proposals, constituted the "most sweeping public statement in some time" by a top Soviet leader.

But one diplomat warned "it is a generality, and like a number of generalities we don't know if there is anything to it."

Brezhnev commented on the presence of both Soviet and American warships in the Mediterranean, the Indian Ocean and the Western Pacific.

"We have never thought and do not think now that it is an ideal situation when the navies of great powers sail for long periods at the other end of the world, away from their native coasts," he said. "We are ready to solve this problem, but to make an equal bargain, as they say."

The naval proposal was coupled by Brezhnev with his earlier call for east-west talks on reducing the number of arms and armed forces in Central Europe, where the mass of Warsaw Pact and North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) forces are concentrated.

The Communist Party leader raised the troop reduction issue May 14 in a speech in Tbilisi in the Soviet Republic of Georgia. Friday he carried the offer a step further, declaring talks would include not only Soviet troops, but those of the entire Eastern Bloc as well.

The distinction is important, because the Warsaw Pact nations maintain large armed forces equipped and partly financed by the Soviet Union.

"We are asked the question: Does our proposal concern only foreign armed forces, or does it concern national armed forces as well?

"Our reply is that we are ready to discuss both the first and the second," he said.

MOUNT TAMALPAIS, SPRING DAWN

The long slow sweep of the morning
Had uncovered the mountain
Standing olive green to black in her pines.
The thin brown strips of man
Weaving endlessly upward
Tearing apart her primitive splendor.
Her rocks rebounding ray for ray
The first light of the dawning
The tin roofs of man's encroachments
Forever shattering
The regal solemnity which surrounds her.
Tall, unmoving, serene in her grandeur
Stood the guardian of our valley
In the early spring sun.

My burning heart I must appease,
Only at sea I will find peace.

Bridge Directors Grant Labor Pact

Golden Gate Bridge District directors, in a sharp break with past labor practices, yesterday reluctantly granted employees the right to collective bargaining.

The concession, required to qualify for federal transit grants, also provided that labor disputes be settled by binding arbitration.

In the past, district labor practices — wages, benefits and working conditions — have been patterned after those prevailing in San Francisco. The new agreement, however, meant the district will deal directly with labor unions.

The unaminous vote, beating a federal deadline by less than one hour, cleared the way for the district to get up to $6.1 million in a federal grant toward its $9.3 million bus system.

The district qualified last week for the grant, but final approval was conditioned on the agreement required by the Department of Labor.

The district's attorney, Thomas M. Jenkins, said he had to telephone word of the board's action by noon yesterday to the department in Washington so it could process necessary paper work in time for the district to get the grant this fiscal year — ending June 30.

The agreement was to assure the Department of Labor that the district's entrance into transit operations would not jeopardize job rights of any affected workers, primarily Greyhound Lines employees. The district's bus system will replace Greyhound in Marin by December.

Jenkins said that the Department of Labor had designated 22 labor unions as being affected by the district's entry into transit operations. "How they're affected, I don't know," he said.

The attorney acknowledged he would have preferred more time to negotiate terms of the agreement with attorneys for the major transit unions, but that the fiscal year left no more time to maneuver.

Other provisions of the agreement bound the district to pay lost wages and other expenses of workers whose jobs were affected by the district. Jenkins said these costs were unlikely since the district bus system will create 300 new jobs, more than Greyhound now has on the Marin service.

The Golden Gate Bridge District Board Also

INSURANCE — Approved a group life, disability and medical policy with Travelers Insurance Co. at an annual cost of $262,956, but referred to district consultants for review a policy with Transit Casualty Co. for bus insurance at an annual cost of $221,900. Warren, McVeigh and Associates of San Francisco were hired as risk management consultants at a maximum annual fee of $7,000. Director Dean N. Meyer of Mill Valley fought unsuccessfully to have both policies referred to the new consultants.

DESIGN — Approved a $3,000 contract with Walter Landor of San Francisco to design interior materials and color schemes for the district's bus fleet. His firm already designed the bus exterior color scheme.

TIRES — Invited bids to lease tires for the bus fleet.

SENATOR — Reported that Sen. Vance Hartke, D-Ill., chairman of the Senate Sub-Committee on Surface Transportation, will tour the bridge facilities on June 19.

WAGES — Conforming to industry contracts signed by the Marine Engineers Beneficial Association and the Inland Boatmen's Union, increased monthly pay scales from $1,123 to $1,200 for operators of the Sausalito ferry, from $800 to $875 for Deckhand I, and from $775 to $850 for Deckhand II.

FERRY — Received report that 20,334 passengers rode the Sausalito ferry in May during commute hours, and that 10,424 rode the feeder bus during commute hours.

Jury Returns Innocent Verdict In Robbery Case

A Marin Superior Court Jury deliberated two hours Thursday before finding Albert Daniel Torres innocent of robbery.

Torres, 20, of no known address, was accused of taking $1.15 from a 17-year-old boy in Sausalito, Feb. 11.

The boy had told Sausalito police that Torres began hitting him as he played pool in Town and Country Billiards, 1417 Bridgeway, and then grabbed him as he started to enter an auto outside the billiard parlor.

The boy said Torres pulled him around the corner of the building and began hitting him again and threatened to beat him unless he gave Torres all his money.

Torres admitted hitting the boy, but denied taking the money.

Missionary Slates Slides On Okinawa

Rev. Edward E. Bollinger, missionary to Okinawa, will present a slide show of his experiences on that island at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow at the First Baptist Church of Mill Valley.

Life In Prison For Setting Fatal Hotel Fire

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Alejandro Figueroa, 45, a laborer, has been sentenced to life in prison for 19 murders which resulted from a fire in an apartment hotel Sept. 23.

Superior Court Judge Paul G. Brackenridge Jr. termed the case "tragic" but said he was satisfied the defendant received a fair trial and that he was the man who set the blaze at the downtown hotel.

Testimony in the jury trial disclosed that Figueroa had been drinking prior to the blaze and had been involved in an argument with a resident of the hotel.

Citizen Of Year Deadline Set

Nominations for Corte Madera's Citizen of the Year Award will be accepted through June 28 by the town's chamber of Commerce.

The award will be presented during the joint Corte Madera-Larkspur Fourth of July celebration.

Candidates must live in Corte Madera and not be a current officer or immediate past president of the chamber.

Additional information may be obtained by telephoning the chamber at 500 Tamalpais Drive.

Californian Is New Head of Canada College

WOODSIDE (UPI) — Dr. James W. Duke, vice president of Ohlone College, Fremont, has been named the new president of Canada College.

Duke, 42, will succeed William H. Goss, who requested to be relieved of the job at the end of the current academic year to return to the faculty as professor of history.

The board of trustees selected Duke from among 100 candidates. His salary was set at $27,000.

The new president of the community college, which has an enrollemnt of 3,500 students, has said students "have no special rights because they are students, but they should not be handcuffed because they are students.

Werber Arraigned On Weapons Charge

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Frank N. Werber, 42-year-old Sausalito restaurant owner, was arraigned yesterday before U.S. Magistrate Richard Goldsmith on a charge of being a convicted felon who possessed three guns.

He is to return to federal district court July 8 to enter a plea.

Werber was indicted by a special federal grand jury which has been investigating organized crime in the Bay Area.

James Fitzpatrick, a member of the U.S. attorney general's strike force in San Francisco in connection with the organized crime investigation, would not say why Werber's case was handled by his group rather than the regular attorney' general's office.

The charge stems from a raid on Werber's De Silva Island home in Richardson Bay March 26 when agents seized suspected drugs and narcotics. The agents also took two pistols and a carbine rifle at that time bu did not charge the weapons offense.

The federal agents who arrived at Werber's home Thursday to arrest him on the guns charge said they saw suspected drugs and narcotics again and called local drug agents who arrested Werber again later.

Werber is free on bail in both cases and is to appear in Marin Municipal Court Tuesday in connection with the local drug arrest.

Although the bearded, long-haired former manager of the Kingston Trio has yet to serve any jail time, he was convicted last year of possessing and cultivating pot.

He was sentenced to six months in jail but that case is still being appealed on Werber's contention that he needs marijuana for his religion.

He also faces a trial on July 19 on charges of possessing seven kinds of drugs and narcotics stemming from the March raid.

Corn Blight

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The government has issued a special report warning that corn blight now appears to be spreading from field to field in the southern half of Illinois after originating in "volunteer" corn plants which sprang up from seed accidentally dropped from infected crops last year.

10 Drivers Sentenced On Drinking

Ten persons have been sentenced in Marin Municipal Court for drunken driving.

Sentenced Wednesday by Judge Peter Allen Smith were:

Leroy Frederick Freiden, 34, of Richmond, arrested Jan. 9 on Highway 101, who was placed on probation for six months and fined $240.

Carl Edward Magnus Strom, 65, of 7 Stetson Avenue, Corte Madera, arrested May 14 on Highway 101, who was placed on probation for six months and fined $240.

Sentenced Wednesday by Judge David Menary Jr. were:

Edward Adam Schneider, 55, of 726 Bamboo Terrace, San Rafael, arrested July 5, 1970, in San Rafael, who was placed on probation for six months and fined $302.

James Pettus Boyd, 47, of San Francisco, arrested May 29 in Sausalito, who was placed on probation for six months and fined $120.

Burton Louis Wilmer, 40, of 211 Canal Street, San Rafael, arrested May 29 in San Rafael, who was placed on probation for six months and fined $302.

Sentenced Tuesday by Judge Smith was:

Gary Bruce Heil, 25, of Pacifica, arrested Jan. 9 on Highway 101, who was placed on probation for one year and ordered to pay a $150 fine or serve four days in jail.

Sentenced Tuesday by Judge Menary was:

Manuel Jimenes Balensuela, 42, Sebastopol, arrested June 3 on Highway 101, who was placed on probation for six months and fined $100.

Sentenced last Friday by Judge Menary were:

Victor Leroy Boling, 55, of San Francisco, arrested May 8 on Highway 101, who was placed on probation for six months and fined $302.

Peter Mark Evans, 22, of Vallejo, arrested May 31 in Sausalito, who was placed on probation for six months and fined $150.

Lawrence Thorvald Cortsen, 52, of San Leandro, arrested May 31 in Fairfax, who was placed on probation for six months and fined $302.

The shores of lake Superior are the site of the greatest iron ore region in North America.

Scientists Plan March On Capital

BOSTON (UPI)—A newly formed group of employed and unemployed scientists and researchers plans a June 21 march on Washington to illustrate the plight of jobless professionals.

Ephrem Weiss, a physicist who is helping organize the march for the Association of Technicians and Professionals (ATP), said Wednesday the demonstration is to "offer information to Congress and the public on the effects of recent cutbacks in terms of individuals, the national economy and the future."

New Postmasters Named In Marin

The Postal Service yesterday announced the appointment of five postmasters in Marin County.

They are Stephen Popovich, Larkspur; Mario H. Pompei Jr., Belvedere-Tiburon; Glen M. Kerch, Nicasio; Leona C. Easley, San Quentin, and Ruth L. Mallon, Dillon Beach.

Popovich, 56, formerly assistant Larkspur postmaster, succeeds Llewellyn Crandall who retired.

Popovich, of 15 Hillcrest Avenue, has a wife, Jeanette, and four children. He served in the Army from 1940-66 and entered the postal service in 1967. He is a native of Brooklyn, N.Y.

Pompei, 43, succeeds Theodore J. Lehman, who also retired.

Pompei, who entered the postal service in 1949, had been assistant postmaster. He served in the Army from 1946-48. Pompei, a native of San Francisco, lives at 86 Granada Drive, Corte Madera. He has a wife, Yolanda; three daughters and two sons.

Kerch, former operator of Rancho Nicasio, replaces Nick Kobseff, who moved to McCloud, Siskiyou County, in 1968.

Kerch, 54, a native of Mill Valley, entered the postal service last year. He has a wife, Hazel, and two sons. Kerch served in the Navy from 1944-46.

Mrs. Easley, 54, formerly distribution window clerk at San Quentin, succeeds Valatet Eliason of San Rafael, who retired.

Mrs. Easley, of Napa, entered the postal service in 1949. She is a native of Glenburn, N.D.

Mrs. Mallon of Petaluma, named postmaster at Dillon Beach, replaces Gibbs H. Lawson, who died in 1968.

Mrs. Mallon, who has been in the postal service since 1944, was a distribution clerk in San Rafael, her native city. She has three children.

copper wire theft and interference in attempts to fix navigational aids.

Three men were arrested Friday on the mainland on charges of theft in the stealing of $600 worth of copper wire from Alcatraz. Warrants were issued for eight other "John Does."

Browning said that during a previous attempt to investigate the theft, a marshal was "shoved and threatened by some of the occupants" after the Indians had agreed they wouldn't interfere with him.

"Removal of the illegal inhabitants had (also) become an urgent necessity since the Coast Guard was prohibited from restoring inoperative nagi.ational aids with threats of violence," the U.S. attorney said.

Trudell told a news conference that the orders for the raid had to come from Nixon. He said the government had broken its word because federal officials promised no action would be taken during negotiations over the deed to the island in which he was participating. He said five Indians had been negotiating with Browning.

Early today, armed police came to Pier 40, from which supplies had gone to Alcatraz since the invasion. Indian spokesman Pierre Thundercloud said records of those who had helped the Indians were thrown into the water as the police approached.

No arrests were made and nothing was seized, but Thundercloud asserted that the police used the pretense that they were "looking for someone" to make a thorough search of the premises. Thundercloud believed they were looking for weapons, but none were found.

Since the Indian invasion in 1969, the Interior Department has obtained title to the island and announced plans to make it into a national monument.

The Indians rejected the plans, saying they wanted the island themselves for a cultural center and university.

The three men arrested in the copper thefts were John D. Halloran, Frank J. Robbins and Raymond E. Cox. They were held in lieu of $1,000 bond following arraignment before a U.S. magistrate.

him into the covered, concrete box lateral drain that runs under the athletic field toward Kent Avenue. The 5-year-old cousin, after trying but failing to pull the child out of the water, ran home to tell her grandmother.

Sheriff's deputies and firemen used a boat in the cavernous drain, and opened manhole covers in the field to locate the body. They found it 250 yards from the spot where the boy fell into the stream, deputies reported.

The boy had been visiting his grandmother while the parents, formerly of San Rafael, were completing purchase of a home in Petaluma. The father is an employee of the Industrial Building Maintenance Co. of San Rafael.

In addition to his parents and grandmother, the youngster is survived by three bothers, Tim Minyard, 13; David Minyard, 7 and Jim Swann, 10.

Graveside service will be held at 10:30 a.m. Monday at Mount Olivet Cemetery, San Rafael. Harry M. Williams Mortuary, San Rafael, is in charge of arrangements.

BUS

district oficials, the site could handle up to 195 buses and may be served by a future new interchange with Highways 17 and 101. The attorney also was authorized to seek an option on the Hutchinson Quarry property in Larkspur for a ferry terminal. bthe Larkspur site, reportedly to cost $1.5 million, was selected in April, as reported by the Independent-Journal.

Final action on the bus maintenance facility site had been delayed since April pending qualification for a federal grant up to $6.1 million for the bus system. That approval came last week.

Action on the ferry terminal had been delayed pending word from the federal government that taking an option on it would not exclude its cost from a federal grant sought toward the ferry system.

The district's special counsel, Richard J. Smart of San Franisco, reported yesterday that tha government had agreed an option would not disqualify the terminal for a possible grant.

Such grants generally cover only capital expenses for which funds have not been expended.

Jenkins said he also will negotiate with the quarry owners on the length and price of the option.

The ferry and bus sites were selected from several competing sites in Corte Madera, Larkspur and San Rafael.

The Simms-Dodie Street property will require 1.5 additional feet of fill

Directors, at the recommendation of District Engineer Robert E. Shields, invited two firms to submit proposals for engineering, planning and architectural work on the bus maintenance facility. They were Wagstaff and McDonald, San Anselmo architectural firm, and Sverdrup and Parcel and Associates, San Francisco planning and engineering firm.

RATES

rate hikes will balance, show next year's expenses (this year's in parenthesis) at:

Salaries and wages, $6,474,120 ($5,099,736); professional fees, $1,200,989 ($968,304); supplies, $1,891,644 ($1,614,312); depreciation, $277,214 ($258,600); employee benefits, $809,265 ($520,976); miscellaneous, $70,000 ($60,000); insurance and bonding, $96,000 ($60,000) and reimbursable expenses $1,153,925 ($54,000).

In related action, the board approved a portion of its capital outlay budget which will require a tax rate of about 1.5 cents per $100 assessed valuation.

Bolinger said the tax rate will raise $80,000 for additional engineering, filling and soils work on a section of land scheduled to be deeded the county for realignment of Bon Air Road.

loved daughters. They were proud that Tricia had chosen such a tall, handsome and well-born young man. They were saddened by the knowledge that, with both daughters married, they'll henceforth live alone in the isolated and lonely splendor of the White House.

The petite blonde bride, who demonstrated her independence by waiting until she was 25 to marry "my one and only love," composed her own marriage service, adapting bits from such diverse sources as the Episcopal Book of Common Prayer and Khalil Gibran's "The Prophet."

Dr. Edward G. Latch, chaplain of the House of Representatives and former pastor of Washington's Metropolitan Memorial Methodist Church where Tricia worshipped as a young girl, was the only officiating clergyman.

His opening address to the 400 guests —composed about equally of close friends and people too important to be left out — made an oblique bow to Tricia's Quaker ancestors by substituting "Dear friends" for the traditional salutation, "Dearly beloved."

Dr. Latch, a white-haired gentleman of fatherly mien, cautioned the bride and groom that marriage will inevitably bring sadnesses as well as pleasures, failures as well as successes.

"And so, unaware of what definitely is before you, you accept one another. To love is to appreciate and cherish our beloved as a unique person, deep, extraordinary, exceptional. It is to visualize him or her as an equal, yet complementing individual.

"Love each other, but do not make a bond of your love. Stand together but not too near together just as the pillars of a temple stand apart yet stand together."

Then came the ancient but ever-new question:

"Who giveth Patricia to be married to Edward?"

That was President Nixon's cue to deliver his one line speech, surrendering his cherished elder daughter to the care of Eddie Cox.

The vows exchanged in the double-ring ceremony were a modern-language adaptation of the 400-year-old marriage service found in the Book of Common Prayer which Eddie, an Episcopalian, has known since childhood. Edward took Patricia, and Patricia took Edward, "To have and to hold, to honor and to comfort, in sickness and in health, in sorrow and in joy, to love and to cherish from this day forth."

The original language of the Episcopal Prayer Book makes the pledge binding "until death to us part," but Tricia chose to substitute "from this day forth." However, she included in Dr. Latch's closing prayer a clear indication that she and Eddie were entering upon what they regarded as a lifelong union.

Tricia's younger but already-married sister, Julie Eisenhower, 22, was matron of honor. Eddie's sister, Mary Ann Cox, 25, was maid of honor. Tricia's cousins Amy Nixon, 13 and Beth Nixon, 11, were junior bridesmaids.

Attending Eddie as best man was his brother Howard Ellis Cox Jr., a 27-year-old Army captain stationed at the Pentagon. The eight groomsmen were schoolmates of Eddie or mutual friends of the couple.

The reception in the White House was highlighted by the cutting of an enormous six-tiered cake, nearly seven feet in height, whose ingredients had become the subject of brisk national controversy among food experts when the recipe was made public last week. Among the other refreshments offered to the guests were Champagne (both pink and white types), tiny brioches stuffed with chicken and mushroom, cheese fondue, and fried shrimp in coconut.

Breaking with custom, Tricia declined to change into a going-away outfit, and departed in her wedding gown for their honeymoon in a "very private place" whose location has been carefully kept secret.

lived in Chicago but he believed he was "just destined to go to North Vietnam."

The stewardess described him as "a very nervous type of person" but said she was impressed that "he really seemed concerned for his family." Police in Chicago said he had no criminal record.

About 30 minutes into the two-hour flight, the hijacker told Miss Culver he wanted to "check out the back of the plane."

Zito, who had been watching the gunman through a one-way mirror in the door of the flight cabin, went into action.

"I took two shots at him in the rear of the plane," Zito said. "He fell behind a seat."

Unable to see the hijacker, Zito handed his gun to First Officer Ronald J. Dupuis, 31, of Sparta, N.J., who shot twice more.

The hijacker fired three shots in return. One of them, Dupuis said, "missed me by two inches." The bullet passed through a crewman's hat on the cabin hatrack. The men and Miss Culver stayed crouched behind seats.

When the plane touched down at Kennedy at 2:30 a.m., the hijacker, bleeding from a wound, shouted, "I'm hit. I've had enough. I'm coming down."

On the hijacker's orders, Miss Culver, Elder, Dupuis, Zito and Flight Engineer Don E. Welshimer of St. James, N.Y., slid down an emergency escape chute, leaving him alone in the plane.

Spotting an FBI agent who had climbed up the side of the aircraft, the hijacker fired but missed him. The agent fired back, hitting the hijacker in the shoulder, the FBI said.

White was arrested and taken to Queens General Hospital where he was reported in fair condition.

White, who reportedly is married and has two children, lived until a week ago in an apartment house on Chicago's Lake Shore Drive.

OBITUARIES

Virginia Yopes Dies At 59

Mrs. Virginia Yopes, 59, past president of the Greenbrae Oaks Sunny Hills Guild, died yesterday at a local hospital after a short illness.

Mrs. Yopes, of 295 Vista Grande, Greenbrae, was the wife of Charles R. Yopes, retired manager of the Firestone agency in San Francisco.

Mrs. Yopes was a member of the Marin Art and Garden Center and Sunny Hills Bargain Box Council. She was a native of Kansas City, Mo., and had lived in Marin for 17 years.

Surviving, besides her husband, are a sister, Katherine Gibbs of San Rafael, and a brother, Jack Nicholson of Camarillo, Ventura County.

Funeral will be held at 4 p.m. Monday at the Chapel of the Hills, San Anselmo. Inurnment will be private.

MRS. PINCKNEY

Graveside service for Addie May Pinckney, 58, a 30-year resident of Novato, will be held at Mount Tamalpais Cemetery, San Rafael, at 11 a.m. Monday.

Mrs. Pinckney died Thursday, apparently of natural causes, at 125 Kadon Drive, Novato, where she had been minding the house. She lived at 7370 Redwood Highway.

She and her husband, Jack C. Pinckney of Middleton, Lake County, formerly operated a horse boarding stable, Jack's Horse Ranch in Novato.

She was a member of the NovaMarin Grandmothers Club and Novato Senior Citizens. She was a native of San Francisco.

Surviving, besides her husband, are two sons, Gordon W. and Jack C. Pinckney Jr., both of Novato; two daughters, Patricia Glover of Petaluma and Sandra Jane Wagner of Sonoma; a brother, Frank Kuch of Union City, and 14 grandchildren.

Friends may call at the Redwood Chapel Funeral Home, Novato, after noon tomorrow.

MRS. DULEY

Blanche Duley of San Anselmo, a 40-year resident of that city and a member of the Fairfax Women's Club, died today in a local hospital after a long illness. She was 81.

Mrs. Duley, of 48 Ross Avenue, was the widow of Frank Duley, a bookkeeper, who died in 1953.

Born in Kentucky, Mrs. Duley lived in Napa before moving to Marin.

Survivors are two daughters, Hattie M. Lachenauer of San Anselmo and Muriel Williams of Whidby Island, Wash.; two grandchildren and seven great-grandchildren.

Mass of the Resurrection will be offered at 9:30 a.m. Tuesday at St. Anselm's Church, San Anselmo, with burial in Tolouca Cemetery, Napa. Rosary will be recited at 8 p.m. Monday at Keaton's Mortuary, San Rafael. Memorial contributions to the Cancer or American Heart funds are preferred by the family.

MRS. BLUMENTHAL

Emma Loewy Blumenthal, 69, retired associate director of the San Francisco Jewish Community Center, died yesterday at a San Francisco hospital after a two-month illness.

Mrs. Blumenthal was the mother of Marcia Kupfer of San Rafael.

She was the widow of Louis H. Blumenthal, who was director of the center and its predecessor, the Young Men's Hebrew Association, for 35 years until his death in 1959.

Mrs. Blumenthal organized the center's summer day camp program and directed it until her retirement in 1963. She was a native of San Francisco.

Surviving, besides her daughter, are three grandchildren, all of San Rafael.

Service will be at 11 a.m. tomorrow at Sinai Memorial Chapel, San Francisco.

The family prefers contributions to the Emma L. Blumenthal Memorial Fund, in care of the Jewish Community Center or the Golden Gate Regional Center in care of the Aid Retarded Children Inc., 1362 Ninth Avenue, San Francisco.

BETTY DUFFY

Betty L. Duffy, 44, of 414 Eighth Street, Petaluma, died yesterday at a local hospital where she was taken after collapsing at work.

Mrs. Duffy was found unconscious in a rest room at the E. D. Bullard Co. in Sausalito, where she had been employed as an assembly worker since October.

Deputy County Coroner Bill J. Thomas attributed death to natural causes.

A native of Kingsburg, Fresno County, Mrs. Duffy had lived in Petaluma 27 years. She was a member of the Eagles Auxiliary of Petaluma and the Marin County Machinists Union.

Surviving are two sons, Calvin and Richard Duffy; two daughters, Calista and Betty Duffy; her mother, Helen Hayes, all of Petaluma; a sister, Erlene LaMar of Richmond, and three brothers, Harold of Portland, Ore., and George and Bob Hayes of Petaluma.

Funeral will be at 2 p.m. Tuesday at the Parent Funeral Chapel in Petaluma. Burial will be in Cypress Hill Memorial Park, Petaluma. Contributions to the Heart Fund are preferred.

Deputy Resigns, Won't Show Book

A 29-year-old deputy sheriff at the Marin County Civic Center has turned in his badge because he considers his notebook too personal to be examined by his superiors.

Thomas A. Hanley, a Phi Beta Kappa graduate in social anthropology, resigned his post last week after refusing to let Lt. Ronald A. Retana examine his notebook.

The notebook, used to write down names, addresses and other information following arrests and accidents, also contained personal thoughts and reflections, Hanley said. He did not describe the nature of the private material.

"I understand the reasons behind the inspection and I agreed that the parts of the notebook pertaining to my job could be inspected.

"But I feel it would be an invasion of my privacy to allow someone to read the rest," he declared flatly.

Hanley, who lives in Santa Venetia, had worked as a deputy sheriff since November. He is a graduate of the University of California at Berkeley.

He heaped praise upon Retana for the work he is doing as head of the security force at the Civic Center, but he said he resigned because of what he calls "a point of principle between gentlemen."

He described the reason behind the notebook inspection as one of security.

"If I were fatally wounded on the job, then anything I would have on my person could possibly be used in litigation — and that includes my notebook.

From his (Retana's) point of view, it would be best if the department knew beforehand what type of security information might be contained in that book," Hanley explained.

"Retana doesn't make decisions lightly — he's not a power freak," the former deputy said. "So he explained his views and I explained mine. Neither one of us would budge although we understood each other's reasons."

Hanley said his notebook was never opened by Retana. His interest was in the department. Once I resigned he had no further need to look into it," he said.

Retana, who said he couldn't comment on Hanley's resignation, said, "he did a good job."

Capt. Harvey E. Teague added, "We never had any problems with him (Hanley) — or complaints."

Hanley who also has a real estate license said he was not sure what type of work he would look for.

"I still don't know what I want to do when I grow up," he joked. He said he was considering state rehabilitation counseling or some type of in-depth media work.

UNUSABLE NOW — Thomas Hanley removes from his closet uniforms he used to wear as a deputy sheriff at the Civic Center. Hanley resigned last week rather than allow his superiors to read his notebook, which contained personal reflections as well as work data.

80 Cattle Romp In Las Vegas

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI)—A bit of the old West —80 head of cattle to be exact —grazed on the Dunes Hotel golf course and wandered about the Caesars Palace parking lot Thursday.

Sheriff's deputies on foot and in patrol cars eventually herded them into a temporary corral by waving their arms, making cowboy sounds and flashing red lights.

The cattle got loose after a flatbed truck carrying them from California to Utah lost a wheel and overturned after skidding onto a soft shoulder of Interstate 15.

High School Grads Get Scholarships

Three Marin County high school students have been awarded scholarships by the Heald College of Business in San Francisco.

They are Carolyn M. Trisciuzzi, a Sir Francis Drake High School senior who lives at 820 Reichbert Avenue, Novato; Dennis A. Reetz, 123 West Kelly at Hamilton Air Force Base, a Novato High School student; and Ann Marie Hamilton, 376 Via Hidalgo, Greenbrae, who attends Redwood High School.

Each will each receive $1,500 from Heald College.

West Marin Plan To Be Scrutinized

A proposal to scrap the West Marin General Plan, which includes a projected area density of 1.15 units per acre, will be presented to the Marin County Planning Commission Monday.

The commission will meet at 9 a.m. on the third floor of the Civic Center.

County Planning Director Werner Von Gundell, who will urge that a plan be written, has said density in the current plan is too high, schools and other buildings are planned along the San Andreas fault and not enough protection is provided for Tomales Bay.

Other items on the commission agenda include:

SWIG — Marin Community Services district will oppose an application by San Francisco hotel owner Melvin Swig for a four-lot split of 21 acres near Mount Shasta Drive and Lucas Valley Road.

INDUSTRIAL PARK — William Wright Jr. will submit a master plan for his 13-acre industrial park north of Airport Road at Gnoss Field.

APARTMENTS — Sea-Port Development Co. of Auburn, Wash., wants to build 330 apartment units on 24 acres of Ridge area south of the Strawberry Shopping Cener.

CAPITAL IMPROVEMENTS — Will discuss the county administrator's proposals for road and building construction for the next five years.

Innocent Plea Entered In Stabbing Case

I-J Special Report

OAKLAND — An innocent plea was entered yesterday for Christopher Nowsar, 21, accused of stabbing to death an Air Force recruiting sergeant from Novato.

The plea was entered in Alameda County Superior Court after the defendent apparently refused to enter a plea.

A trial date will be set Thursday for Cowsar, who was arrested April 30 when he attacked Sgt. Rogers S. Mobley Sr., 32, of 1088 San Jose Boulevard, at the Berkeley recruiting office.

Mobley suffered fatal stab wounds and Cowsar was seized with a knife in his hand by several persons in the building.

Nutritional Value In Cereals 'Better'

WASHINGTON (UPI) --Last July ronsumer advocate Robert B. Choate created a stir when he charged many popular breakfast cereals were virtually worthless in nutritional value.

Friday, Choate went before a House Small Business Subcommittee to testify the situation since has improved but that many cereals still contain excessive sugar that threatens dental health.

Since he made his charges last year, Choate said, many of the cereals had been fortified with vitamins.

"It is unfortunate, however, that a number of these newly fortified cereals are so sweet that sugar is their primary ingredient," Choate said.

He said some manufacturers perhaps should warn users of their breakfast foods to brush and rinse their teeth after eating to help prevent cavities.

An engineer and occasional nutritional consultant to the government, Choate testified as chairman of the Council on Children, Media and Merchandising, a group which attempts to protect children against alleged excesses in television commercials.

Choate said a child who watches television even moderately sees at least 5,000 food commercials a year. He said most of them promote snacks, sweets, soft drinks and other foods low in nutritional value. Choate gave the subcommittee his evaluation of cereals categorized "according to the problems they pose to ethical advertisers."

In Group One, Choate placed cereals he said could make "respectable nutritional claims" because they contained 21 per cent to 33 per cent of the minimum daily requirement for vitamins A and D, along with 33 per cent of the minimum requirement for Vitamin C, thiamine, niacin and riboflavin, plus iron supplement.

He listed them as Kellogg's Sugar Frosted Flakes, Puffa Puffa Rice, Cocoa Krispies, Sugar Pops, Special K, Froot Loops, Sugar Smacks and Apple Jacks; General Foods' Fortified Oat Flakes, Super Sugar Crisps, and General Mills' County Chocula and Franken Berry.

In Group Two, Choate placed newly fortified cereals "so sweet that sugar is their primary ingredient." He said the group included some he had listed as able to make respectable nutritional claims.

Group Two included General Mills' Kaboom; Quaker King Vitamin; Kellogg's Froot Loops, Sugar Smacks, Apple Jacks; General Foods' Super Sugar Crisps; General Mills' Count Chocula, Franken Berry and Frosty-O's.

Choate said he found Frosty-O's was low in vitamin fortification, while Kaboom and King Vitamin contained so high a dosage of vitamins it might be prudent for the industry to require a warning of possible excessive fortification.

Manila City Plan

MANILA (UPI)—A study commission has recommended that the Greater Manila area — composed of four cities and five neighboring towns —cooperate in joint projects such as a metropolitan transport system, electricity and water resources to effectively serve its combined 3 million population. The study said "a hodgepodge of local planning units in each local government will not do."

MR. AND MRS. JOHN KOWSKI
To live in Kentfield after wedding trip

John Kowski And Susan Cichy Marry

Susan Cichy of Corte Madera became the bride of John Kowski of Sausalito in a June 5 ceremony at Star of the Sea Church in Sausalito.

Matron of honor for her sister was Mrs. Karen Van Pelt of Daly City, and their sister Cynthia Cichy of Corte Madera was a bridesmaid. The bridegroom's sister, Vicki Kowski of Sausalito, was also a bridesmaid.

George Kowski Jr. of Sausalito performed best man duties for his brother, and the ushers were Michael Terry of Corte Madera and Kim Cichy, of Corte Madera, the bride's brother.

The couple greeted guests afterward at a reception at the Sausalito Woman's Club.

They will live in Kentfield after a wedding trip to Southern California.

Susan, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William F. Cichy of Corte Madera, was graduated from Redwood High School and is employed with Sierra National Bank in Mill Valley.

Mr. and Mrs. George Kowski of Sausalito are parents of the bridegroom. John was graduated from Redwood High School, attended the College of Marin and Golden Gate College, and is employed with Hiram Walker and Sons in Burlingame.

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

Teen-Ager From Split Family Divided Over Who To Live With

DEAR HELEN:

I'm a 14-year-old girl with two sets of parents. My sister and brother live with my mother and I live with my father and a step-mother who is weird. She doesn't want me because she and Dad have a family of their own. One minute she is nice and the next crabby. She thinks I don't love her.

My father pries into my social life and wants me to be a little angel, which no kid is nowadays.

I could go and live with my mother, but I can't get over her walking out on us like she did. Besides, she doesn't understand me either.

I guess I just don't like any of my family well enough to live with them, and I'm awfully mixed up. My mother would treat me the exact opposite from my dad, but maybe I don't want THAT much freedom either.

Which? — D.P.

DEAR D.:

Why don't you give yourself six months to decide? Meanwhile, stop seeing all the defects and try a little real friendship on your dad and step-mother. The results might surprise you. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

I'm a normal teenager. I dig boys, music, my guitar, etc. Also peace. But I don't dig all these four-letter words the kids use. What good does it do to shout obscenities at a speaker just because you don't agree with him? Or write ugly stuff on placards, or march along shouting words that just make the older generation mad?

That's a dumb way to conduct a "protest." Don't you think? — AGAINST BAG LANGUAGE

DEAR AGAINST:

Yes, I think! Wish the "protesters" would agree with us! — H.

DEAR HELEN:

I just started dating this boy and I like him a lot. But there's a girl who won't stop trying.

He's only 18, and she is 22. He went around with her for about six months, thinking it was big stuff, seeing an older woman, but now she says she is going to get him back, no matter what.

Do I have a chance against this "experienced" girl? I mean, she's loose, and at 16, I don't think this is for me just yet. — DOTTY

DEAR DOTTY:

Perhaps this boy has had quite enough of "experienced" women. The only way you'll know for sure is by "talking it out," telling him where you stand, and letting him choose between a demanding female and a fun (without games) teen. I think you'll win! — H.

This column is dedicated to family living, so if you're having kid trouble or just plain trouble, let Helen help YOU. She will also welcome your own amusing experiences. Address Helen Bottel in care of the Independent-Journal.

Mrs. Lyman Forecasts Greater Sex Equality

HILLSBOROUGH (BW) — Young women today can look forward to the time when they won't be competing in "a man's world" but working together with men to help each individual's potential, Mrs. Richard W. Lyman told the graduating class at Crystal Springs School for Girls here yesterday.

Mrs. Lyman, wife of the president of Stanford, said "I'm sure we'll see increasing flexibility in the timing of educational experience.

"WOMEN AND men will be able to change their occupational focus in the course of a lifetime.

"They will have to be able to move in and out of educational opportunities at various age levels."

She added, "Don't be afraid to be different. But stretch your minds and hearts to understand how it looks from the other person's point of view. You will be enriched just trying. Tolerance of individual or cultural or age difference is not easy or necessarily comfortable, but it healthy and constructive."

NOTING THE past stigma attached to single women, Mrs. Lyman said, "our hope for tolerance for individual variation should make allowance for those men and women who have no desire to be married.

"But don't be afraid to be married."

In a light social commentary, she observed, "in the present context of concern for population control, my four children are socially unacceptable.

"I know some of you are in the same boat with them, but it may be worth reminding you that both you and they were socially acceptable at the time they were born."

SHE COUNSELED the young graduates not to be "in too much of a hurry. Use the exuberance and vitality of your youth to try many things. And don't be too discouraged when the first experiments don't seem to work.

"There is a very important learning process in failure, and most especially in seeing failure conquered."

Proxmire Says He And Wife Have Separated

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., said today he and his wife have separated.

"By mutual consent, my wife and I will be living apart for a time. We are not planning a divorce. There will be no further statement by either of us," Proxmire said in a brief release sent to the Senate press gallery.

Proxmire's first marriage, to Elsie Rockefeller, a great grand niece of John D. Rockefeller, ended in divorce in 1955.

Later that year, he married Mrs. Ellen Hodges Sewall, who was serving as executive secretary of the Wisconsin Democratic organization.

Proxmire, 55, has been mentioned as a possible candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination next year.

SEW SIMPLE

Key Details For Swimming Suits

By EUNICE FARMER

I shall try to answer many of your letters concerning making stretch swim wear by incorporating most of the important details. Please clip this column for future reference; it probably won't be repeated this summer. These instructions apply to a bikini, two piece or one piece.

If your suit is to be made of stretch fabric, be sure it is a Helenca (two way stretch) nylon. It must also be chemically treated for chlorine. This would also apply to the elastic used. Thread could either be 100 per cent polyester or 100 per cent nylon. A ballpoint needle is recommended for your sewing machine.

MOST PATTERNS in the pattern catalogs are designed for fabric suits unless otherwise stated — these would not fit properly in knits. The "Sew, Knit 'n Stretch" swim patterns are very dependable, both for instructions and fit. We have found through experience that it is better not to use the stretch stitch on your sewing machine for stitching swim wear. It is apt to damage the fabric. Simply use a regular stitch, however, be sure to stretch your fabric in front and back of the needle as you are stitching. This will give you the proper "stretch and give" needed.

There are bra-cups available for swim wear. However, some women prefer a smaller, softer bra cup. These can easily be made by cutting a circle out of Pellon polyester fleece. Cut several small "V's" out of the outer edge of the circle, butt the cut edges together and zigzag together. The depth and number of cuts will determine the size and shape of the cup. The more cuts in the circle, the more shape you will end up with. For a little extra padding, you could make one circle slightly smaller than the other and tack the two together before applying to your bra top.

Most knit swimsuits will have a partial lining at least. This should also be a stretch fabric so the two layers of fabric will be compatible. Swimsuits are usually priced between $15 and $35, they can be made for a fraction of this. The best part of all is that they take very little time and are guaranteed to be individual. Please let me know if you have any other questions that I haven't answered and I shall try to find space for another little lesson.

TAILOR TRIX WINNER

Mrs. B. Mahoney, Louisville, Ky., is this week's Tailor Trix pressing board winner for her sewing suggestion.

"If you have trouble threading your machine needle, you'll find this little tip a time and temper saver. When changing thread on your machine, just clip the thread at the spool. Tie the next thread on the clipped thread and then pull gently through the needle and you're all set again."

DEAR EUNICE FARMER,

My 13-year-old daughter will soon be taking sewing lessons for the summer, and I am wondering if you would be good enough to give us some advice to start her on the way to a happy experience. I can't sew a stitch and blame it on a poor beginning when I was her age. I never did get the "sewing bug" again.

MRS. L.W.

DEAR MRS. L. W.:

I will stick my neck out and give a few words of advice based on the experiences of my own three daughters as well as the hundreds of teens I have started on the road of happy sewing (I hope).

First, and most important, please mothers, don't interfere. It is important to choose a qualified school with experienced teachers. If you don't agree with the methods they are taught, keep it to yourself until after her lessons are over. There is always more than one way to do most anything.

Encourage her all you can by giving her whatever you think you can afford for her first project, and then keep out of the picture. She is the one who has to work on it, and later wear it, let it be her choice, not yours. I have overheard many mothers say "Don't buy good fabric, you'll probably ruin it anyway!" What a poor start for anyone. It would be most unusual for a mother and daughter to agree completely on anything. After all, there is at least 20 years difference in age and there would be something wrong if there wasn't a difference of opionion. A beginner doesn't know enough about sewing to work on a piece of cheap fabric. Be sure her fabric has body, isn't bonded, and doesn't require matching a plaid or pattern. All of this will come later.

Don't expect miracles. Try to look back when you began to sew. If the first garment isn't absolutely perfect and she learns to love sewing, isn't that more important than ripping so many times that she is completely discouraged? Perfection comes with practice and although I wouldn't approve of a sloppy job, I would let a few things slip by. Call attention to it and expect better results with their second garment.

I had a very successful plan that worked beautifully with my girls, one of whom is taking after her mother and has her own business and school. Since children have a way of not wanting to finish anything they start, I would let my girls choose anything they wanted to make, price was hardly an object since they initially paid for it from their own money. The day the garment was completed and worn, I was more than happy to make a full refund. Try it, I think it will work for you, too.

Last of all, we all need ego builders. This can be just that for your daughter. Be sure to praise her on her work, her choice of pattern, fabric, and the way she looks in it. She may save you thousands of dollars ordinarily spent on clothing before she gets out of college. (I'll welcome any letters you wish to send me on your experiences.)

Twenty questions most frequently asked about sewing are answered by Eunice Farmer in her booklet "Twenty Questions." To obtain your copy send 25 cents and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for it to SEW SIMPLE in care of the Independent-Journal.

Greenslades Tell Engagement Of Their Daughter

Dr. and Mrs. Charles Greenslade of Petaluma have announced the engagement of their daughter Rosane Marcelle Greenslade of San Anselmo to Charles Andrew Adams of San Francisco.

Rosane is the sister of Roxane G. Greenslade of Petaluma and Brent C. Greenslade of Kauai, Hawaii. Mrs. Charles Greenslade of Santa Rosa is her grandmother. She was graduated from Montgomery High School in Santa Rosa and attended College of Marin. The future bride is employed by Pacific Telephone Company in San Francisco.

Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Sigwart of Zephyr Cove, Nev., are Charles' parents. He was graduated from South Tahoe High School and attended Santa Rosa Junior College. Charles is employed by Donovan Construction Company in San Francisco.

An Aug. 1 wedding is planned.

FIRING FLASHES IN THE NIGHT

Pistol practice in the dark brings a strange lighting effect at the San Rafael police pistol range. The firing last night was part of exercise being held for all Marin law enforcement agencies this month. Among the officers on the range last night was San Rafael police Sgt. Phillip D. Green (foreground), whose pistol spurts fire as he triggers a round at a silhouette target. (Independent-Journal photo by Alfred Arn)

CONTINENTAL TOUCH

A Brew Stirs Over Corkage

Marin County supervisor will uncork the issue Tuesday of whether public employees and citizens can wet their whistles while lunching in the Civic Center cafeteria or will have to trek a block or two for a beer or a glass of wine.

Cafeteria operators Donald A. Giovannoni and Camille Bamatter have told their supervisors their patrons want the continental touch of beer and wine with their repasts.

Supervisor John F. McInnis had the matter put over to Tuesday to give opponents a chance to say publicly what they had told him personally.

Among the critics are operators of at least three eating places within a half-mile of the Civic Center.

Beth Taylor, operator of the Taverna Yiasou across North San Pedro Road from the Civic Center was among the most vocal. She charged that the cafeteria operators already are in effect county-subsidized competition and said, "I'll fight it."

She said she was not opposed to beer and wine sales at the Veterans Memorial Building or at the county's McNears beach park.

Both the Marin County and San Rafael chambers of commerce denied intentions of taking any stand on the issue. Paul R. Ciampi, president of the San Rafael chamber, said Civic Center neighbors had opposed making beer and wine "so available" in the same building with the courts, jail and other county offices.

A spokesman at the state Alcoholic Beverage Control office in Santa Rosa said he was unaware of any law forbidding a beer and wine license in a county building. He said it would be researched by ABC attorneys if the question arose during a permit hearing.

On Summer Tour

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) —Barbara Eden, former star of television's "I Dream of Jeanie" series, is touring this summer in "The Sound of Music."

A Rumble Over Quake Area Aid

SAN FERNANDO (UPI)—A Senate subcommittee investigating the government's post-earthquake aid was told Friday that some private firms had stopped issuing quake insurance until the aftershocks stilled.

"How long do people have to wait in the San Fernando Valley?" asked Sen. John Tunney, D-Calif.

"I don't know," replied a top official for the American Insurance Association's western region.

State Sen. Alfred E. Alquist appeared before the Senate Public Works Committee hearing during Friday's second meeting and sharply criticized Gov. Reagan's role in aiding homeowners after the Feb. 9 earthquake.

Reagan, he said, "has exhibited total lack of leadership in the area of earthquake safety and disaster preparedness.

"Even worse," he added. "the governor has consistently tried to block efforts of the legislature to develop a sane and sensible program to reduce earthquake hazards."

A major concern of the subcommittee is the tide of complaints by San Fernando Valley homeowners that they could not buy earthquake insurance in the temblor-prone region.

Today's final session in the three-day hearing was devoted to testimony from valley homeowners, speaking at the Santa Rosa Catholic Church.

The committee, headed by Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., was told that some private insurance firms had pulled out of the earthquake protection business until aftershocks ended from the disasterous quake.

Cal Tech seismology scientists have previously reported that it's not uncommon for such earth tremors to continue one to two years after a quake of such magnitude as Feb. 9. The state's chief deputy insurance commission defended the private insurance industry and told the subcommittee hearing the federal government doesn't have to take over the task.

Commissioner Lawrence C. Baker Jr., testified, "I don't think that a federal program is necessary when it comes to earthquake insurance for dwellings."

He said homeowners could buy such protection at a price they could afford, but that businesses would have considerably more difficulty securing quake insurance.

Even if there were a federal insurance program, testified Baker, "It would not be utilized properly unless coverage were made mandatory in order to secure FHA-VA loans.

Showdown Vote On State Budget Set

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Assembly Democratic and Republican leaders have set the stage for a showdown vote next week on the house's expanded version of Gov. Ronald Reagan's proposed state budget.

Speaker Bob Moretti, D-Van Nuys, said Friday he will call for a vote next week on the Assembly $7.06 billion proposed budget, which is $250 million more than suggested by Reagan.

But GOP Caucus Chairman John Stull warned Republicans will block passage of the spending plan unless the measure is trimmed back to the sum proposed by the governor and welfare reform is reached.

"The Republican party is not voting for the budget in this form," the Leucadia lawmaker said.

Reagan's welfare program, meanwhile, was killed by a Senate committee and the governor has said he will not support a Democratic-sponsored substitute.

The Legislature must pass a budget by midnight June 30, or the state will be without authority to pay its bills when the new fiscal year begins.

For the past two years, Democrats have held up passage of the spending blueprint while they negotiated for more school aid with the governor. Both times the government functioned as usual.

However, this time the Republicans are the party which must supply the necessary votes—two-thirds in each house—to adopt the plan. Democrats have only majorities in each chamber.

"I don't think we can wait any longer than the middle of next week to vote on the budget," said Moretti. The Senate's version of the budget is stalled in the Finance Committee.

Assembly Republicans have issued Democrats an "ultimatum" warning that they'll refuse to vote for the budget unless bipartisan compromises are reached on welfare, educational finance, tax revision and Medi-Cal.

Stull said negotiations are continuing in all areas but welfare. "That thing has ground to a halt," he said.

But Assembly Welfare Chairman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael, said negotiations are progressing. He said Democratic and Republican Assembly leaders will be given an outline of possible areas of agreement on welfare reform next week.

Corona's Attorney Will Seek Court Continuance

YUBA CITY, Calif. (UPI)—Defense attorney Roy Van Den Huevel said Friday he definitely will seek a two-week continuance in the preliminary hearing for mass murder suspect Juan V. Corona.

The public defender said he needs "more time to study the information I am receiving, which is far from complete."

He referred to evidence against Corona, 37, a former mental patient, in the slayings of 25 itinerant farm workers whose bodies were found buried in peach orchards and brush along the Feather River. The prosecution has been ordered to provide van den Heuvel the evidence.

The preliminary hearing for Corona, who pleaded innocent to 10 counts of murder, has been set for next Wednesday.

Sheriff Roy Whiteaker announced a material witness, Juan Mosqueda, 50, had been released subject to a subpoena to testify at the hearing. Undersheriff Frank Cartoscelli said Mosqueda, a field worker arrested Monday in Stockton and released Thursday, was "just held for questioning."

Roy Delong, 52, also held as a material witness, remained in jail.

Air Base Smoke Burning Exercise

Smoke seen billowing from Hamilton Air Force Base Thursday and yesterday was due to a controlled burning exercise, according to Hamilton officials.

The base fire department was joined by Novato firemen in practicing putting out fires. Being burned were condemned buildings, according to officials. They added that permission for the burn had been received from the Bay Area Air Pollution district.

Bill Signed To Cut Firefighters' Hours

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —A bill cutting the 96-hour duty week of state Division of Forestry firefighters to 84 hours has been signed by Gov. Ronald Reagan.

The governor praised the firefighters for their "excellent record of dedicated service" and added "it is a tribute to this effort that we are able to reduce the duty time requirements for these exceptional firefighters."

Soledad Trio Counsels Get Extra Visiting Time

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) —A Superior Court judge granted additional visiting time Friday to attorneys for three convicts charged with killing a guard at Soledad State Prison.

Judge Walter F. Carpeneti also ruled that the attorneys' brief cases may be examined only for physical contraband.

Because of his his ruling, attorneys will now be able to visit their clients between 11 a.m. and 1 p.m., a period when until now guards were not available to escort them.

Carpeneti made the ruling because of the travel time needed for the visits by the attorneys who are John Thorne of San Jose and Richard Silver and Floyd Silliman on Monterey.

The judge rejected a request that sealed letters between the convicts and attorneys not be examined and ruled that outgoing communications pass through the usual prison security system.

The convicts, charged with killing guard John V. Mills in January of 1970, are George Jackson, 28, a Los Angeles robber; Fleeta Drumgo, 28, a Los Angeles burglar; and John Clutchette, 26, another Los Angeles burglar.

All are Negroes and the slaying was one of a series in the racially-troubled prison.

Because the defendants said they could not get a fair trial in Monterey County, there case was moved to San Francisco.

Bel Marin Keys Will Build New Park Facility

Bel Marin Keys Community Service District board has voted to spend up to $4,000 for a multipurpose court in Montego Park.

Chairman Anthony Sarganis was authorized Thursday to spend the money for a handball court with basketball nets at the park, according to Betty Zoeller, secretary.

The board also is looking for a part-time housekeeper for the community center. Applications are available from the secretary.

Members discussed the proposed joint powers agreement between the district and the county of Marin concerning future dredging of lower Novato Creek, Mrs. Zoeller said. No action was taken on the agreement which has not been drawn up yet, she said.

Whipping Ordered

ISLE OF GUERNSEY, England (UPI)—Magistrate Guy Blampied sentenced an 18-year-old youth to eight strokes of a birch branch Friday on conviction of traffic violations, disorderly behavior and resisting arrest.

TriStar Tests Set New Mark

PALMDALE, Calif. (BW) — Lockheed's L-1011 TriStar jetliner has flown at 643 miles per hour — well beyond the maximum it is expected to reach in airline service, the company has reported.

"The aircraft felt very solid and flew very smoothly at speed approaching the sound barrier. Flight characteristics were very good," said L-1011 project pilot Hank Dees.

The new speed mark was established in a shallow dive from 37,500 feet, the maximum altitude the TriStar has achieved during its test program. Successful flutter tests were also conducted at the new speed, Dees said.

200TH ANNIVERSARY

Still A Living Mission

By JERRY HENRY

JOLON (UPI) — Two hundred years ago three Franciscan Padres and a handful of soldiers hiked into an oak-dotted valley north of here in Monterey County and established the third of the California missions.

Like the others, Mission San Antonio, named by Padre Junipero Serra who hung its first mission bells on an oak tree limb beside the San Antonio River, formed the real beginnings of California's recorded history.

And like the other missions it was designed to bring nearby Indians into the web of civilization.

It was a living, working mission. The Padres taught the surrounding Salinan Indians how to farm to feed themselves, how to make cloth to cover their bodies, how to hammer hot iron into tools and how to pray to the white man's God.

Under Spanish rule it thrived and expanded. Under Mexican and early U.S. governments it declined and by the turn of the century it had fallen into ruins.

Tomorrow, when local residents celebrate its 200th birthday with a special fiesta, it stands restored, lying isolated in Father Serra's "Valley Of The Oaks" — a valley much the same as it was 200 years ago when the mission's only edifice was a brush hut.

Unlike some of the other mission sites, such as San Rafael's, there have been no urban encroachments here. The civilization which Mission San Antonio struggled to bring to the Indian has not descended to blot out its charm.

It remains surrounded by meadows of golden wild oats beneath a backdrop of untrammeled coastal mountains.

Also unlike the other missions it remains a living mission, in the sense that the Franciscans are again striving to make the mission meaningful these times.

families and single persons, have been living here since last summer, participating in what is called a Christian community program which was formulated at a Franciscan conference last summer.

The community members live in small apartments where former franciscans and Indians once dwelled. They share the same kitchen and the work including the tending of a milk cow, some chickens and a small garden.

In addition, they help the guardian, Father Francis Buismato, and Brother Timothy Arthur with various tasks about the mission including tending the museum and curio shop.

In their spare time they pursue their own interests, painting, carving, studying or just talking.

Mary Lou Goertzen, her husband Ernest and their three children, have been here since September. Both are accomplished artists from Berkeley, Calif.

Mrs. Goertzen explained the purpose is to make the mission relevant to today.

"It's a privilege to try to do this in such a beautiful place," she said. She is not sure of the outcome but she feels the project is moving in a positive direction.

"We live week by week," she said. "We have policy meetings every week to see where we are going."

It's an ecumenical program, not limited to Catholics. Mrs. Gertzen said she was a Mennonite-Quaker.

Possibly because of tourist visits, she does not have a feeling of being cut off from the world.

"It's deceptive," she said. "In a way it feels so remote. But I don't feel remote at all. I feel just as much in the middle of things as I did in Berkeley."

She and others will be among those who participate in the pageant Sunday to celebrate the founding of Mission San Antonio.

There will be a costumed procession, a barbecue, the celebration of masses, the old world custom of blessing the animals and the fields and other activities to commemorate the history of this adobe-constructed memorial of man's attempt to civilize an unfettered race.

The celebration is being held tomorrow, the fiesta day of St. Anthony, although Father Serra actually first rang the mission bells at a site some three miles from the present mission on July 14, 1771.

The mission grew and prospered until the Mexicans gained independence in 1821.

Government officials took more and more control over the mission and it went into a period of decline. The pattern continued after the United States government took over in 1846 and after the death of the mission's final guardian Father Dorteo Ambris in 1882, the buildings were abandoned.

During the period of abandonment the buildings fell into disrepair and tiles and timbers were taken by neighboring ranches.

Other neighboring families managed to save some of the relics including historic statues, paintings and even the mission branding iron.

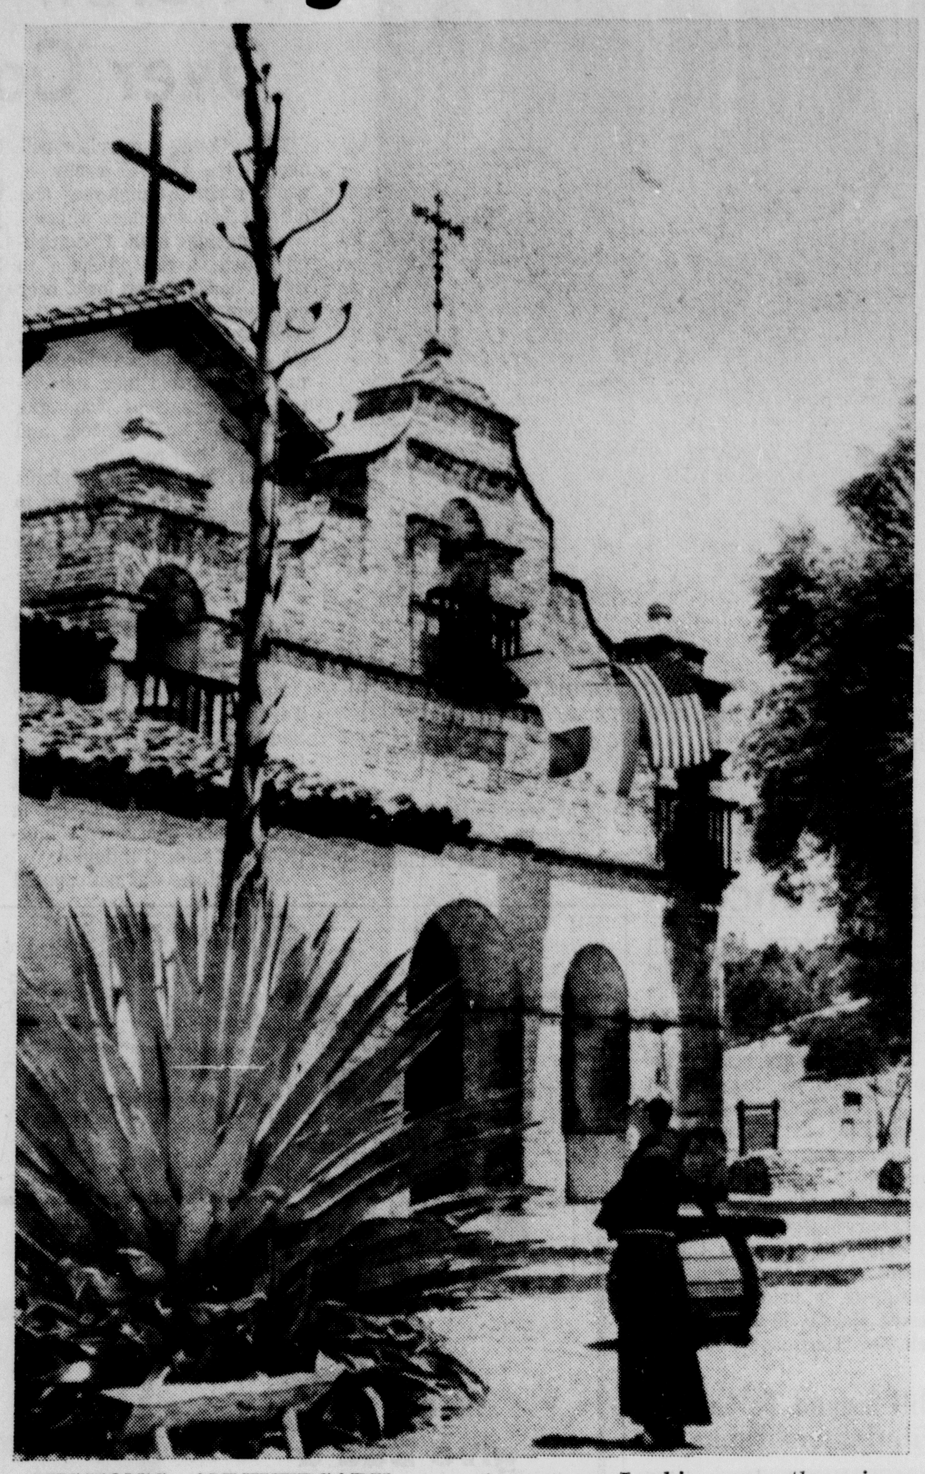
When restoration began in 1949 following a $50,000 donation from the Hearst Foundation, many of the relics were returned and may now be seen.

Museum of Anthropology and the Floating Gardens of Xochomilcho.

The trip is being paid for by $1,500 which the students have raised over the past yer.

Accompanying the students will be a registered nurse and the church pastor, Rev. Dale Nystrom, and counselors Mr. and Mrs. George Unsoeld, Suzy Gazlay, Laveda Vinson, Kelly Donaldson and Mrs. Nystrom.

Students making the trip by car caravan include the group's officers, Kathy Wells, president; Margie Unsoeld, vice president; Nina Wlsterlund, secretary, and Jodi Nystrom, treasurer, and Debbie Hibbs, Cindy Hibbs, Kathy Stephens, Vickie Taylor, Melissa Toninni, Wendy Hamilton, Dianne Campbell, John Anderson, Jeff Ashmun, Clarke Harding, Jim Owens, Rick Tallariti, Jim Peterson, Jay Baker, Chris Unsoeld and Caren and Sheri Nystrom.



MISSION'S ANNIVERSARY — Mission San Antonio, located in the oak-dotted valley north of Jolon in Monterey County will observe its 200th anniversary tomorrow. Looking over the mission on the eve of the celebration is Franciscan Brother Timothy Arthur, OFM.

Church Youth Will Join Work Project In Mexico

Twenty-eight senior high school youth and adults of Lucas Valley Community Church will leave tomorrow for a three-week work project in Mexico City.

As guests of the Seminario Bautista de Mexico, the students will work on finishing aspects of the "Aviacion Civil Iglesia" and cleanup details at the Aztec conference grounds.

While in Mexico outside activities will include fiestas staged by the Mexican church and sightseeing tours to the Pyramids of Teotihaucan, the

Services Will Be By Church School

Landon Court at the First Presbyterian Church of San Anselmo will be the setting for the 10 a.m. worship service tomorrow, prepared and conducted by church school staff and children.

Immediately following the service, which concludes the year's church school for summer, a reception will be held for Rev. and Mrs. Roswell C. Gordon and their family. Gordon will become pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of St.Helena on Tuesday.

New Church Official Is Announced

Dr. Robert D. Rasmussen, currently director of the Commission on the Ministry of the American Baptist Church, will become executive minister for the American Baptist churches in the Bay area in August.

Rasmussen will replace Dr. Russell S. Orr, who is retiring. Orr, will remain active, however. He will serve as interim executive secretary for the Chicago Baptist Association.

Rasmussen is a graduate of the American Baptist Seminary of the West in Berkeley and earned his doctorate of philosophy from Boston University.

The American Baptist Churches of the West includes 230 congregations in Northern California and Nevada.

New Office Will Deal With Draft

NEW YORK (LC) — The Lutheran Council in the USA has established an office of Lutheran Selective Service Information and has named Charles P. Lutz as director of the program.

Lutz, 39, who has been associate executive secretary in the New York office of the World Council of Churches for nearly two years, assumed his new post at headquarters of the Lutheran Council May 1.

The office, it was explained by Dr. C. Thomas Spitz, general secretary of the cooperative agency, will provide Lutherans with a central clearing house for information about the Selective Service System, including legal alternatives to military service.

For the first year, the office will be sponsored and financed by five units of the American Lutheran Church and the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod — the ALC's Board of Social Service and its Board of Youth Activity, and the LCMS's Board of Social Ministry, Board of Youth Ministry, and Walther League, its youth auxiliary.

The Lutheran Church in America's Board for Social Ministry and its Commission for Youth Ministry will be related to the program in an advisory capacity.

Each of the agencies plans to contribute staff time to the program in the equivalent of one-half day per week for a staff member from their respective units.

NBC Will Tape Discussion On VD

Following Friday's 8:15 p.m. Sabbath service at Congregation Rodof Sholom on South San Pedro Road, NBC will tape a discussion on venereal disease.

Panelists will be Rev. John O'Connor, formerly of Marin who is now with the Catholic Social Services Agency in San Francisco; Rev. Francis Geddes of the First Congregational Church of Santa Venetia, and Rabbi David Davis.

20 GERMAN CHURCHES UP FOR GRABS—FREE

MARBURG, Germany (GF) — Anyone interested in having an old, historic church for free? In the vicinity of West Germany's Marburg, there are 20 up for grabs.

The churches are all located in smaller towns and have long since closed down for religious services. In fact, a number are being used as storehouses, which disturbs many local officials and residents.

The churches were given up as religious centers as new ones were built or as communities grew smaller and attendance shrank to near zero.

Renovation costs of the historic structures simply became prohibitive for the towns with their small populations and this forms the expensive side of the contract for prospective new owners.

Namely, they can have the churches for free only if they agree to carry the maintenance costs. A possibility, of course, would be to reopen one of the renovated shrines as a religious museum.

COURSE IN ROME

Spooks, Demons In Respectable Spot

By BARRY JAMES

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — Spooks, demons and things that go bump in the night have found a respectable position at Rome's Pontifical Lateran University. It has an Austrian priest-psychiatrist, Rev. Andrea Resch, teaching a course in which such phenomena as poltergeists and possession by demons are seriously considered.

Resch, 37, calls his specialty "paranormology." In a dispassionate tone, he tells students there are some things that cannot be explained by normal means, and he examines "psychic phenomena" — including seances and what happens during them, water divining, the levitation and bilocation of saints, miracle cures, stigmata, ghosts and even Ouija boards.

Next semester, he promises "practical experiments" in extra-sensory perception, mental telepathy and spiritualism — but has yet to describe exactly what he will do.

Although the Roman Catholic Church bans participation in seances, it makes an exception for scientific researchers.

Another man who combined the priesthood with the study of the bizarre was the Rev. Victor Jouet, who died in Rome in 1912 after having amassed a unique collection of finger marks scorched into religious books and other objects. He believed they were made by souls in purgatory.

Jouet began his singular research after a fire destroyed the main altar of his church. The priest believed he saw a tormented soul among the flames.

After this, Jouet traveled extensively in Italy, France, Belgium, Austria and Germany for earthly evidence of purgatory.

His findings used to be kept in a museum off the neo-gothic Sacred Heart church in Rome. But the present custodians of the church apparently care little for the collection, and have reduced the museum to a small showcase of finger-charred objects.

There is, for example, a scorched shirt which an explanatory note says was once the property of Joseph Leleux of Belgium.

This unfortunate gentleman, the note says, was terrified in 1789 by 11 nights of demonic noises followed by the apparition of his late mother in a whirlwind of flame.

Handbell Choir Will Make Tour

The Jubal Ringers, senior handbell choir at St. Luke Presbyterian Church in San Rafael, will leave tomorrow for a four-city tour presenting concerts in Salinas, Bakersfield, Whittier and Long Beach.

Directed by James Groves, the group's repertory includes music from the classic, romantic and baroque periods, hymns, folk tunes, popular and contemporary selections and novelty pieces.

Making the tour will be Pam Bergman, Debbie Daunt, Chris Dill, Cathy Ford, Cinda Gilliland, Susan Maggy, Lisa Provencher, Mark Showers, Larry Simmelink, Karen Smith, Nancy Walker, Kathy Van Herwynen, and Sandy Van Herwynen.

Also accompanying the group and their director, will be Mrs. Arthur Koenig and Mrs. Robert Maggy.

The Jubal Ringers will present a pretour public concert at the church, 10 Bayview Drive, at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow.

Blessing Of Pets Set Tomorrow

The Community Congregational Church of Tiburon will celebrate the Festival of St. Francis tomorrow with blessing of pets at the 8 and 10 a.m. services.

Weather permitting, the services will be held on the hilltop adjacent to the church.

Following the 10 a.m. service, David Youngdahl, who has a painting exhibit at the church, will present a lecture.

Registration Set For Bible School

Registration for the annual vacation Bible school at the First Baptist Church of San Rafael will be held at 10 a.m. next Saturday.

The school will begin at 9 a.m. June 21 and continue through June 30 at 1411 Lincoln Avenue. The school is over at noon each day.

President Leaves

Rev. John P. Strand, first and only president of the Association of Free Lutheran Congregations in its nine years in existence, has resigned from the office effective Oct. 1 to return to parish ministry.

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING IN THE MATTER OF CITY OF MILL VALLEY

The California Regional Water Quality Control Board, San Francisco Bay Region, will hold a public hearing on Tuesday, June 22, 1971 at 7:30 p.m. in the City Hall, 26 Corte Madera Avenue, City of Mill Valley, to consider issuance of an order pursuant to Section 13301 of the California Water Code requiring the City of Mill Valley to cease and desist from discharging waste in violation of waste discharge requirements which were adopted on February 25, 1971 and directing said discharger to comply with said requirements forthwith or in accordance with a time schedule to be set by the regional board. The specific requirements in question are the following:

Effluent disinfection, 5-day BOD, toxicity, turbidity and excessive flow

Receiving water floating matter and discoloration

Bypassing of untreated sewage

The board's staff, the discharger and other interested persons will be given an opportunity to present evidence concerning whether the discharge requirements have been violated and plans and time schedules for obtaining compliance at the earliest practicable date. The discharger and all other interested persons may, but need not, be represented by counsel. The board will further consider whether to restrict or prohibit the volume, type or concentration of waste that may be added to the sewer system by dischargers who did not discharge into the system prior to issuance of the cease and desist order.

If possible, written copies of testimony to be presented at the hearing should be furnished to the board in advance of the hearing.

The regional board file on the discharge of the City of Mill Valley is open to public inspection from 8:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m. on weekdays.

Name's Spelling No Legal Import

Marin County Marine inspector Richard L. Larson was trying to figure out yesterday how he corresponded for two years with the owner of a Gate 5 houseboat without knowing the man's correct name.

Larson said the discovery that 24-year-old Russel Grisham does not spell his name Grissom — as the county had thought — will not affect marin's case against the artist's houseboat.

It was the removal of Grisham's boat from its Waldo Point berth Monday that touched off a miniature naval engagement on Richardson Bay.

"The action is against the boat, not against the owner," said Larson today. "Having the wrong name is immaterial."

The inspector said he got the incorrect spelling of Grisham's name — a spelling used in a story in Tuesday's Independent-Journal — from the artist himself.

"If a person doesn't straighten us out on his name, we can't know we have it wrong," he said.

Larson said he corresponded with Grisham for two years and "he accepted mail in that name" without informing the county of the error.

The inspector also said, "Some of the names (of houseboat owners) we get are pretty mixed up at times."

Jail Time For Use Of Card

Donald Gilbert Kennedy, 27, of Marin City, has been sentenced to 90 days in jail for having a credit card without the owner's consent.

Judge David Menary Jr. of Marin Municipal Court gave Kennedy credit for time already spent in jail. Kennedy was arrested May 4 on suspicion of possessing stolen property, as well as the credit card charge, but only the misdemeanor charge was filed against him.

San Rafael police said he attempted to make a purchase in a shoe store with a credit card that had been reported stolen.

Mill Valley Bond Issue Discussions Set On KTIM

Mill Valley city officials and a city councilman will discuss the $1.8 million capital improvement bond issue, set for a June 29 vote, on a series of programs on KTIM radio starting Monday.

City Mgr. William H. Cunningham will explain the entire bond package at 9:15 a.m. Monday on Home Town News, with Virginia Spalding of Homestead Valley.

Other bond issue discussions, all beginning at 9:15 a.m., are Wednesday, Don L. Dimitratos, parks and recreation director, speaking on park improvements and a municipal swimming pool; June 21, Ross Benson, public works director, on streets and sewers, and a representative of the fire department on a proposed East Mill Valley fire station.

Councilman Jean S. Barnard will conclude the series on June 28, the day before the election, with a general discussion on why the bond issue is important to Mill Valley.

Included in the bond package are repair of almost every city street, $500,000; sewer main replacement and repair, $450,000; a new fire station, $240,000; storm drain improvements, $300,000; two tennis courts for Boyle Park, $90,000, and a swimming pool, $250,000.

City voters may approve some of the items and reject others. If all are approved, the city manager has estimated the city property tax rate will go up 40 cents per $100 assessed valuation.

Radiology Equipment Lease Purchase Pact

A five year lease-purchase agreement totaling $105,000 for radiology equipment has been approved by the Marin Hospital District board.

The lease was approved Thursday as an alternative to purchasing the replacement equipment outright at a cost of about $80,000.

According to Ray K. Bolinger, the board's decision to pay General Electric Co., the higher amount over a period of years will allow patient fees to purchase the equipment.

Had the board selected the lower figure, he said, a cent and a half tax rate would have been required.

"This insures that those that use the equipment pay for it," he said.

The Marin Hospital District board also:

HOSPITAL PRIVILEGES — Extended courtesy hospital privileges to Dr. Kenneth M. Kressenberg of Novato, a surgeon; Dr. Leslie D. Kurian of Kentfield, a psychiatrist; and Dr. Natalie K. O'Bryne of San Anselmo, a psychiatrist; also associate privileges to Dr. James A. Bahtiar of Kentfield, a psychiatrist.

OFFICE LEASE — Authorized the Marin Community Mental Health Center to sign a two-year lease at $15,180 per year for office space at 20 H Street, San Rafael.

BON AIR ROAD — Heard a report that proposed realignment of Bon Air Road must be delayed another year.

CAPITAL OUTLAY — Received preliminary reports on the district's capital outlay budget which will be considered at the board's next meeting, June 22. Under consideration are proposed remodeling projects at the hospital's nursery, coronary care unit and radiotherapy unit and upgrading of the hospital's electrical system. No cost figures were presented for the budget.

Public Housing School Funds Backed In Senate

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Senate has voted for the first time to compensate communities for educating children from public housing.

The provision was contained in a $5.6 billion school aid appropriations bill approved unanimously Thursday.

The Senate refused on a voice vote Thursday to eliminate from its version of the legislation a $60 million allowance activating the public housing provision which Congress authorized in 1969 but had never financed.

The bill exceeds President Nixon's request by $904 million, according to an administration memorandum circulated on the Senate floor. But Senate supporters said it was only $451 million higher.

McCarthy Hints Primary Interest

NEW YORK (UPI)—Eugene McCarthy, who unsuccessfully sought the Democratic presidential nomination in 1968, said Thursday he might enter the party's 1972 primaries in order to exert some influence at the national convention.

McCarthy, in an interview with The New York Times, did not rule out the possibility that he might run as a third party candidate or that he might do both—run in the primaries and on a third ticket.

"I don't close any doors," The Times quoted him as telling 50 New York Democratic leaders at a private meeting Thursday.

Houseboat Rock Event Nets $850

A benefit rock concert held this week by Sausalito's houseboat colony netted $850 and drew approximately 600 persons to the ferryboat Charles Van Damme where the event was held, according to Robert Kallock, a spokesman for the houseboaters.

He said the residents plan to use the money for legal fees and other expenses resulting from their fight to keep Marin County from removing and demolishing some 30 houseboats now located in the Waldo Point area. The county, which made an unsuccessful attempt to remove the five boats Monday, contends the vessels do not meet county safety and sanitary standards.

The concert Wednesday included rock bands and entertainer from the colony, Kallock said.

Bird, Animal Lecture Is Set

An illustrated lecture of birds and animals of the Falkland Islands, Antartica and Patagonia will be given by Ian Strange at 8 p.m. Tuesday in Olney Hall at the College of Marin.

Strange, an English naturalist, has spent the past eight years studying and photographing wildlife of these areas. He seems to gain public support to preserve the rich and varied wildlife of the region.

His lecture is sponsored by the Peninsula Conservation Foundation, the California Academy of Science, California Institute of Man in Nature, the Sierra Club, the Committee for Green Foothills and Audubon Society.

Mets Goof, Giants Snap Loss Streak

Mays Has A Hand In Win

By FRED McMANE
UPI Sports Writer

Once again the New York Mets got crossed up pitching to Willie Mays.

This time, however, the circumstances were a bit unusual.

The 40-year-old Mays, playing his first game in New York this season, was batting in the 10th inning with two out and Hal Lanier on second Friday night when reliever Tug McGraw, misreading a sign from catcher Jerry Grote, uncorked a wild pitch. When Grote lost sight of the ball and was unable to retrieve it, Lanier scored from second to give the San Francisco Giants a 3-2 victory.

Lanier, a late inning replacement, led off the inning with a double and was waved home by Mays as McGraw was forced to retrieve the ball himself. The Mets argued that a fan touched the ball after it hit the backstop but home plate umpire Lee Weyer disagreed and eventually Mets' Manager Gil Hodges was ejected from the game for protesting too strenuously.

As it turned out the Mets' argument carried no weight since the rulebook states that even if a fan touches the ball it still is up to the umpire to decide whether the interference had any bearing on the play. In this case, Weyer felt that it did not.

"Even if the fan did touch the ball, and I don't think he did, there's no way in the world they could have gotten that man out," said Weyer. "The ball tipped Grote's glove and hit my mask and went straight up in the air."

Grote said the wild pitch resulted because of a mixup in signals. "I thought I called for a screwball and McGraw thought I called for a fastball. My target was low expecting a screwball and the pitch was a high fastball," said the Mets' catcher.

"There was a human error in there somewhere," added McGraw, "but how could I let Lanier hit a double off me in the first place?"

McGraw's wild pitch spoiled a dramatic ninth inning comeback by the Mets, who tied the score at 2-2 on a two-out, two-run homer by Dave Marshall. Willie McCovey's two-run homer had accounted for the Giants' early runs. Mays collected a single and a triple in five at bats before 52,486— the largest crowd in the National League this season.

In other NL games, Los Angeles routed Montreal 12-1; Pittsburgh trimmed St. Louis, 11-4; Houston nipped Atlanta 5-4, San Diego edged Philadelphia 2-1 and Cincinnati topped Chicago 4-3.

DECLINE, FALL OF UMPIRE Umpire Mel Steiner is assisted by Pittsburgh catcher Manny Sanguillen after he was hit on the arm by a pitch during last night's game against the Cardinals in St. Louis. Steiner recovered and the Pirates defeated the Cards, 11-4.

Carpeted Fields May Make Bunts Obsolete

Only three men in the history of baseball have piloted the same team longer than Walter Alston has managed the Dodgers — Connie Mack, 50 years with the Philadelphia Athletics, 1901-50; John McGraw, 31 years with the Giants 1902-32, and Cap Anson, 19 seasons with the Cubs 1879-97.

Alston, in his 18th season this year as manager of the Dodgers, properly is called today's "Dean of the Dugout." Six times he has led the Dodgers to National League pennants, four times to World Series championships in 1955, 1959, 1963 and 1965.

So Alston must be recognized as a knowledgeable manager. Yet, like every manager before him and every manager who will follow him, Alston is not immune to second-guessing in which some baseball fans take particular delight.

There was the time Alston was politely second-guessed on a Giant-Dodger game in 1962, an important game that the Giants won on their way to their pennant. He was asked why he didn't flash the bunt sign to a batter in what seemed to be an ideal sacrifice situation. Why did he signal the batter to hit away?

"How many of you would have bunted?" Alston asked his luncheon audience. Half of the crowd stood.

"How many of you would have hit away?" The remaining half of the audience stood.

"Well," said Alston, "that merely goes to show that whatever I did I would have been wrong with half of you."

Now, the bunt or hit away decision was one that Charlie Fox had to make not once but five times in a tight ball game last month in Candlestick. Four times the manager of the Giants signalled batters to hit away. Four double plays by Pittsburgh's classy defensive infield resulted.

The one time Fox did flash the bunt sign the sacrifice worked. Juan Marichal not only laid down the bunt but beat the Pirates 2-1 with a three-hitter.

With his pitcher at bat, Alan Gallagher on first base with a leadoff single in the fifth inning and the Giants trailing 1-0, Fox naturally had no hesitancy in ordering the sacrifice which ultimately resulted in a tie 1-1 score when Ken Henderson delivered a two-out single.

But why didn't he order the bunt in the preceding inning when the Giants had two aboard and nobody out or in the following inning with two aboard and again nobody out? After all, it wasn't until the seventh inning that Henderson knocked in the decisive run after Bobby Bonds had doubled.

"I realize better than anyone else that I put myself on the spot for a lot of second-guessing," said Fox, "but the bunt may become obsolete on baseball's new artificial playing surfaces.

"It's extremely difficult for a batter to lay down a soft bunt on the carpet which gives added momentum to the ball. But don't get me wrong. I'm not forgeting the bunt. I've just been giving it some extra thought not that we have carpeted infields."

Fox also gave some extra thought to another problem presented by the artificial grass surfaces. He re-aligned the Giants' infield defense, moving the corner mean away from the lines and the shortstop and second baseman closer to the second base bao. The result? Immediate improvement in the team's double play production.

Fox is appropiately named, a foxy percentage player.

Finley Enemy Comes Back To Haunt The Athletics

By JOE SARGIS

OAKLAND (UPI) —Jack Aker never forgets, and everytime he gets a chance to pitch against the Oakland A's, the adrenalin starts to flow.

Aker, who once pitched for the A's and left the club after a long faud with owner Charlie Finley, shut out Oakland over the final two innings Friday night as the New York Yankies rallied for a 6-4 victory.

"I haven't had much luck against the A's the last two years, said Aker, "but every time I get a chance to pitch against them the adrenalin starts to flow. I want to beat them more than any other club."

Aker has no quarrel with the Oakland players. In fact, many of them are his friends and he wishes them well. He's still mad at Finley.

Aker, it will be recalled, was the A's player rep while the club was still based in Kansas City. During the team's now famous plane trip late in the season he helped solve some club problems.

But Finley didn't like what was going on and fired Manager Alvin Dark and released Ken Harrelson.

"I was the man in the middle," Aker said, "mostly because I was the player rep. Finley, I guess, doesn't care to have any player tell him what to do."

After the plane incident Aker languished on the bench and even though he pitched well in 1968, Finley let him go to Seattle in the American League expansion draft."

Aker took over the New York pitching Friday night after the Yankees jumped Jim Hunter and Bob Locker for four runs in the eighth to wipe out a 4-2 deficit.

Hunter, who had helped himself with a run scoring double in the fifth and a runscoring single in the seventh, was five outs away from his 10th victory when the roof caved in.

A tripple by red-hot Jerry Kenney and a double by Bobby Murcer cut the lead to 4-3 and when Hunter walked Roy White, locker took over. He proved no mystery and A's manager Dick Williams indicated the veteran right hander may be passed up in favor of Jim Roland until he works things out.

"He's simply not getting the job done," Williams said of Locker. "I may go to Roland for a while and see what happens."

After Hunter departed, a single by Danny Cater off Sal Bando's glove filled the bases for New York. Thurman Munson followed with a two-run single and Gene Michael added a sacrifice fly to complete a four-run inning.

Singles by Kenney and Murcer and a double by White produced New York's first two runs in the opening inning.

Solo homers by Reggie Jackson, his 12th, and Dave Duncan, his eighth, accounted for Oakland's first two runs and Hunter drove in the others.

The loss coupled with Kansas City's victory over Boston, shaved Oakland's lead in the American League west to six games.

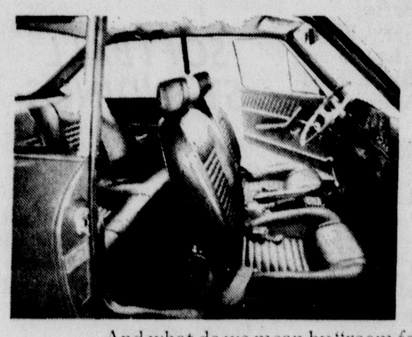
MOST CAR SALESMEN WILL TELL YOU THIS DOESN'T EXIST.

A SPORTS CAR WITH ROOM FOR FOUR ADULTS.



First, what do we mean by a "Sports Car"? Well, we don't mean a souped-up sedan with racing stripes.

The Fiat 124 Sport Coupe has a 1608 cc engine with twin overhead camshaft that turns out 104 bhp at 6,500 rpm.

It has power-assisted disc brakes on all four wheels and a standard 5-speed gearbox.

It's a car you actually drive, unlike most modern cars which you merely point.

And what do we mean by "room for four"? We mean legroom, headroom and elbowroom for four 180-lb. men. With baggage.

If you find this hard to believe, all you have to do is take the car out on the road. Any Fiat dealer will arrange it for you.

You may find that a sports car with room for four adults is exactly the kind of car you'd like. In which case, to be honest, you have a choice. It's the Fiat 124 Sport Coupe or something like a Ferrari 2+2.

But for the price of a Ferrari 2+2 you could buy four Fiats. And you'd have room for sixteen people.

The Sad Plight Of Denny McLain

By JOE CARNICELLI
UPI Sports Writer

Fame is fleeting and if you don't think so, just ask Denny McLain.

Four years ago McLain was the toast of baseball and the topic of every fan's conversation as he followed his quest to become the first pitcher in 34 years to win more than 30 games. He succeeded with a 316 record before hard times fell upon him.

Following a couple of suspensions for various charges ranging from carrying a pistol to bookmaking, McLain last year was dealt from Detroit to Washington, where owner Bob Short welcomed him with a six figure contract.

Short's investment seems to have gone sour, however, as McLain currently ranks as the "losingest" pitcher in the major leagues. He went down to his sixth straight loss and 11th of the season in 15 decisions Friday night when the California Angels rallied to beat the Senators 4-2.

McLain, who sat out most of last season and ended with a 35 record, lasted only six innings in absorbing his ninth loss in his last 10 decisions. He allowed nine hits, walked three and struck out four and left with his club trailing 4-1.

Ken McMullen's ninth homer of the season highlighted a three-run fifth that proved to be McLain's undoing. Frank Howard hit his eighth homer in the third to give the Senators a 1-0 lead but California tied the game in the fourth on winning pitcher Clyde Wright's double and went ahead in the fifth on Tony Gonzalez' sacrifice fly, McMullen's homer and Ken Berry's RBI single.

Elsewhere in the American League, Kansas City downed Boston 6-3, Baltimore beat Chicago 8-5, Detroit topped Minnesota 4-1, New York surged past Oakland 6-4 and Cleveland edged Milwaukee 2-1.

Cookie Rojas' bases loaded triple highlighted a four-run first inning as torrid Kansas City stunned Boston. The victory was the third in a row for the Royals and ninth in their last 10 games.

Luis Tiant, back in the majors after a stay in the International League, walked the bases full and Rojas delivered all three runners. He scored on Chuck Harrison's sacrifice fly. George Scott had a two-run homer for the Red Sox.

Lunn Grabs Kemper Open Golf Lead

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (UPI)— Last fall, California pro Bob Lunn stepped on a motel scale and was stunned as the needle soared to 240 pounds.

The 26-year-old, 6-foot two-inch golfer made up his mind to lose weight — not by a strict diet, but by quitting the snacks and other "things that were fattening."

Now "Big Bob" of Sacramento is a svelte 180 pounds; he's trimmed six inches off his waist—and trimmed his scores in the process.

Lunn cupped seven birdies against a solo bogey Friday for a six-under-par 66 and the 36-hole lead in the $150,000 Kemper Open at nine-under par 135.

One stroke back at 136 was Dale Douglass, the 1969 Kemper champ, who fired a 65 that included nine birdies and tied the tour record for the year.

Mason Rudolph was two shots off the pace at 137 after a four-under round of 68.

First round leader Tom Weiskopf was even par 72 for 138, and fell into a tie with Larry Ziegler and Miller Barber.

South African Gary Player came in with a 67 for 139 and Arnold Palmer, with 71, headlined a group at 141, six strokes behind.

"I think the weight loss helped my game," Lunn said. "I feel better and as long as I'm feeling better, it's got to help my game."

He said constant practice on the links has helped him maintain the lean shape which went from a 39 to a 33-inch waist on his own diet.

"It's not a strict diet," he said. "I just cut out things that were fattening—like toast and home fries at breakfast, mashed potatoes, soft drinks and sandwiches and snacks—that kind of thing."

Lunn began his diet around Christmas, one of the most tempting seasons for would-be dieters, and reached the 180-pound mark about a month and a half ago.

"I feel maybe a little stronger, but haven't noticed any difference in the distance I'm getting," he said.

Lunn won the Los Angeles Open in a playoff with Billy Casper and finished ninth in the PGA Championship and at Atlanta since he began taking on the new look.

Russ Hodge Leads In Decathlon

PORTERVILLE, Calif. (UPI) —Five men, led by Russ Hodge of the Southern California Striders, had point totals of over 4,000 Friday after the first five events of the National AAU Decathlon Championships.

Hodge, 31, a 6-3, 215-pound former football player, totalled 4,233 in the 100 meters, long jump, shot put, high jump, and 400 meters. He won the 100 meters in 10.5.

Hodge is a former world record holder coming back after a series of injures.

Other leaders were Mike Hill, Mt. San Antonio (Calif.) Junior College, 4,110, who won the long jump with 24' 5¼"; Rick Wannamaker, Des Moines, Iowa, 4,031; Steve Gough, Seattle, 4,091; and George Pannell, Santa Barbara, Calif. 4,104.

Novato's Thomas Drafted By The Pittsburgh Bucs

Tommy Thomas, third baseman who played high school baseball for the Novato Hornets, was drafted Wednesday by the Pittsburgh Pirates in the secondary baseball draft for players who have been drafted previously but remained unsigned.

Thomas played one year at Menlo College after graduation from Novato High, and then two years at Washington State University where he is a senior. He was drafted previously by the California Angels.

Football

SAN FRANCISCO — The San Francisco Forty Niners have signed 10th draft choice Ron Cardo of Oshkosh State. Cardo, a running back who gained 2,706 yards during his career at the Wisconsin school, was signed by former Forty Niner star fullback Joe Perry. Terms of the deal were not disclosed.

PHILADELPHIA (UPI)—The Philadelphia Eagles on Friday acquired punter Tom McNeill from the Minnesota Vikings on waivers.

The Eagles also signed Jim Ettinger, a 6-3, 200-pound, quarterback as a free agent. He played with Indianapolis of the Atlantic Coast League last season after graduating from Kansas.

The Eagles released running back Andy Livingston, who failed a physical examination on an old knee injury after he was acquired from New Orleans on waivers.

BUFFALO, N.Y. — The National Football League Buffalo Bills have signed of their number one collegiate draft choice, wide receiver J.D. Hill of Arizona State.

Hill, a 6-1, 195-pound sprinter, was on the receiving end of 58 passes for 908 yards and 10 touchdowns last season. Although terms of the pact were not announced, Hill said he was "satisfied."

Baseball

PHILADELPHIA (UPI)—The Philadelphia Phillies traded veteran infielder Tony Taylor to the Detroit Tigers Friday for minor league pitchers Mike Fremuth and Carl Cavanaugh.

Taylor, 35, played 11 years here after he was acquired from the Chicago Cubs in 1960. His best year was last season when he batted .301 in 124 games.

Fremuth, 24, will stay with Montgomery in the Southern League and Cavanaugh, 22, will remain with Rocky Mount in the Carolina League.

ST. LOUIS (UPI) —The St. Louis Cardinals have acquired pitcher Al Santorini from the San Diego Padres in exchange for outfielder Leron Lee and lefthanded pitcher Fred Norman.

Santorini, taken from the Atlanta Braves as the Padres' third selection in the expansion draft of 1968, had an 0-2 record and 3.79 earned-run average in 18 games, mostly relief appearances, this season.

Tennis

MUNICH, Germany (UPI)— West Germany reached the finals of the European Zone group BBB Davis Cup competition Friday after taking an unbeatable 3-0 lead over Hungary.

LONDON — The International Lawn Tennis Federation (ILTF) Friday lifted suspensions imposed on four tennis stars for failing to compete in the recent French Championships at Paris.

The players involved were Tom Okker of the Netherlands, Yugoslavian Nikki Pilic, Ismael El Shafei of the United Arab Republic and West Germany's Inge Buding.

HOW TO PLAY

WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

South's Hurried Play Hurts When The Points Are Counted

Most bridge hands are played quite quickly in ordinary rubber bridge. You win a trick as soon as you can, you draw trumps, you go after a long suit of some kind, and you score it up and go on to the next hand. If it turns out that this is the wrong line of play, at least you can truthfully claim that you wasted no thought on it.

Wastes No Time

South wasted neither thought nor time on today's hand. He took the first trick in dummy with the ace of diamonds and drew three rounds of trumps, ending in the dummy. Then he led a club.

East played low, and South decided to play low rather than put up the king. It was a good decision, but nothing could help him any more. West won with the jack of clubs and led a diamond to make South ruff.

Declarer led a heart to dummy and returned another club from dummy. This time he put up the king, losing to the ace. West led another diamond, and South had to use up his last trump.

LOSES DIAMOND

South had to give up another club, and West was able to cash his last diamond to defeat the contract. "Hard luck," South said, and he scored 100 points for the opponents as he waited to pick up his next hand.

Of course you have seen South's error. Perhaps he would have seen it too if he hadn't been trying to set a new indoor record for the play of a hand at four spades.

CLUB IS BEST

After taking the first trick with the ace of diamonds declarer should lead a club at once without touching the trumps. West leads a diamond, and South ruffs. South gives up a second club, ruffs the diamond return, gives up a third club, and ruffs still another diamond return.

South now has only two trumps, but dummy still has three trumps. South can draw two rounds of trumps from his own hand and the third from the dummy. The rest is easy.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one no-trump, and the next player passes.

You hold:
♠ - 7 5 4
♥ - 6 4 3
♦ - Q J 10 9
♣ - A Q J.

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid three no-trump.

You have 10 points, and your partner shows 16 to 18 for his bid. The total should be 26 to 28 points, enough to provide a good play for game.

Color Coded Doors

TAIPEI (UPI) —Nationalist Chinese customs officials plan to build one red door and one green door at Taipei International Airport to help speed arriving passengers through customs. Passengers who carry items subject to customs duties will be directed to pass through the red door. Passengers with nothing to declare walk through the green door.

ALMANAC

Today is Saturday, June 12, the 163rd day of 1971.

The moon is between its full phase and last quarter. The morning stars are Mercury, Venus, Mars and Saturn. The evening star is Jupiter.

Those born on this day are under the sign of Gemini.

American author Frank Chapman was born June 12, 1864.

On this day in history:

In 1630 the first governor of the Massachusetts Bay Colony, John Winthrop, entered the Harbor of Salem.

In 1924 President Calvin Coolidge received the Republican presidential nomination and was elected that fall by a huge majority.

In 1963 a sniper killed Negro civil rights leader Medgar Evers at Jackson, Miss.

In 1967 the U.S. Supreme Court ruled that states could not outlaw interracial marriages.

A thought for today: Plato said, "No evil can happen to a good man, either in life or death."

Teen Held On Stolen Property

A 17-year-old San Rafael boy has been booked into Marin Juvenile Hall on suspicion of possession of stolen property.

Marin County sheriff's deputies said yesterday that Robert Elton Yates of 86 Forest Lane was arrested Tuesday after he attempted to use a credit card at a Santa Venetia service station.

The card reportedly was stolen in a burglary of the residence of Sol Goldstein of 28 Forest Lane, deputies said.

The Editor's Notebook

Cut Top Salaries To Balance Budget

In light of the week's developments at Sacramento, the Editor's Notebook column which filled this space last March 6 is more timely today than when it first appeared.

Here it is:

EVERYBODY KNOWS that California state government is facing another financial crisis. It is committed to spend more than its income.

The legislature took characteristic action in the face of the crisis. Legislators raised their own expense allowances.

The governor has a plan for meeting the crisis. It is extremely doubtful whether the legislature will accede to the governor's plan.

Where does this leave us?

In the same old bag, probably: the legislature will have to vote new taxes upon us.

THERE MAY BE another alternative, a better way out.

So far as we know, no one else has yet thought of the possibility we have in mind. It is not likely that anyone in state government would think of this particular approach. If they did think of it, you can be sure that they would breathe not a word of it publicly.

We call it the Salary Suspension Incentive Plan. It is something like this:

Whenever the state finds itself with more outgo than income, all services to the public would be frozen — that is, they would neither be increased nor be decreased. They would remain constant.

But a system of cost cutting would automatically be instituted.

The extent to which this cost-cutting system was applied would be determined by the extent of the threatening deficit. Costs would be cut merely enough to bring outgo into balance with income.

The cost cutting system is simplicity itself.

The state would merely suspend salary payments to certain state employees to the degree necessary to balance outgo with income.

Salary suspensions would be instituted according to a priority list of state employees. The order of priority would be determined by the size of an official's salary. The largest salary would be first. That would be the governor.

Right behind him on the list would come the top administrators of state super-agencies.

Since the legislature shares with the governor the responsibility for keeping state spending within bounds, it is only right that the top legislative officials — the president pro tem of the Senate and the speaker of the Assembly — share top priority with the governor, although legislative officials received somewhat less salary than top administrators.

Legislative committee chairmen, in both Senate and Assembly, would constitute the next priority level, followed by individual legislators according to seniority. Those with the longest seniority (and presumably the most influence) should be the first to be affected by the salary suspension plan.

SUCH A SYSTEM of salary suspensions in time of fiscal crisis has so many advantages and good features that there is not space enough here to touch on more than the mere highlights.

First, services to the needy, the poor, the aged, the blind, the ill, etc., would continue unaffected. Those at the bottom of the pay scale in state service, like hospital orderlies, would be unaffected. The meager salaries on which they and their families depend for existence would be protected.

On the other hand, those at the top level whose salaries would be cut or eliminated — like governor Reagan — would not be hurt appreciably. It may be that the most noticeable immediate affect on them would be an income tax deduction, an obvious benefit.

The overall effect on the top administrators and top legislators should be, from the taxpayers' standpoint, very good. Salary suspension would motivate these influential officials to find immediate solutions to the state's critical problems with a minimum of political shadow boxing.

Obviously the Salary Suspension Incentive Plan would benefit everyone in the long run.

IT IS PRETTY CERTAIN that such a plan would not be advocated by the governor nor voted into being by the state legislature, however.

If it is to be implemented, it will have to be by initiative petition of voters. We can count on little help from experienced politicians in putting the measure on the ballot and getting it passed.

The whole operation would have to be a do-it-yourself operation by voters.

Voters of California, arise!

We have it within our power to bring about our own solution to our state's recurring fiscal crises.

If we don't unite to protect ourselves against further invasion of our pocketbooks, our paychecks and bank accounts by Sacramento, we will have only ourselves to blame.

One of the great things about spring fever is that it enables a man to sit back, look up, and see more easily and more clearly how the complex problems of our day can be solved so simply.

A Smoky Relic

Not long ago, almost all sawmills had one or two wigwam burners to get rid of sawdust, odd bits of wood, planings and bark. Now these smoky relics are being phased out in the interest of cleaner air and more economic use of waste forest products.

Much of it goes to the pulp mills. Sawdust is used as garden mulch or pressed into handy, little fireplace logs. Bark finds its way into the garden too. In big mills much is used to fuel the power boilers. Anything that's left after these uses is bulldozed into land fill.

They were colorful old smokers, but we can't really say we are sorry to see them going. It made us a bit sad to see all that useful stuff go up in smoke.

Muscular Dystrophy Backs Sheriff's Circus

As a member of the board of directors for several years, vice-president, and newly elected president of the Muscular Dystrophy Association of Marin County (a totally volunteer organization), as well as the parent of a child with muscular dystrophy, I wish to add my voice as well as that of the association to other agencies that have protested the action of the chamber of commerce and various merchants in rejecting the Deputy Sheriff's Association circus charity.

I have closely observed the work done by these dedicated people in not only providing an inexpensive entertainment for a whole family, but using their entire percentage in assisting agencies to carry out their work in Marin County.

Our agency would have been hard pressed to provide all the accessory services to dystrophy patients, mostly children, without the Deputy Sheriff's Association contribution. At their request and our total agreement the entire amount is spent for services to Marin County patients. . .

Drydock Complaint Sent To Wrong Party

I'm surprised at the I-J for the dishonest journalism expressed in the headline, "Please, Mayor Joe, just Stay Away" and the related cartoon showing Mayor Alioto aboard a fireboat trying to put out the drydock blaze.

From the headline and the artist's cartoon, one would infer that the mayor of San Francisco was butting in where he wasn't wanted. But that would be a false inference according to your own story, which stated, ". . .Marin firemen tried in vain to douse the flames. . . The San Francisco fireboat was then called for by the Coast Guard. . ."

You owe Mayor Alioto and your readers an apology for publishing this obviously false headline and cartoon. You should chastize the Marin firemen and the Coast Guard for not allowing the drydock to burn up.

More Information On Buses Needed

It is a well known fact that Marin County is one of the wealthiest counties in the country — at the same time, it has provided no public transportation. This really is sad because Marin County is situated so that it is absolutely impossible for one to travel throughout the county without a car.

At long last a Marin Transit service has started but I think this necessary service will fail if the public remains uninformed of the bus schedules and locations of the various loading zones. . .

Let's get on the ball and have public transportation that is up to par with our county.

Big Unions Deserve Their Share Of Blame

Many people blame "big business" for most of our ills now. And of course we have to add "big government."

But how about "big unions"? They seem to have achieved first place in that category. They are trying to run both government and business.

You Can't Outlaw Handgun —It's Symbol Of Virility

WASHINGTON — The bleeding hearts in this country are starting to scream again for the registration of handguns or the licensing of their owners.

Fortunately for those of us who love guns, the Nixon administration has rejected any legislation that would offend the gun lobbies in this country.

The suggestion by the National Commission on the Reform of Criminal Laws to ban the possessioc of handguns by all except the police has been rejected by the president and the attorney general as politically unsound.

But despite this, the antigun people persist in wanting to disarm the nation.

WALLABY HORNBLOWER, chief lobbyist for the National Cheap Handgun Association, is not concerned about the recent bad publicity that handguns are getting.

"We go through this nonsense every few years," Wallaby told me. "But America will never give up its handguns."

"Thank God for that," I said.

"The trouble with the media is that they're always writing about the bad things a handgun does. When a cop gets shot with a handgun, they put it on the front page — or when some bank gets held up they play it up big if a gun is used. But you never see the good stories about handguns or read about the pleasure they give people."

"I'LL SAY YOU don't," I agreed.

"The newspapers never write about the fun people have at target practice or shooting rabbits or practicing how to fast-draw in front of a mirror."

"Why don't they?" I demanded.

"Because it's not news," Wallaby said. "Do you know for every person who uses a handgun in a robbery there are a thousnd gun owners who have never shot anybody?"

"Yet you never hear about them," I said in disgust.

"But," said Wallaby, chuckling, "the United States will never ban the handgun."

"How can you be that sure?"

"BECAUSE," HE SAID, "the gun is a sex symbol."

"It is?"

"Most American men who own handguns have virility problems. The gun is an extension of their manhood. If you take the gun away from a man in this country, you're emasculating him."

"I never thought of that," I said. "But it's true."

"The beautiful thing about it is that they don't know it. Most gun owners will fight any legislation because they think it's unconstitutional or an invasion of their property rights.

"But subconsciously what they really fear is impotence. When you ask someone to register his gun, you're really asking him to register his manhood."

"IT'S LIKE TRYING to get people to buy a license for sex," I said.

"Exactly. Those of us in the business have known this for years. You don't think gun registration would be such an emotional issue if sex weren't involved, do you?"

"No wonder you're so relaxed about Congress not passing any strong gun legislation."

"Every American child, from the day he can watch westerns on television, knows that guns and virility go together, and you can't have one without the other. So when you talk about disarming the people in this country, you're dealing with a Freudian problem, which no gun owner will face up to."

"Then what you're saying is if we have to choose between crime and protecting the American male's manhood, we'd rather put up with the crime."

Wallaby smiled. "You said it, I didn't."

MARQUIS CHILDS

Long Hair Is Symbol Of Serious Alienation

DEERFIELD, MASS. — The lot of the commencement speaker in these times is not a happy one. The walkout is a form of protest so mild as to make the speaker and the others on the platform positively grateful. Rising to utter a few carefully chosen words, you cannot but recall other horrendous forms protest has taken.

In another day platitudes came trippingly off the tongue. The earnest young graduates were facing a challenge. Their elders had faltered, stopped short of the goal. Now youth must seize the torch and carry on to shape the brave, new world shining on the distant horizon. That stuff today would be a sure invitation to something worse than a walkout.

A great deal of nonsense has been written about the generation gap. And adding to that often-fatuous accumulation is a risk. Charles Reich's "The Greening of America," which stayed at the top of the best-sellers list for so long, is a prime example. In consciousness III, the last section, Reich says that bell-bottom trousers, rock music and other attributes of the new life style will make over the country if only the oldsters can overcome their inhibitions.

BUT, FATUOUS though much of the comment is, the division is real enough. The long hair, the deliberately disreputable dress, the resistance to all the status symbols of the old order — these are the surface irritants that set fathers to quarrelling with sons over the breakfast table.

The deeper sources of alienatior go down to the war; the immorality as many see it of bombing undefended villages and helpless peoples; the appalling total of civilian casualties — men, women, children. The older generation too often fails to appreciate the intensity of this conviciton. It is dismissed as merely another aberration like long hair and dirty blue jeans. Fathers and sons clash with a bitterness that seems often to make reconciliation impossible.

The young who simply pull out, daughters as well as sons, are the cause of profound sorrow. Police headquarters in the favorite cop-out cities — San Francisco is high on the list — get hundreds of appeals from parents. The want-ad sections of the newspapers and the underground weeklies are filled with: "Mary Jones: Please call home collect to let us know where you are."

WHAT, THEN, to say to a doubting generation seeming to reject all the values of the past? Has protest become merely a conditioned reflex? Are these mass rallies as mindless as the movements of the lemmings, those mouselike creatures that end by pushing themselves into the sea off Norway and Sweden?

One may ask the degree to which though, the painful process of thought, enters into the individual's decision. So much unreason, irrationality, goes into the vilification of the position. A four-letter word shouted over a bull horn is a confession of impoverishment of mind and spirit. The often-quoted words of Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes have a special force today:

"If there is any principle of the constitution that more imperatively calls for attachment than any other, it is the principle of free thought — not free thought for those who agree with us, but freedom for the thought that we hate."

THE FREE TRADE in ideas, the test of truth in the market place, was a fundamental in Holmes's philosophy as in the New England from which he came. The New England preparatory schools with their ancient lineage and religious and idealistic backgrounds have not been immune from the troubles growing out of the generation gap. Since the enrollment in these schools is mostly from middle- and upper-middle-income families, they have had more than their share of the revolt of the young in all its manifestations.

Someone suggested recently that if the young from privileged backgrounds want to cop out and reject the perquisites and advantage to which they were born, let them go and their places can be filled from lower down in the scale. That is the kind of easy answer which is really no answer at all.

War Could Complete East Pakistan Tragedy

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI FOREIGN NEWS ANALYST

The human suffering resulting from Pakistan's civil war scarcely can be overstated. But as victims of cholera and starvation die in uncounted thousands and the number of refugees pouring across the Indian border from East Pakistan reaches an estimated five million, one thing more could make the tragedy complete.

That is the very real possibility of war between Pakistan and India.

An American diplomat in Dacca, capital of East Pakistan, has estimated the chances "just under 50-50."

AT THE ROOT of the problem are the refugees whose numbers include both Moslem Bengalis of East Pakistan and Hindus of whom some 10 million normally reside in East Pakistan.

In India there is a suspicion that Pakistan President Yahya Khan intends to push all of the Hindus out of East Pakistan as part of his determination to achieve a military solution to East Pakistan's secessionist movement.

There is further the matter of providing medical care and food for the refugees, cost of which is estimated at a minimum of $10 million a month.

The United States reportedly plans to contribute half of the cost for the next 90 days.

Among the donations have been $2.4 million from Great Britain and the promise of more, unlimited aid. Australia's relief organization, Austcare, has launched a drive for $5 million to assist the refugees. The 7Austrial government is contributing $500,000 in relief supplies.

Other pledges of aid have come from Belgium, Finland, Norway, West Germany, Canada, Denmark and Japan.

WESTERN RELIEF officials estimate that in the Indian state of Wsst Bengal alone some 20 million cholera shots will be needed to protect the local population and the regugees whose numbers have doubled and tripled the populations of communities along the border.

Reports from both sides of the border indicate the Indian army is keeping to its promise to stay within its own frontiers.

But Pakistani "freedom fighters" who train inside India and strike against the Pakistan army across the border, and Pakistani shelling of the frontier provide major irritants between the two countries.

Indian Prime Minister Indira Gandhi's sympathies openly are with the East Pakistanis. Toward the conflict itself she had kept a hands off attitude but has warned:

"If the world does not take heed, we shall be constrained to take all measures as may be necessary to insure our own security and the preservation of our social and economic life."

OTHER INDIAN government officials have said India cannot cope with the millions of reguees indefinitely and that eventually they must be returned to Pakistan by force if necessary.

What Mrs. Gandhi has done is to warn the major powers clearly that they have a stake in the Pakistani conflict not only as it affects Pakistan but India as well. A war between Pakistan and India could bring in Red China and a shift in the world balance of power which other nations could not ignore.

REMEMBER WHEN?

10 YEARS AGO

JUNE 12, 1961

A federal judge lifted a restraining order which barred "freedom riders" from Alabama.

Seventy-two U. S. guerrilla warfare experts arrived in Saigon to help train South Vietnamese troops to fight the Viet Cong.

20 YEARS AGO

JUNE 12, 1951

J. Paul Leonard of San Francisco State College presented the Sausalito School District board a report on his survey of the district which recommended sweeping changes. Among them was abolition of special teachers for various subjects in the elementary schools.

The California State Senate passed a bill consolidating all Marin's inferior courts in a single municipal court, and sent it to the Assembly.

COUNTRY PARSON

"An awful lot of folks who can tell you what's wrong with society aren't doing anything to improve it."

WORTH SAYING AGAIN

Democracy cannot exist without conflict, and it becomes meaningless when one party can suppress all the opposition. — Arthur M. Schlesinger Jr.

You can't hold a man down without staying down with him — Booker T. Washington.

No official, high or petty, can prescribe what shall be orthodox in politics, nationalism, religion, or other matters of opinion, or force citizens to confess by word or act their faith therein. — Robert E. Jackson.

A highwayman is as much a robber when he plunders in a gang as when single, and a nation that makes an unjust war is only a great gang. — Benjamin Franklin.

The philosopher knows that the laws of the Creator have never changed with respect either to the principles of science or the properties of matter. Why, then, is it supposed they have changed with respect to man? — Thomas Paine.

Judge Studying Abortion Case

I-J Special Report

REDWOOD CITY — A judge took under submission yesterday a case in which a Sausalito woman and a codefendant are challenging a law prohibiting distribution of "do it yourself" abortion information.

Before Judge W. Howard Hartley of San Mateo County Superior Court is a ruling by the District Court of Appeal that he should retry the cases of Patricia Marie Jean Maginnis, the Sausalitan, and Rowena Gurner.

The appellate court said the original trial did not properly link the defendants with the distribution when the case began almost four years ago.

Lt. Leonard Cardoza of the San Mateo sheriff's office testified yesterday he attended a meeting in 1967 at which the two women lectured on "do it yourself" abortion methods and distributed literature on the subject.

There was no cross examination.

In question is whether the law conflicts with a constitutional amendment that guarantees the right of free speech. The late Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes held that the amendment applies unless a person "shouts 'fire' in a crowded theater."

Hartley indicated he will rule after briefs are filed by attorneys within 90 days. Paul N. Halvonik, attorney for the American Civil Liberties Union, is representing the women.

Miss Maginnis, 42, has long advocated unrestricted abortion. She has been in and out of jail, has had three abortions herself — two of them self-induced — and estimates she has helped more than 15,000 other women obtain abortions.

She has conducted "do it yourself" abortion classes in Marin and has passed out literature on county sidewalks, but has not been arrested by Marin authorities.

Plane Crash Injures One

A Mill Valley woman was injured last night when the plane in which she and her husband were flying was forced to make a crash landing when it ran out of gas near Gnoss Field in Novato.

Jacqualine Carlson, 40, of 309 Tennessee Valley Road, was treated for collarbone and breastbone separations at Marin General Hospital. Her husband, Morris, 42 the pilot, was unjured.

The plane, a Piper Cherokee 180, made a crash landing about 1:30 a.m. alongside Atherton Avenue near Bugeia Lane, Novato police said.

Police said they were about to start clearing Highway 101 for the landing when the plane crashed.

Damage to the plane's wing, landing gear and propeller was estimated at several thousand dollars, according to Carlson.

Carlson, a pilot for 18 years, told the Independent-Journal today the forced landing was a mystery to him because he had taken on about three-and-a-half hours of fuel before taking off from Petaluma at 7:30 p.m., and estimated he had 90 minutes of fuel left when the craft went down.

"I still don't know why it happened," he said. "It sure was scary." Carlson is sales manager of Domasco Bakery Supply Co. in Oakland.

After leaving Petaluma, the couple flew to San Jose and picked up friends. From San Jose, they flew to Vacaville for dinner before returning their friends to San Jose.

The accident occurred when the couple was returning from San Jose to Petaluma.

Fresco Painting Workshop Set

A four-week workshop in fresco painting, taught by A. Garcia Alvarez, will begin June 21 at the Sausalito Art Center, 630 Nevada Street.

According to center director Robert A. Ellis, the three-hour classes will be held Monday through Friday and will include the entire fresco painting process, from preparation of the wall to the final painting.

Alvarez is an instructor in painting at the University of California at Berkeley.

Deadline for registering for the course is June 15 and further information can be obtained from the center.

New Marin Budget Hits 'Best Sellers'

Marin County's proposed 1971-72 budget, 372 pages of seemingly dry statistics and financial data, is a hot contender for the best-seller list.

County Auditor-Controller Michael Mitchell said yesterday that interested citizens have snapped up 820 copies of the budget since June 1. Only 30 copies remain in reserve for the board of supervisors' budget hearings that will begin at 9 a.m. Monday.

U.S. Command Reports North Vietnam Bombings

SAIGON (UPI)—The U.S. command today reported another in a series of attacks by American fighter-bombers against Communist antiaircraft sites inside North Vietnam. For the first time in the war, the Communists shot down a Cambodian helicopter.

Military spokesmen said a U.S. Air Force F105 Thunderchief fighter-bomber penetrated two miles inside North Vietnam Friday and fired a Shrike missile at a radar controlled Communist missile site four miles west of Dong Hoi.

Results of the attack were unknown.

Military sources said it was believed the F105 was escorting B52 bombers over neighboring Laos when the Communist missile battery's radar "locked on" the bombers, indicating they were preparing to fire.

It was the 44th such strike which the U.S. command calls "protective reaction" this year in North Vietnam and the 111th since Nov. 1, 1968 when former President Lyndon B. Johnson ordered a halt in the bombing of North Vietnam.

The area involved Friday was within 25 miles of Ban Karai Pass on the Laotian border, one of three entrances to the Ho Chi Minh Trail over which the North Vietnamese truck men and supplies into South Vietnam and Cambodia.

A communique from Phnom Penh said Communist gunners Friday shot down an American-supplies Cambodian Air Force helicopter 12 miles east of Phnom Penh.

It was the first Cambodian helicopter to be lost to antiaircraft fire since the fighting began in Cambodia. The four-man crew of the UH1 Huey jet helicopter was reported missing in Communist-held territory.

A second helicopter was hit by gunfire in the same incident.

Open House Set At Art Center

Dancing, music, films and an art and crafts exhibit will be featured at an open house sponsored by the Sausalito Art Cen-Center next Saturday from 2 to 10 p.m.

Center director Robert Ellis said the program will also include demonstration workshops in painting, ceramics, photography, etching, silkscreen, dancing and ferro-concrete construction. Refreshments will be served.

Further information can be obtained from the center, 630 Nevada Street.

Plan Eyed To Combine Draft, Vote Registration

By BENJAMIN SHORE
I-J Correspondent

WASHINGTON — Selective Service offices throughout California soon may provide an extra service for young men who stop by to register for the draft on their 18th birthday — deputy voter registrars to sign them up to vote in federal elections.

California Secretary of State Edmund G. Brown Jr. was in Washington last week to propose such a plan to Draft Director Curtis Tarr.

Tarr rejected Brown's idea of having outside registrars sit in draft offices, but said he might allow draft board clerks to become deputy registrars.

"Either way is OK with me," Brown said afterward.

Brown said California's draft director, Carlos Ogden, "likes the idea but will defer to Tarr's decision."

Brown said he had not sought a reaction from Gov. Ronald Reagan.

The same day Brown met with Tarr, the Senate passed an amendment to the draft law by Sen. Thomas Eagleton, D-Mo. allowing 18-year-olds registering for the draft to register to vote at the same time. However, a governor could choose not to allow this procedure in his state.

As for 18-year-old girls, who have no legitimate need to report to a draft office, Brown suggests that voter registrars be available in Social Security offices when girls sign up for identification cards. He planned to propose this to Social Security Administration officials here.

Brown said 200,000 persons become eligible to register to vote each year in California.

"Only 51 per cent of eligible Californians are registered," he said, "and this despite thousands of temporary registrars who seek voters around election time."

He said that a recent survey of the state's 14 largest counties revealed that of those between 18 and 21 years of age who are registering, 59 per cent have registered as Democrats, 20 per cent as Republicans, with the bulk of the balance stating no preference and the remainder joining minor parties.

As City Administrator McCown Handles Millions, But Once Spent Billions

By THERON NEWELL

One man knows San Rafael better than anyone else.

He may not know as many people as some old-timers, because he has not been here that long. But he knows the city and its workings.

He knows the city's streets and the flow of traffic on them. He watches as pedestrians and cars move about the city, trying to find solutions to the traffic bottlenecks and the scarcity of parking.

He watches as the pedestrians walk around the city, studying their habits and shopping patterns.

HE KNOWS THE city's finances, even down to the amount taken in by individual traffic meters on the streets and in the city's parking lots.

That man is the city manager, James H. McCown, who directs the six-million-dollar city government machinery with the ease of someone who knows every detail of his job.

And he should. Because, for most of his life, he handled billions instead of millions. Instead of having fewer than 300 personnel under him, he had thousands.

HIS HAIR IS thinning and getting a little gray, and he is probably a little heavier than in his younger days, but he still carries himself with a military bearing, which bespeaks his background.

McCown was born 58 years ago in Huntsville, Ala., when it was a village of about 1,000 population. Today, with the Redstone Arsenal located there, it has mushroomed into a city of 100,000.

His family moved north, and McCown received his Bachelor's Degree from Carroll College at Waukesha, Wis., in 1933. He went to work forNorthern States Power Co.

WHEN HE LEFT college, he had a commission as a reserve second lieutenant in the army. He was called to active duty a year later, in 1934.

The military was to be his career until he retired in 1963.

He was first attached to the Sixth Corps Area with headquarters in Chicago, and was stationed there for five years. During that time, he became a graduate of the University of Chicago School of business.

Later in his career, he was stationed in North Carolina and attended the Army's finance school at Duke University, Durham, N.C.

IT WAS WHILE in service that he put this formal business training to its longest and best use. He was on special assignment to the U.S. Treasury Department from the Pentagon. Then in 1943 he was transfered to Fort Mason, where he learned to like the Bay Area.

Some of his other assignments were Panama, New Guinea, Philippine Islands and Australia.

HE MARRIED Virginia Stokes of Indianapolis, Ind., in 1946. The couple has two sons, James H. McCown Jr., 22, a student at Chico State College, and Robert K. McCown, 19, a student at the College of Marin.

McCown transferred from the Army Air Corps to the Air Force in 1948. While stationed at Wright-Patterson Air Force Base, Ohio, he took his Master's Degree in finance in 1950.

He was in the first group of officers to transfer to the Air Force and was made director of finance in the Air Materiel Command at the Air Force Finance Center in Denver, Colo. There he handled all procurement for the Air Force.

HE WAS PROMOTED to colonel in 1951 and returned to Wright-Patterson Air Force Base as director of finance. He was then in charge of all central procurement for the Air Force.

PHOTOGRAPHED in front of the San Rafael City Hall where he has his offices, San Rafael City Administrator James H. McCown is the chief administrative officer responsible for a municipal government with a six-million-dollar annual budget. But as a colonel and procurement officer for the Air Force, McCown was accustomed to dealing in billions — not millions — of dollars. And so, while he approaches his present job with a keen awareness of the problems and a concern for city finances, he is not overawed by his tasks. (Independent-Journal photo)

When he began his work with the Air Force, that service had four or five billion dollars worth of all types of equipment — planes, parts and everything else necessary to running the new military branch.

During his term as head of procurement, the Air Materiel Command expanded until the Air Force owned $78 billion dollars worth of equipment and supplies, all under his direction.

McCOWN SUPERVISED 30 offices throughout the United States in their purchasing for the Air Force. Many of these were on the West Coast because the major aircraft firms were based here.

Among these firms was Boeing in Seattle. When McCown first started buying B-52 bombers from Boeing, the price was 20 million dollars per plane; but, as more were purchased, the price dropped to eight million dollars per plane.

During this period, there were several accounts in the Pentagon which would honor McCown's signature on checks up to a million dollars, he said.

HE WAS TRANSFERRED to the center for Air Materiel for Europe as controller of the depot there. He had to keep track of 270,000 items charged to the Air Force throughout Europe and in Asia Minor as far east as Pakistan.

From 1956 to 1958, he was comptroller of the Fourth Air Force at Hamilton Air Force Base, where he learned to like the Novato area.

He had served for many years as a colonel specializing in finance and purchasing, and was not a general officer, so he did not receive a promotion to general, he said.

HE RETIRED IN 1963 from the Air Force at Wright-Patterson Air Force Base.

The following year he came to Marin County and bought a house at 17 Truman Drive, Novato.

"I wanted a job in this location where I knew the climate was mild and I could be happy," he said. He took the position of finance officer in San Pablo, which he held from 1964 to 1968.

HE RENEWED his acquaintance with Dan E. Anderson, San Rafael city manager, whom he had first met in 1954.

"Anderson asked me to come to San Rafael as finance officer," McCown said. He accepted and became finance director April 2, 1968.

After Anderson died of a heart attack, McCown was named interim city manager on Aug. 4, 1969. Then on Oct. 21, he was named city manager.

"San Rafael has an excellent city staff and I have tried to encourage the staff to work together. It is an excellent organization," he said.

HE PRAISED THE fire and police departments for their efficiency.

McCown said that he hopes that the city will continue on its

"What Do All Those Terms On Hang Tags Mean?"

Here are additional terms defined by the U.S. Dept. of Commerce booklet "Fibers and Fabrics."

Heat Sensitivity: Property of a material which causes softening, shrinking, melting or discoloration when heat is applied.

Heat Set: The use of heat on man-made fabrics to stabilize size or shape, or to make pleats or creases durable to repeated laundering or drycleaning.

Pilling Resistance: Resistance to the formation of pills (bunches of balls of tangled fibers) on the fabric surface.

Sanforized: A trademark indicating that fabrics so labeled conform to the shrinkage requirements of the trade name owner not to shrink more than 1% in length or width.

Wash-and-Wear: A term applied to garments which satisfactorily retain their original appearance after repeated wear and suitable home laundering with little or no pressing or ironing.

Water Resistance: Resistance to wetting and penetration by water.

Wrinkle Resistance: The property of a fabric which enables it to resist the formation of wrinkles. "Crease Resistance" is a term commonly used for the term "Wrinkle Resistance."

present policy of annexing areas contiguous to the city.

"These annexations should be in the best interest of both the old and new city areas," he said.

However, such areas must be brought up to the standards of the city in such facilities as sewers and streets, McCown noted. Then the city would provide services such as police and fire protection, and recreation programs.

"IT WILL TAKE careful analysis and preparation before an area such as the remainder of Terra Linda is annexed to the city," he said.

Residents there pay a higher tax rate than do property owners in San Rafael. But there are problems with such things as swimming pool indebtedness, and the special districts there, that must be ironed out before any serious attempt could be made to annex to the city, McCown said.

Another example is the Country Club area where there are water mains, but where most of the houses are on septic tanks, he said.

HE THINKS THAT the Bayside area may soon get a sewer system so it can annex to the city. This could be done by assessment districts, he said.

McCown particularly wants to eliminate the "islands" within the present city area and can foresee the expansion of San Rafael northward until the city limits of San Rafael and Novato meet at Big Rock Ridge.

"There's no question that ultimately Novato will be the largest city in the county. It has many miles of open areas into which it can expand," he said.

McCOWN DOES NOT think that Novato will ever become the business and industrial rival of San Rafael.

"San Rafael has the jump on Novato in business and industry. Novato just can't seem to get organized and get a workable plan," said McCown, who is still a resident of Novato.

He sees San Rafael developing two separate, major shopping centers — the downtown area and Northgate.

"NORTHGATE HAS a fine future with Sears going in there, and there is a bright future for downtown San Rafael because it is getting more specialty shops, and some of these are very good ones," he said.

"Of course, the courthouse square is the key to downtown San Rafael. Some new groups are interested in developing it, and one of these days, it will get going," he added.

The Smith Ranch area holds the key to the industrial future of San Rafael, McCown thinks.

"IT IS BEHIND the Northgate Industrial Park and would be hidden by the hills," he said. "That way people would not see the industry from the highway."

The city manager recognizes that the city has some problems, although it is in good shape in most areas, including finances.

"Traffic and parking are the biggest problems in the downtown area," he said. "We must expect these to get worse and plan to meet the challenge."

ONE OF THE main functions of a city manager is to recognize problems before they become serious, he said.

"We must develop a long-term capital improvement program," he declared.

Several years ago there was a movement to get a municipal golf course. "The city could not afford it at the time, and probably could not now; but if we plan ahead, these things can be realized," McCown said.

HE THINKS THAT the recently purchased Black Canyon ranch should be kept as open space.

"As the areas in the county fill up with homes and apartments, the people will need a place which has been left in its natural state," he said.

Asked about his hobbies, the athletic city manager said he enjoys all sports. He plays golf and likes to get out into the open spaces. Then he paused.

"I GUESS MY work is really my hobby; I dearly love my job," he said. "I have always been the public service type. It does not matter whether it is national or local; the only difference is the scope of the work."

"I like people," McCown stressed.

He likes to watch them as they work and play, and observe them where they live. That is why he spends so much of his off-working hours just roaming around San Rafael. He wants to know every aspect of the city and its people.

THEN A FAR-AWAY look came into his blue eyes.

"It's been a long time since I've played a game of golf, and I still want to see the Giants play."

That is the man who is at the wheel, steering the city of San Rafael, a man devoted to his job, his city and its people.

Music In The School Bus —

The Room That Travels

By DON KEOWN

Without the necessity for a bond issue or a special tax levy, seven of San Rafael's 10 elementary schools have grown by one room — a music room.

And actually, it is the same room at all seven schools.

A large and surplus bus of the 73-passenger size and transit type has been converted into a mobile music room for the use of string instrument students in the schools.

It is the answer devised jointly by Hugo Rinaldi who heads the music program in the San Rafael City Schools, by Charles Condrotte who is the business manager for the district, and by music instructor Robert Jacobson to an acute space shortage problem.

IN THE PAST the music students have had to share the limited space available for such special purposes at the schools with a variety of other programs.

This resulted in such occurrences as the cancellation of the string music classes twice within one week at one local school where the quarters were in use by another group with a higher priority.

Music teachers sometimes taught in hallways or in the teachers' rooms, which were totally inadequate for that purpose.

"It just was not music instruction," says Rinaldi.

AND RINALDI, Condrotte and Jacobson were realistic enough to recognize that a tight budget situation made impossible the construction of true music rooms at any of the schools.

But there was the big bus sitting idle. It had been condemned two years earlier by the California Highway Patrol because of its braking system. That defect had been repaired, but the bus had not been returned to service because of a slowdown in enrollment.

This, the three men decided, would become the needed music room, at least for the string instrument pupils. A classroom on wheels, it could be driven from school to school and used wherever needed.

The conversion program was a simple one.

THE SEATS, OF course, were removed, and replaced with chairs more suited to the needs of young musicians, plus music cases.

Most important, the bus was carpeted — not just the floor, but the sides as well, for acoustical purposes.

And the bus-become-a-music-room was repainted to get away from the traditional school bus yellow.

Rinaldi has dubbed the converted bus "The Music Man."

AND IT IS, he says, ideal for groups of as many as 20 youthful musicians. It can be parked conveniently close to the school entrance, yet far enough from the building so that the sound creates no problems.

Rinaldi says the bus idea — the conversion cost but $1,230 — has an economical aspect in addition to the obvious saving over the construction of music room facilities. Whereas in the past, each school had to have its own set of school-owned instruments for student use, now a single set can remain in the bus, travel with it, and be used at all the schools.

There is another saving — time.

IN THE makeshift, multi-purpose quarters used previously, Rinaldi notes, something like six minutes out of every 30-minute session were spent in moving and setting up the chairs and music racks. Now those remain in place. And the youngsters get a full half-hour of music education.

Rinaldi says there is a very real possibility that the bus

may be put into use at all 10 elementary schools on a regular basis. Certainly the other three schools will be serviced by it at least periodically. And something like 300 boys and girls will be affected.

And if it works out well for the string instrument classes, then the brass instrumentalists may also wind up making use of it.

IN THE SAN Rafael schools, pupils kindergarten through the sixth grade all take some kind of music education — in the choir, if not in one of the instrumental groups.

The classes meet for 30-minute sessions twice a week. "We try to keep them general enough to interest all the boys and girls," says Rinaldi.

The Music Man, Rinaldi admits, is something of a product of desperation, not as good, perhaps, as a regular music room or classroom, "but better by far than what we had."

"AS LONG AS we can teach, we're satisfied," says Rinaldi. "And we can teach in the Music Man."

Condrotte says the music students may be pioneering a program that will prove applicable to other departments in the schools.

There are a few other buses, although of the non-transit type, that are considered "semi-surplus." If the music program works out well, these may be put into use as mobile housing for other special activities now feeling the space squeeze.

"RIGHT NOW, these buses are used mainly for field trips," says Condrotte. "And it might just work out that it would be more economical to put these buses to regular use at the schools, and to charter buses for the field trips."

And the surplus bus fleet might grow if the enrollment slowdown continues.

To Rinaldi and Condrotte, the Music Man seems almost like finding a new classroom for each school.

Seven classrooms for $1,230?

The two figure that even the most cost-conscious taxpayer isn't going to quarrel with that kind of a bargain.

TWO STRING instrumentalists at Davidson Junior High School practice their music in the converted school bus under the helpful supervision of teacher Robert Jacobson.

AT THE STEERING wheel of his school bus-mobile music room, Robert Jacobson prepares to leave the Davidson School grounds for another school and more classes.

Charles A. Lauff — 80 Years A Marinite

Bolinas Pioneer Was A Source Of Colorful Tales Of Early Years

(Editor's Note: This is another of the manuscripts on early-day Marin County personalities and events completed for the Independent-Journal Marin Magazine by Historian Florence Donnelly prior to her death.)

By FLORENCE DONNELLY

One has come to expect that California's pioneer figures would be colorful personalities — men who led adventurous lives with zest and courage.

Charles August Lauff was certainly one who fulfilled all those expectations.

His life was crammed with adventure. And in addition, there are to be found in his biography a touch of romance and even an aura of mystery.

THE MYSTERY centers principally upon his place of birth. Was it Germany, France or Great Britain?

The great historian, Hubert Howe Bancroft, in his "Pioneer Register," listed Lauff as German-born. But the certificate of United States citizenship issued to Charles A. Lauff on May 11, 1867, states that he was "late a subject of the Queen of Great Britain and Ireland."

And the Marin County Register in 1898 adds to the confusion by declaring Lauff a native of France.

Indeed, Lauff himself is said to have given various countries of origin at different times, although he favored France, perhaps because it was then regarded as a romantic nation and its people were much in favor in California.

BE THAT AS it may, Lauff was a handsome man, slender, blue-eyed and dark-haired, the kind of figure who must have encouraged romantic speculation in his younger years as well as among later historians.

He claimed or was said to have been an acquaintance of the likes of John C. Fremont, Gen. Mariano Vallejo, Kit Carson and even the bandit Joaquin Murietta.

Certainly he was an intimate of such towering figures in early Marin County history as Capt. William Richardson, Don Timoteo Murphy and James Black.

He lived a long life, and his years were packed with diverse activities and excitement.

HE WAS A garrulous man, not at all adverse to talking about his past and his adventures. Even more importantly, he put down his memoirs in writing, unusual among the early settlers of Marin. And thus present generations are indebted to Charles A. Lauff for some of their best and most vivid word pictures of what life was like in our area in another time.

Lauff wrote that he was born Feb. 22, 1818, and that his widowed mother brought him to America when he was 5. He attended New York schools, and at 17 shipped before the mast on the bark Byron, bound for the coast of South America to hunt sea elephants for their oil.

"During a severe storm we drifted through the Straits of Magellan and the vessel was wrecked," he wrote. "I climbed on a floating spar and after drifting for three days was picked up and taken aboard the Warren, bound for the whaling grounds off Sitka, Alaska."

THE WARREN was in Alaskan waters for many months, but when it returned to San Francisco Bay, it landed Charles Lauff at Sausalito. It was then he met William A. Richardson, an Englishman who had become a naturalized Mexican citizen and had built the first dwelling in Yerba Buena (San Francisco) outside the mission and presidio.

Richardson was made captain of the port and later granted the Rancho Saucelito.

Lauff was to tell of hunts made with Captain Richardson and a Captain Bull, who had a hide ship and who employed Lauff to buy hides and tallow. The three men killed elk and bear. And Richardson, according to Lauff, was "a great hand" with a riata (rope) as well as a gun.

Lauff made a number of trips along the coast buying hides and tallows. He then made a voyage to San Diego with his acquisitions. There the hides were stored in large vats until they could be shipped east.

AFTER RETURNING to San Francisco, Lauff signed for a cruise on the Pisquame under Capt. J. B. R. Cooper, brother-in-law of General Vallejo, to Peru.

Upon his return, he went to work for Captain Cooper on his ranch holdings at Ross Landing or Kentfield. And when he rode into San Rafael, he met Don Timoteo Murphy — "the king of the whole country" — and their friendship began.

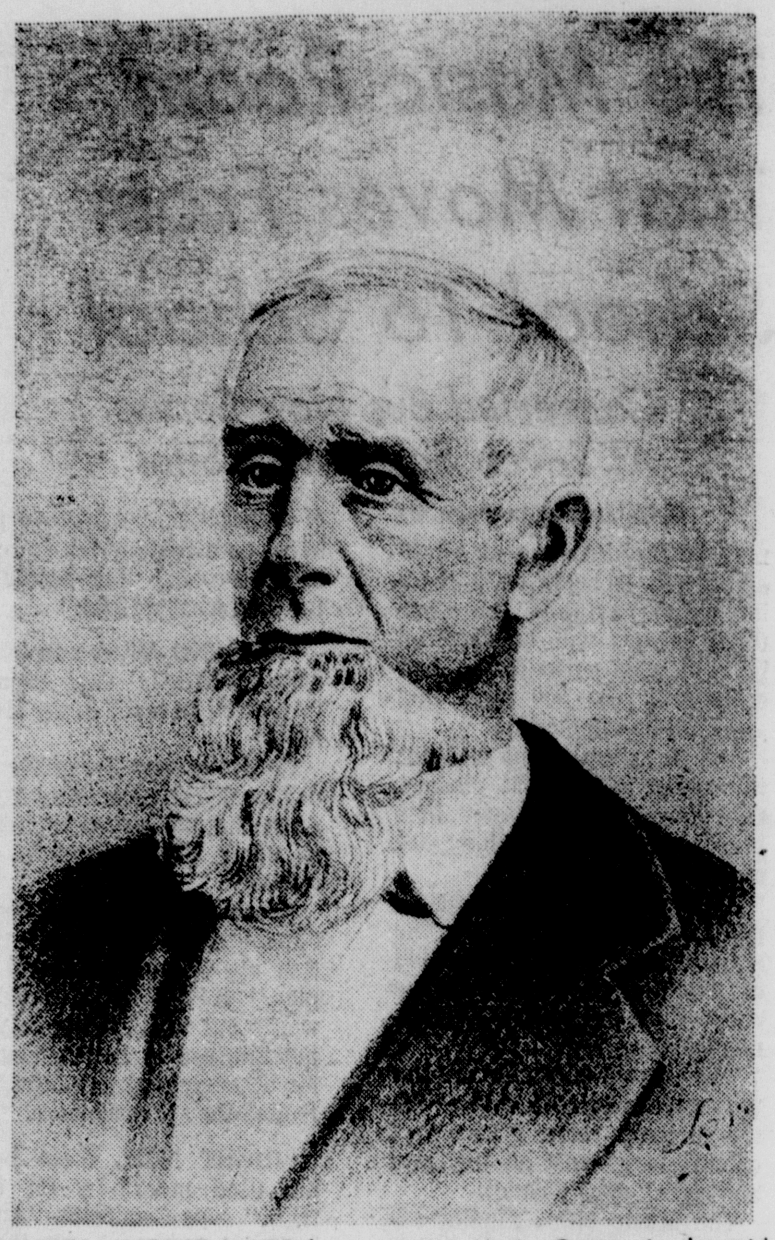
Later he was to meet such other early Marin leaders as Richard Reed, Peter Sais and Pablo Briones.

"Murphy," said Lauff, "was a big, powerful fellow, and the finest looking man I ever saw on horseback. He was an expert with the lariat."

LAUFF ALSO told of a ride over the old White Hill Trail to the Nicasio Valley. "It was a tough trail. There were about 200 Indians in Nicasio, and they treated me fine. I had an old pistol that I traded to them for two mustangs."

Years later, in 1916, he was to relate a story of how one of the Nicasio Indians with bow and arrow saved him from a wounded, angered elk.

When the Mexican War broke out, Lauff joined the American troops. In so doing, he must have alienated many of his friends, Californios who remained loyal to the Mexican government and who suffered indignities at the hands of General Fremont and his men.



CHARLES AUGUST LAUFF first came to Marin County in the mid-1830s as a young sailor and remained here until his death in 1917. He was the intimate of many towering figures of early Marin history. And he was the source of many colorful stories concerning the years when Marin was pioneering country.

It most certainly put a crimp in the romance that Lauff had going with pretty Maria Jesus Briones, daughter of the Gregorio Briones who were strong supporters of the Mexican cause.

BANCROFT HAS written that Lauff served as an officer with the California Battalion, Company B, Artillery. And Lauff himself claimed that "I was the first man to raise the American Flag for Commodore Sloat at Monterey."

He saw action and served with distinction before being discharged from service in Los Angeles. He then returned to Marin and went to work for Timothy Murphy in San Rafael and the Lucas Valley.

"I also hunted sea otters for Murphy . . . and I was employed by Rafael Garcia for a time on his rancho in Marin and in charge of his ranch in Mendocino," Lauff said.

LAUFF LEFT A priceless description of a St. Raphael's Day observance in San Rafael in October of 1847 while he was employed by Murphy:

"Don Timoteo sent for all the residents of Marin to have a barbecue and a general good time. Murphy, who was six feet, three inches tall, was proud of his ability as a rifle shot and loved to display his skill before a gathering.

"The day before the event the settlers began to arrive, (among them) Capt. William A. Richardson, dressed in a black suit, wearing a wide sombrero with long boots, and riding a beautiful black horse. His saddle and bridle were mounted in silver and gold.

"MURPHY HAD a beautiful white stallion with a magnificent silver mounted bridle and saddle. When I told him a guest was in sight, he mounted this charger and accompanied by 10 vaqueros, dashed down the slope to meet them."

Included among the visitors, according to Lauff, were Spanish dignitaries "literally covered with gold braid and gold trappings."

In contrast were the more roughly garbed hunters from the Tomales Bay area.

By name, Lauff listed such guests as Gregorio Briones, Rafael Garcia, Bartolome Bojorques, Ramon Mesa and James Black, all leading figures in pioneer Northern California history.

"WHEN ALL the guests arrived, the host housed most of them in the old mission," the narrator who had witnessed the event continued.

"At 6 o'clock the dinner of cooked antelope, bear and elk was ready, and the feast began. Wild ducks and quail were cooked on skewers and served to the guests by the Indian servants. Murphy had some wine made from the mission grapes and the guests drank their fill. He (Murphy) was the toastmaster . . .

"After the feast everyone gathered around an immense fire that was burning where the corner of Fourth and C streets is today.

"THE INDIANS were arriving from outside settlements, and in their paint and feathers

Story Of A Marin Pioneer

Bolinas Man Knew All Early Figures

ON LAUFF RANCH ROAD in Bolinas stands the hacienda of Don Gregorio Briones. Parts of the old house date back to 1849, it is believed. Don Gregorio, holder of an immense land grant with many trees, died in his hacienda in 1863, a year after the marriage of his daughter, Maria Jesus, to Charles A. Lauff. The daughter inherited a part of the Briones holdings at Bolinas.

presented a wonderful sight around the fire . . .

"The vaqueros, who accompanied their principals, brought along their guitars and played music and sang songs. It was past midnight when the jolly party retired.

"Dawn found many of the guests riding over the beautiful green meadow that makes up the town of San Rafael today. Deer, antelope and quail were plentiful in the foothills and wild birds dotted the bay. The tide waters in those days reached E and First streets, which in later years was used as a wharf.'

"AFTER A breakfast of antelope steaks, Don Timoteo was ready for the day's sport.

"The vaqueros had driven in a band of wild cattle and a few of these were in the corral. Thomas Wood of Tomales Bay was the first to challenge the crowd in riding a wild bronco. He was a daring rider and hurled the riata with marvelous skill.

"A spry colt mustang was brought out and the two Indians who mounted him bit the dust. 'Irish,' who was a clever horseman, was also thrown. Wood mounted the mustang, and not only remained on him, but rode him back to the corral amid the plaudits of the spectators.

"Wood then tackled a wild bull by catching him with the riata, throwing him to the ground and dragging him along behind his horse.

"DON TIMOTEO, too, displayed his skill. He had an immense kennel of dogs, and, with them, he dashed down the valley in pursuit of two antelope that were feeding half a mile below. Before the two antelope could reach the clearing, he had bagged them, and then carried them back on his horse.

"The program continued all day with racing, jumping, horse riding, every sort of stunt was proper. Another barbecue and powwow at night brought the celebration to a close . . ."

Lauff remained with Murphy until he was caught up in the excitement of the gold discoveries to the north.

"NEARLY ALL the vaqueros of Marin left their herds and dashed for the fields," he was to recall. "I knew the upper bay country, and shipped aboard a scow landing at Sacramento. I went to Coloma, and after washing gravel and 'gophering' in the ground for six months, I returned to Sacramento to find it now a thriving settlement."

The fortune he had hoped for failed to materialize, and so Lauff turned to another career. He began piloting boats between San Francisco and Sacramento, and San Francisco and Stockton, and was the first man to take a boat through what became known as New River.

He became a partner in the ownership of a $10,000 schooner, and that ship paid off its investment on its first trip to Stockton, starting Lauff on the road to financial security.

LAUFF ALSO told of the success of another of his early-day Marin friends:

"I was in San Rafael in the

TWO OF the towering figures of early Marin County history with whom Charles A. Lauff was intimately acquainted were, at left, Capt. William Richardson, holder of the Rancho Saucelito grant, and at right, Don Timoteo Murphy, also a holder of huge Marin land grants and referred to by Lauff as "the king of the entire country." Lauff, in later years, was especially proud of his friendships with the two men, and reveled in telling stories of the times when he had enjoyed the hospitality of their homes. Both, said Lauff, were impressive men, talented riders and marksmen. And both took a special pleasure in the role of hosts for barbecues and other celebrations that drew huge gatherings.

fall of 1849 and my friend, James Miller, was engaged in farming and raising cattle in Santa Margarita Valley. He was a fine-looking man, industrious and honest. He was also a good business man, and the idea had struck him that meat would be very scarce in the gold country.

"He got 150 head of fine stock, and with 10 vaqueros, started overland with the herd. He encountered a good deal of trouble, but finally got to Marysville where he butchered the cattle and sold the meat for $1 to $1.25 a pound. The venture netted him a handsome sum, all of which was paid in gold dust . . ."

LAUFF ALSO described the Christmas hospitality he enjoyed at the William Richardson Saucelito hacienda in 1849 for which a hunting party had brought back bear, elk, antelope and deer for the feast.

"Our host," he said, "was a splendid character and dry and witty. He had a charming wife and she greeted us (a Captain Healy and Lauff) most cordially."

The dinner was followed, he recalled, by an impromptu musicale during which Mrs. Richardson sang several songs to a guitar accompaniment. Captain Healy provided Irish tunes and danced a lively jig.

In 1850 Lauff went to the Bolinas area where, he said, "I had procured a contract from Hoff & Hatch to get out lumber and piles for the wharves of San Francisco. The only up-to-date sawmills at that time were located at Bolinas, back of what is now known as Dog Town.

"I FOUND Frederick Miller getting out lumber, and I made a contract with him."

Lauff also related how he had rented a horse from Timothy Murphy for the ride to Bolinas. And went on to explain the origin of the name Dog Town:

"The place was alive with vagrant dogs, which were used by hunters from time to time."

Lauff lodged with the Frank Millers, and told of meeting lumber checkers and cattle buyers while there.

"ONE THING that startled me in Bolinas was the giant size of the redwoods," he wrote. "The forest extended about midway from the bay, back of Dog Town, to the summit of the mountains. In Dog Town and the gulches were trees that measured almost as large as any of the trees found today in Calaveras Grove. It is too bad that all those beautiful trees were sacrificed.

"In the early days nearly all the timber used in San Francisco came from Bolinas. A number of lumber schooners plied between the two places.

"Some of the larger timbers were floated down the bay and loaded on scows at the wharf at the lower end of the bay.

"GREGORIO Briones and Francisco Sebrean (Editor's Note: more often spelled Cibrian) owned the timber, and James W. Hough, a bridge contractor of San Francisco, was engaged in the lumber buying business.

"Bolinas was a very busy place in the early fifties. Lumber was worth $2 a foot delivered in San Francisco, and the contractors were coining money. All the Indians who cared to work earned from $5 to $6 a day, and a man with a good team of oxen or horses was considered well-to-do."

Lauff named among those engaged in "getting out the lumber" Benjamin Thomas Winslow, Joseph Almy, Charles Henderson, John Garcia, Gregorio Sais, Edward Sawyer "and many others."

THE OBSERVANT Lauff also told of Bolinas transportation of that time.

"Communication was held between San Francisco and Bolinas by a double-ended steamer operated by Capt. Thomas Winslow. The trip took five hours and the fare was $10 or $15 for the round trip. But if you survived one trip, you never cared to venture another, especially if the weather were rough.

"The boat would land at the head of the bay with a cargo consisting of hogs, cattle, hides and shingles."

ONE EVENT of which Lauff made no mention was the wedding of Maria Jesus Briones and Francisco Cibrian. But Marin W. Pepper in her book, "A Native of Days of the Dons — Bolinas," said Lauff, at the request of Don Gregorio Briones, built the platform for the wedding celebration.

After the nuptial rites, held May 20, 1850, at Mission San Rafael Arcangel, the wedding party returned to Casa Briones at Bolinas for a great barbecue feast, and then for dancing upon the Lauff-built platform to the music of guitars and violins.

A few years later, Francisco Cibrian died in a smallpox epidemic. His widow and her small son, Francisco, remained at the Casa Briones.

RESPECTING THE widow's grief, Lauff did not immediately press his earlier suit. He busied himself in Bolinas, making frequent trips to San Rafael where he saw the beginnings of county government, now that California had been admitted to the Union, and became acquainted with its leaders.

He watched the sports of the time, and many of them were cruel. One he described thusly:

"Six turkeys were placed in a pit so that four or five inches of their necks and heads were above ground. The vaqueros would ride their horses past them at break-neck speed, and the trick was to pluck off the head of a turkey. Seldom, if ever, would these wiry Spaniards fail to pluck their prize."

ON HIS RIDES from Bolinas to the county seat, sometimes via Olema, sometimes "over the summit," and sometimes by way of Willow Camp (Stinson Beach) and Mill Valley, Lauff would carry with him his rifle "and it was no trick to kill a deer without leaving the trail."

In the fall of 1850 Lauff pulled off a coup by arranging with Capt. Leonard Storey of Sausalito for the construction of a raft of 100,000 feet of piling that they saw safely to San Francisco.

The trip enabled him to again visit his friend, Captain Richardson, and also to view the operations of a small sawmill "in the bottom of the gulch known as New Sausalito today." The enterprise was owned jointly by Tom Botts, Albert McCormack, Robert Parker and Capt. T. F. Peck. Its supply of lumber came from Mill Valley and was floated to Sausalito.

COMMENTING upon the life of that time, Lauff was to say: "The pioneers had the advantage of cheap Indian labor and they used it to full advantage."

He was also to comment upon the hospitality of the people.

"Life was worth living in the early days of the county," he said, looking back. "You never crossed the path of a snob. Everyone was on the same level.

"There was little care for the morrow. It was a case of open hospitality and if you found yourself out in the country or on the road, you stepped into the first house you came to and made yourself perfectly at home."

LAUFF'S MEMOIRS have very little to say about his later years.

THE CHARLES LAUFF STORY

marriage of Charles Lauff, age 40, and Maria Jesus Briones Cibrian, 32, took place April 18, 1862, "in the township of Bolinas" with Justice of Peace W. T. Chapel officiating. The old romance had been renewed and this time blossomed into marriage.

Before this, Lauff had left Marin County twice, to take charge of a Fort Ross ranch for its owners, and then to prospect in the Coast Range mountains. When he returned he was for a year in charge of Rancho Punta de los Reyes under Joseph McCorcle.

THEN, IN 1857, he purchased a squatter's claim near Olema and settled down to the life of a farmer. He was industrious and prospered.

After his marriage he and Maria Jesus made their home on the 298 acres she had inherited near Bolinas, and Lauff added more land. They operated the property as a dairy ranch, and there reared a large family.

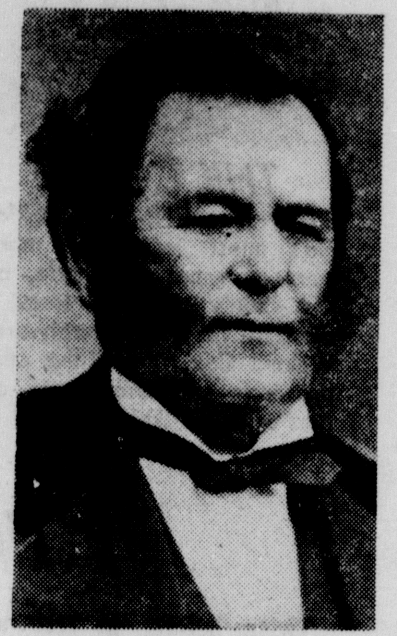
Mrs. Lauff died in 1893. Her husband survived her for many years and was often honored as a Mexican War veteran and pioneer at parades and public assemblies. He enjoyed the limelight. One such occasion was the first Old Settlers' Day gathering held Dec. 2, 1910, at Kentfield Stadium under Tamalpais Center Club auspices. Congressman William Kent presided and 90-year-old Charles Lauff was accorded special honors and spoke vivdly of his recollections of an earlier Marin.

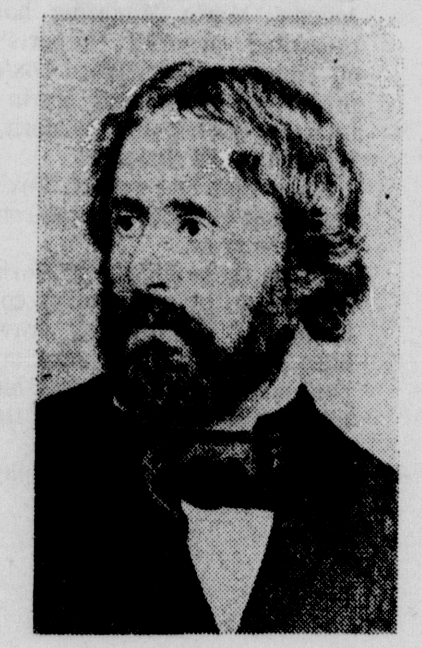
IN JANUARY, 1916, he was still able to give a San Rafael Independent reporter a delightful interview about the days "when no fences marred the landscape in any direction, nor prevented the traveler from riding his horse to any point of the compass."

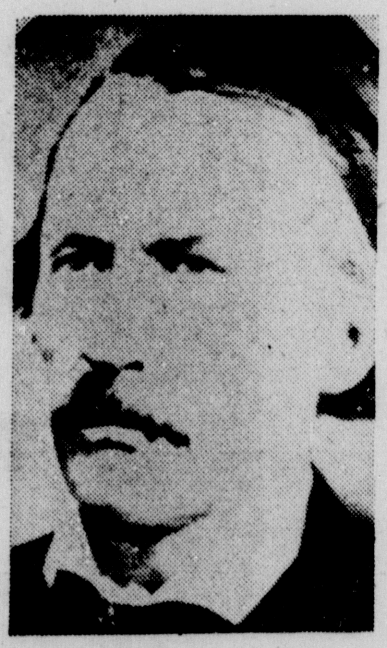
The Independent carried a long and laudatory obituary for Charles August Lauff on July 24, 1917. If Lauff's own birth year of 1818 were to be accepted, he barely missed living to 100. If the age of 70 given for him in the Marin County Great Register of 1892 were correct, then he died at 95. This agrees, too, with the date given for his marriage.

But regardless of their number, his were full and exciting years. And they held a special historical importance because Charles Lauff realized the drama of pioneering and saw to it that his unique experiences were recorded for posterity.

There are indications that, like many another old timer recalling bygone days, Charles Lauff was not reluctant to giving a good story a bit of added "window dressing." But the flavor of an era that he recreated in memoirs, in interviews and in stories he used to spin for public gatherings or simply for the neighbor children, were genuine. And invaluable to those who probe for the county's historical roots.







THREE OF the historical figures who came in for frequent mention in Charles A. Lauff's stories of the early 1800s when he first came to California and fought in the Mexican War were, top to bottom, Gen. Mariano Vallejo, the Mexican governor; Gen. John C. Fremont, the U.S. military commander, and Kit Carson the famous scout.

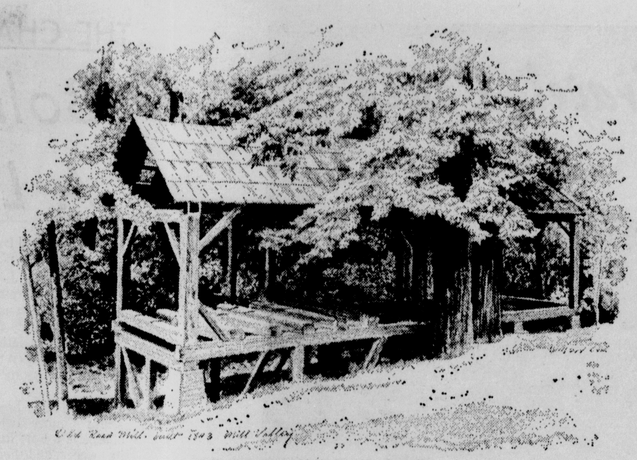
THE COVER

MARIN'S and Northern California's most impressive monuments are not man-made, but the stately redwood trees as sketched here by Tiburon artist Willard Cox. It and the other drawings on these pages are part of a 200-sketch series.



THE OLD REED MILL AT MILL VALLEY

Preserving With A Pencil

Twice before, in 1966 and again in 1968, the Independent-Journal Marin Magazine has presented pictorial "reports" on Tiburon artist Willard Cox's project of preserving Marin's landmarks for posterity through pencil sketches.

Since that last report, Cox's collection of drawings has continued to grow.

So, on these pages, the Marin Magazine displays another collection of Willard Cox drawings, featuring scenes that are part and parcel of Marin's history and its special cultural flavor.

Reproduced by lithography, Cox's drawings of more than 100 California scenes continue to enjoy popularity, particularly in Marin, as postcards and as prints for framing.

And the five-and-a-half-inch by seven-inch drawings found a new use when magnified to eight by 10 feet dimensions, they became wall murals at the Tiburon Lodge, the Old Mill Tavern in Mill Valley and the Lobster Pot in Foster City.

More murals are planned.

Cox, who calls his drawing style "designed realism" and explains that "I try to put as much design in the pictures as I can without destroying the realism of my subject." By concentrating upon "the anatomy of nature," he feels he is continuing the art tradition of Robert Henri, Rockwell Kent and George Bellows.

And he plans to continue to do more scenes in Marin and elsewhere in California.

Right now he has a special interest in still-standing, historically-significant redwood buildings for a future project.

He is also currently involved in doing some art object drawings for Gumps, and he has been commissioned by the J. Walter Thompson Co. advertising agency to make a series of drawings of The Village, a major land development project near San Jose.

But the drawings of Northern California landmarks to which he has devoted five years, working first on location and then at his Tiburon studio on Spanish Trail, will continue to receive a generous amount of his time.

"I feel that in these drawings I am doing work that will be lasting," he says. "And so far I haven't even scratched the surface. There is an almost endless potential of deserving subject material in California."

Include Graz When You Visit Austria

Americans considering Austria as a travel destination invariably think of Vienna first and Salzburg next.

They could be making a mistake if they stop there.

Their list should also include Graz, Austria's second largest city with a population of 253,000 and the capital of the province of Styria.

Graz lies in a magnificent mountain landscape at the eastern edge of the Alps on both sides of the River Mur. Because of its many fine parks, it is called the "City of Gardens."

GRAZ WAS mentioned in documents as early as 1115. For centuries, Graz remained the strongest fortress of Christendom against assaults from the East.

The Hofburg (imperial palace) and the Gothic cathedral (1438)62) date from when Graz was the imperial capital and the residence of the German emperor, Frederic III.

In the center of Graz a landmark rises 404 feet above the town: Castle Hill crowned by the Clock Tower, the Renaissance belltower with the charming open-air theater in the casemate of the ancient fortress. From the top of Castle Hill, the panorama encompasses tall mountains in the north and west, gentle hills in the east, and distant vineyards to the south.

HOUSES WITH steeply pitched roofs and courtyards encircled by loggias cluster around Castle Hill. Buildings of the late Gothic, the Lombardian Renaissance and the early Baroque periods dominate the vista.

A massive Renaissance building, the Landhaus (1557-65) in the Herrengasse, contains a courtyard with cheerful three-story arcades.

The neighboring Armory with its impressive portal (1644), the largest military museum in Europe with the most precious collection of medieval arms in the world, still holds complete war equipment for 30,000 Styrian militiamen.

ONE OF THE prime examples of the early Baroque style is the mausoleum built in 1614 by Emperor Ferdinand II; the interior was designed by Johann Bernhard Fischer von Erlach, the great architect who was born in Graz.

Beyond the lovely grounds of the Town Park stands the oldest church in Graz: the high Gothic Deutschordenskirche am Leech (Teutonic Order of the Church on the Leech, 1275-93).

The Joanneum guards a unique treasure in its collection of Gothic sculptures. Important geological mineralogical specimens are among the exhibits in this institution founded by Archduke Johann.

THE FOLKLORE Museum at the foot of Castle Hill gives a comprehensive survey of Styrian costumes and folklore. The splendid Baroque castle of Eggenberg, in whose stately halls music by old masters is performed, also houses a hunting museum.

The 1,500-seat Opera House was the largest stage in the German-speaking area at the end of World War II. The Playhouse, seriously damaged during the war, was rebuilt and is finer than ever.

As a university city, Graz is renowned.

THE UNIVERSITY, founded in 1586, and the Technical University have an enrollment of 10,000. A third school, the Music Academy, was opened in 1963.

The Graz Trade Fair, held twice a year, is a barometer of the economy.

The city houses metal, vehicle, paper, glass, shoe, leather and textile industries, large breweries and printing plants.

Take Care In Choosing A Charter

Some Have Been Stranded When Organizers Ran Into Troubles

By MURRAY J. BROWN

Industry surveys indicate that one of four Americans who will fly overseas this year will go by charter planes at savings of up to 50 per cent under regular fares.

Everyone loves a bargain. But, caveat emptor - let the buyer beware!

There are hundreds of legitimate low-cost GIT (Group Inclusive Tour) flights offered to the public by reliable tour operators. But thousands of Americans have been victimized by unscrupulous fast-buck operators eager to cash in on the increasing demand for charter flights.

LAST YEAR, more than 3,000 American students were left high and dry in Europe and up to 2,000 more who had paid for the trip and were waiting to go lost their money when a foreign study group organizer in the Midwest went bankrupt.

Early this year, the crackdown on illegal charters stranded 112 Americans in London and 183 Europeans in New York. They had to shell out the regular trans-Atlantic fare to get back home.

Now government agencies, airlines — scheduled and supplementary — tour operators and travel agents have joined forces in an all-out campaign against violators of regulations governing charter flight.

THE TRAVELER, therefore, would be well advised to check carefully before signing up and paying for a charter flight. If there is any doubt, contact the Civil Aeronautics Board in Washington, the local Better Business Bureau or an established travel agency.

Most of the illegal operations are connected with the so-called affinity group charters. But to qualify for an affinity flight you must be a member for at least six months of a bona fide organization, formed basically for purposes other than travel such as a labor union, professional society, garden club, etc.

Steer clear of tour promoters who offer to backdate your membership in some organization which, according to the travel trade publications, is one of the most common come-ons. It is a violation of CAB regulations.

HERE ARE SOME of the tightened CAB regulations on affinity charter flights which went into effect in April:

Solicitation material for the charter must be sent only to members of the chartering organization and may not be sent until the charter contract has been signed.

The carrier must be identified with the type of plane and number of seats specified. If a per-seat price is stated, it must be made clear that the price is subject to cange depending on the number of passengers.

Persons who travel on the charter must have been members of the chartering organization for at least six months before flight time, except in the case of student or employee charters.

An eligible member may take his immediate family — wife, children or parents residing in his household — but not other relatives or friends.

Charges to each passenger must be a prorated amount of the actual cost of chartering the plane. This means that the passenger cannot know until the plane departs exactly what his cost will be. The charge must not include any charitable deductions.

The carrier must collect full payment or else arrange security for full payment before flight time. If there is to be more than one charter group on the plane, the carrier must collect full and non-refundable payment of the total charter price at least 30 days before flight time.

VIOLATIONS BY chartering organizations, carriers or organizers of any of the regulations make them subject to heavy fines and other penalties. For the traveler, it could mean cancellation of vacation plans, loss of money paid for his transportation, or being stranded overseas and having to arrange other passage home.

At this writing, the CAB is considering what would be known as "non-affinity" charters at low budget fares. Basically, these would permit groups of travelers to charter all or part of a plane. Membership in an organization would not be a preliminary condtion. A decision may be announced shortly — watch your newspapers. It could mean more money in your pocket.

Cosmopolitan Cuisine? The U.S.

American tourists used to be so anxious to please they would praise dishes in Paris, London or Rome that they probably would pour over the chef's head back home.

But all that appears to be changing. The United States finally seems to be getting over its inferiority complex about foreign food. And about time, too.

This does not mean European writers will stop calling American edibles the worst in the world. They have been doing it too long to suddenly admit the truth — even if their taste buds were capable of recognizing it. Besides, it not only makes the natives feel better about some of the stuff they have to eat, but it also impresses those travelers who haven't bothered to see America first.

There are splendid French restaurants in France and memorable Italian restaurants in Italy. But try to find great German food in Paris or Rome. Or great Japanese or Mexican food. Not easy. All you can grant other countries is that ahey may excell in the local cuisine — rarely anything more than that.

For truly cosmopolitan eating you've got to hand it to the homeland. Many open-minded visitors from abroad are frankly surprised at the variety, decor and expertise of the top rate spots. It simply doesn't square with what they have read.

If you can afford it — and blue-ribbon food is expensive everywhere in the world these days, you can find French restaurants of grace and elegance which are not inferior to the finer restaurants of France.

Recently in Madrid the head waiter of a leading hotel confided that outside of a few purely local specialties like baby eels he thought New York Spanish food the equal of any. And America's many and prosperous Italian colonies assure that their eating places match those of the motherland.

Ditto the German. And so on — around many of the cuisines of the world.

GETTING AWAY FROM THE MAIN HIGHWAYS

"Back Roads of California" by Earl Thollander, a Sunset Pictorial book, is in part a travel guide to direct you into the state's more rural and less populated regions, and in part a sketch book in which the author has recorded the sights he has seen and the impressions he has experienced while making these trips himself.

Some 40 itineraries away from the cities and off the freeways are suggested.

All parts of the state are accorded attention, starting in the south and working northwards.

Our own area is represented by the Panoramic Highway and Ridgecrest, by the Point Reyes-Petaluma and Marshall-Petaluma roads, San Pedro Road, and the Black Point Cut-Off on north to the Valley of the Moon via the Lakeville Road, Stage Gulch Road and Arnold Drive.

Thollander's pictures include a color spread of the Hicks Valley and black-and-white sketches of the Mountain Home Inn, the Tower House, the Mount Tamalpais amphitheater, grazing Point Reyes cattle, the Marshall boatworks and the town of Marshall, plus drawings of some of our wildflowers.

The Marin-Sonoma treatment is typical of that accorded other sections.

Thollander's rather primitive artwork has a certain charm that seems appropriate to the rusticity of most of his subjects. And while his travel directions are quite brief, they serve to suggest a number of generally overlooked trip possibilities into quiet, unspoiled pockets and to make certain that some interesting if non-spectacular sights are not missed.

Country lanes, as they grow fewer, also grow more and more attractive to Americans.

Mary McCarthy About Taste And Time

BIRDS OF AMERICA by Mary McCarthy; Harcourt Brace Jovanovich Inc., 344 pages, $6.95. Reviewed by Don Keown.

The thin line dividing taste from snobbery, and the erosion of both by time and change furnish Mary McCarthy with her principal themes for her novel "Birds of America."

Her chief protagonist is 20-year-old Peter Levi, although he shares the spotlight with his mother, Rosamund, concert artist, intellectual, free spirit, and, in the opinion of many, based upon Miss McCarthy herself.

The book begins with Rosamund and Peter returned to the New England coastal village of Rocky Port where they had spent an earlier idyllic summer and now attempt to recapture that magic. But already, they discover, in the brief interim of their absence, change has left its imprint upon Rocky Port and it is not the town they remembered.

Peter is something of a "momma's boy," having committed himself to the kind of Kantian existence espoused and practiced by Rosamund. It involves a rejection of much of what we call progress in favor of the old standards. And it involves an egalitarianism that is often in conflict with their elitist cultural values.

But the near shambles of the experiment at Rocky Port nudge Peter along the path toward individualism and a life-philosophy of his own. It is a process completed in the last half of the book with Peter on his own, a student at the Sorbonne, trying to adjust old ideals to new realities, with Paris and its student culture providing an interesting and restless backdrop.

In the end, Peter realizes that he must not only loosen his ties with Rosamund and her outdated life style, but also with his second mother, Nature, who no longer exists in her purist form.

"Nature is dead," says the spectre of Immanuel Kant in a dream-like visit to Peter's bed-side. It is an ill-fitting concluding scene that leaves the reader embarrassed. But more importantly, it is a climactic message that will leave many readers sharing Peter's and Rosamund's fondness for the "finer things" feeling betrayed.

For even Rosamund, we are told has come to realize "that there were things she could not do."

Miss McCarthy has elaborated: "If nature — in the beautiful form that we normally think of it; that is, the outdoors, plants, farms, forests — if all this were to disappear, which it's doing, there'd be nothing stable left to stand on, no ground for ethics . . .

"Nature for centuries has been the court of appeals. It will decide one way or another. Not always justly, but nevertheless . . . the appeal is always to this court, to Nature's court. And if this is gone, we're lost.

"And I think we're lost, I'm not an optimist."

Early criticisms have dwelt upon the precept that Mary McCarthy is a better essayist than a novelist, charging her with an inability to empathize with her characters and to present them as believable human beings.

But Miss McCarthy denies any intent to write a realistic novel. "Anybody who thought that ("Birds of America") was a realistic novel would be crazy," she says.

Here the message is the thing, and Petr's task is to define it.

A more legitimate criticism of Miss McCarthy's work as a novelist, it would seem, would be its unevenness, and her difficulty in achieving cohesion. Her novels are invariably better in their parts than they are as a whole. Thus the reader encounters nuggets that make the reading of "The Birds of America" well worthwhile; but to uncover and savor them, he must also wade through long, arid, dull passages.

The vegetarian girl at the rightwing general's Thanksgiving Day dinner in Paris is a comic delight. Peter's letter to his mother, occupying a full chapter, is, on the other hand, extremely tedious, divided between a revolting description of the unsanitary conditions of the toilets of cheaper Parisian hotels and a wearisome exposition of his philosophical opinions.

A long dissertation in conversational form on tourism is another bog into which the reader sinks, despairing that it will ever end. Much of the interlude in Rocky Port, on the other hand, is amusing and interesting.

The novel, which Miss McCarthy began way back in 1964, is assured of best-seller status by the mere presence of her name. It has more to recommend it than just that. It deals with problems and issues that bother many of us. And the fact that the view is a less hopeful, more bleak one than we might desire may be testimony to its honesty.

A Melancholy Tale Of Terror

CRAWLSPACE by Herbert Lieberman; Atheneum, 306 pages, $6.95. Reviewed by Maxine Keown.

Herbert Lieberman has written a strange and haunting novel, a story filled with terror and melancholy, and yet a book with tender, strongly moralistic implications.

A retired couple, Albert and Alice Graves, hungry for companionship, invite the youth, Richard Atlee, who comes to their home to repair the oil burner, to remain for dinner.

A relationship is established, even though the Graves are puzzled and made uneasy by some mysterious qualities within the young man. Then they discover that Atlee has returned unannounced and is living in the crawlspace between the floor of the house and the ground. Their relationship takes a new turn, and the town sheriff, Birge, becomes another principal.

Inevitably, the alliance leads to tragedy. And it is only then that the Graves learn the true background and motivations of their unorthodox "guest."

In his second novel (he has also written two plays), Lieberman has shown a genuine flair for a kind of story that is especially difficult for the writer to achieve, and when well done almost impossible for the reader to forget.

The Veteran Home From Vietnam: Patriot Or Victim?

NO VICTORY PARADES by Murray Polner; Holt, Rinehart and Winston, 169 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Frank Farrara.

Vietnam War veterans are coming home not only unsung, but generally unnoticed; some on hard drugs, some embittered and many with the feeling that it was all for naught.

Murray Polner, a former university history professor, tells of nine, three "hawks," three "doves" and three "haunted," as representative of the more than 200 veterans he interviewed.

Veterans are returning with doubts about the kind of war they were forced to fight, and the interviews revealed an "erosion of faith, a growing degree of alienation . . .," Polner observed.

The veterans themselves tell of many incidents of atrocities, indicating that My Lai wasn't unique; of corruption in X South Vietnam, and of cynicism about body counts.

One infantryman tells of killing a wounded North Vietnamese as ordered rather than be labeled a coward by his friends, another recalls Americans destroying a school full of children, and a former Hell's Angel tells of killing about 100 civilians while under the influence of pills issued by the Army for combat fatigue.

On return to home, one veteran said people were "either indifferent or hostile," and another felt that nobody in the U.S. cared about the soldiers of Vietnam.

"Everyone in the states had forgotten us, left us to live or die, anything, so long as they weren't involved."

They somehow acquire an immunity to brutality, justify atrocities and compromise their humanitarian ideals, a frightening development.

Another veteran said he kept asking himself, "What is the veteran of the Vietnam War? Victim? Mercenary? Patriot? Lemming?"

There is some disheartening evidence, that the Vietnam War, as its critics have claimed, has had a dehumanizing effect on U.S. troops.

Expert Looks At Southland Building Styles

LOS ANGELES: THE ARCHITECTURE OF FOUR ECOLOGIES by Reyner Banham; Harper & Row, 256 pages, $6.95. Reviewed by Don Keown.

Reviews Of New Reading

It comes as a shock to a Northern Californian that anyone would want to write seriously about Los Angeles architecture. But Reyner Banham, professor of the history of architecture at University College in London and a frequent visiting teacher at universities in our own Southlands, has not only done so, but has concluded that Los Angeles "has a comprehensible, even consistent quality to its built form, unified enough to rank as a fit subject for an historical monography."

And he defends Los Angeles construction against the accusations of monotony and confusion.

Mobility, he says, is the key: "The language of design, architecture and urbanism in Los Angeles is the language of movement."

History and the ecology have both had their impact upon the architecture, and are responsible for much of the variety that exists within this mobility theme. The Hispanic mixes with the Anglo-Saxon; the shoreline, the foothills, the flatlands all stimulate certain kinds of building. And there is the influence of Hollywood in the Disneyland-like fantasy forms that have developed.

Banham discusses them all, and the architects who played the major roles in all the various waves that Los Angeles architecture has experienced. The book is profusely illustrated.

And finally Banham concludes: "Such a very large body of first-class and highly original architecture cannot be brushed off as an accident, an irrelevance upon the face of an indifferent dystopia. If Los Angeles is one of the world's leading cities in architecture, then it is beause it is a sympathetic ecology for architectural design, and it behoves the world's architects to find out why."

Bitter pill though it is for a Bay Area resident to swallow, one must admit that Banham does change our image of Los Angeles architecture, making of it a good place to visit in order to see building styles that are diverse and yet peculiarly akin to one another, and expecially suited to their city. Even then, we wouldn't want to live there!

Biography Of Literary Giant Who Was Also An Idealist

VICTOR HUGO: A TUMULTUOUS LIFE by Samuel Edwards; McKay, 330 pages, $8.95.

By DON KEOWN

Almost invariably the end result of serious biography is to lessen the stature of the subject, destroying myths and exposing human foibles.

Samuel Edwards' "Victor Hugo: A Tumultuous Life" has quite the opposite effect. Hugo emerges from its pages larger than ever, a heroic figure of gargantuan talents who lived a life as fascinating and as eventful as any of his fictional characters.

This is true, in part, because Edwards has written the book from a standpoint of frank admiration. But it is also true because of the overwhelming greatness that dwelt in Victor Hugo, one of the giants of all time.

Edwards does not overlook Hugo's arrogance and conceit that made him at times a difficult man. He discusses openly Hugo's many romantic affiars that made him one of the most notorious rakes in a Paris filled with philanderers. He makes clear, too, that Hugo was capable of erratic and quixotic behavior that made him sometimes unpredictable.

But all of this was overshadowed by the brilliance of his literary career. And by his political and social idealism, and the courage with which he practiced his beliefs.

His mistress, Juliette Drouette, wrote to Hugo:

"I am speechless with admiration before the catalogue of your masterpieces. Your genius is unmatched in our century."

Notes Edwards: "Her assessment may have been heavily prejudiced, but it was accurate."

After reading Edwards' evidence, the reader finds himself in full agreement, too. Not only was there tremendous depth in Hugo's literary talent, but there was also remarkable versatility. He wrote great novels — of which "Les Miserables" was but one — that not only enjoyed unprecedented popularity, but also helped to shape the social and political structures of his and other lands. He penned some of the most beautiful poetry ever to be created by man. He wrote plays that were commercially successful and which spoke bravely and pointedly to the true issues of his time. He wrote travel books and essays and scathing political satire and personal memoirs.

And in all of it was reflected the genuis that placed Hugo alongside Voltaire and Rousseau as the foremost men of letters in all French history, presenting a trio of great minds and extrordinary talents that quite probably only one other country on earth can reasonably challenge and match.

But Victor Hugo also had a second career — in the political arena. And there he was a steadfast idealist, often advancing ideas — a United States of Europe, for instance — that were a century in advance of his times. He was always the champion of the common man, and in later years of democracy, and an implacable foe of the would-be tyrant Napoleon III. He was an eloquent speaker for his causes.

And such was his courage of his convictions that he underwent a long exile upon the channel islands rather than to live in Paris under the Bonaparte yoke.

Even in his chaotic domestic and romantic life, there was a strain of honor and consistency. He was faithful to his wife, until she was unfaithful. His love for Juliette Droucette, an exceptional personality herself, never wavered, even as he had literally hundreds — probably thousands — of affairs with other women, ranging from the famous Sarah Bernhardt to Parisian streetwalkers. But when, in their last years, the understanding Juliette demanded his fidelity, he gave it to her.

He was genuinely fond of his family, the ranks of which were decimated by tragedy, and he was loyal and generous to his friends.

He was a man of tremendous appetites — for food, for women, for work, for the arts, for politics.

And his life, as recounted by Samuel Edwards, would make a motion picture as spectacular as the film versions of any of his epic novels. With, if we are to have an English-language picture, why not Richard Burton in the Hugo role?

In the end, Victor Hugo left France, and the world, not only an awesome body of literature, but also its Third Republic of which he was probably the chief architect.

Something of his prestige and impact upon his country and his times were evident when on Feb. 27, 1881, the Republic of France saluted him with a national holiday, with a huge parade through the streets of his beloved Paris and a great banquet. He was then 81 (he died four years later). Nations are given to honoring their politicians, their generals and their admirals, their explorers, their aviators and now their astronauts. But what other literary figure can you think of who was so honored in his lifetime by his countrymen?

It is fitting that Victor Hugo stands alone in this respect, for he was a unique figure in literature and in history.

Some readers may be bothered by Samuel Edwards' undisguised admiration for his subject in "Victor Hugo: A Tumultuous Life." For instance he presents such a one-dimensional picture of Hugo's arch-foe, Louis Napoleon, that it borders on the unfair. But it is also apparent that no person could delve into the life of a man of Hugo's qualities and achievements without being impressed to the verge of intimidation and awe.

"I am a national institution, embodying in my one person all the best that is France," said Victor Hugo, well aware of his special qualities and not adverse to mentioning them.

History, and "Victor Hugo: A Tumultuous Life," confirm his immodest evaluation.

A PORTRAIT of Victor Hugo as a young man, by A. Deveria, is reproduced on the jacket of Samuel Edwards' new biography, "Victor Hugo: A Tumultuous Life." The book also contains a portfolio of illustrations showing Hugo, members of his family, his intimates and his contemporaries. David McKay Co. is the publisher.

STERLING Sherwin (John Milton Hagen) of Mill Valley, whose production of verse is exceeded only by his output of western music, has two more songbooks of cowboy tunes available now through his publisher, Francis, Day & Hunter Ltd. of 138 Charing Crow Road, London — "Cowboy Songs" and "Saddle Songs."

Along with Sherwin originals, the books also contain his adaptations of some old western favorites such as "Red River Valley," "Home on the Range" and "Bury Me Not on the Lone Prairie."

As for Sherwin's own work, there are the likes of "He Was Only a Cowboy," "The Cowboy's Prayer" and "The Phantom Trail." For some, Sherwin did both music and words. But for most he concentrated on the music, and the lyrics are the work of assorted collaborators with such colorful names as Mustang Mike and Bronc Peeler Ben as well as more conventionally named craftsmen such as James Grafton Rogers and Roger Pocock.

Along with piano and voice, the music is generally chorded for the guitar. And it is fine, too, we discovered, for the harmonica.

BAKER BOOK House, 1019 Wealthy Street, Grand Rapids, Mich., has issued a $5.95 hardcover reprint edition of "The Life of Mary Baker G. Eddy and the History of Christian Science," written by Georgine Milmine with the help of Willa Cather. The book first appeared 62 years ago and almost immediately disappeared, probably because Christian Scientists bought up all the copies. Although copies can now be found in only a few libraries and private collections, it was nevertheless not until now that a reprinting was undertakenm

A PACKET of softcover books from Naturegraph Publishers of 8339 West Dry Creek Road, Healdsburg, includes:

"Natural Remedies for Better Health" by Dr. Ingrid Sherman, naturopath and osteopath, suggesting fruit, vegetable and mineral combinations for healing and health. Examples: for sunburn, cucumber, or coconut butter or cold tea; for pimples, linden blossom tea. In addition to the $2.25 paperback, there is a $4.25 clothbound edition.

"Wild Edible Plants of the Western United States" by biologist Donald Kirk with 350 line drawings and descriptions of plants that can be safely eaten. It is intended as a guide for the camper and hiker. With 312 pages, the paperback is $3.95 and the hardcover $5.95.

"An Illustrated Guide to Fossil Collecting" by Richard Casanova, a revised edition of a book the paleontologist first had published in 1957. Aimed at the rock hound, $2.25 softcover, $4.25 clothbound.

"Indian Talk" by Iron Eyes Cody, part Cherokee, television and movie actor, and an authority on Indian culture. Photographs depict the hand signals used by redmen to communicate. This one is $1.75 softcover, $3.75 hardbound.

Sleuths & Suspense

THE SHADOW GUEST by Hillary Waugh; Doubleday, 254 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Maxine Keown.

A veteran author of mystery and suspense novels has outdone himself in this gripping and eerie tale tinged with the supernatural and capped with a surprising and ironic conclusion.

When the Whelans had to move from New York to London, things begin to go downhill for them. They appear to have hit bottom when Howard suffers a heart attack, and the doctors order them to the English country for a rest.

For some reason Angela is drawn to a dank, forbidding seaside cottage. And while her husband cannot understand the choice, they go there.

What was bad in London becomes worse in this isolated habitation with its history of tragedy and its reputation for being haunted. Howard becomes increasingly concerned as Angela begins to experience nightmares and her health deterioates.

Waugh expertly maintains an aura of menace and the supernatural as the couple struggle to maintain their emotional balance and preserve their lives against an enemy they cannot see.

The Animals That Dwell On Beaches, In Tidepools

Does a starfish think?

How old are mussels?

Why does a periwinkle have a trap door?

How do crabs make babies?

Does a jelly fish have eyes?

Can a scallop tell up from down?

These are the kinds of questions asked and answered by Ilka Katherine List, art teacher and invertebrate zoology student, in her book for 6 to 10-year-olds, "Questions and Answers About Seashore Life" (Four Winds, $5.50). Mrs. List will be remembered for her earlier book, "Let's Explore the Shore." And like its predecessor, "Questions and Answers About Seashore Life" should hold a special interest for Marin youngsters with their easy access to beaches and tidelands.

One by one Mrs. List takes up the most common of the seashore animals and asks and answers the questions about them that are most likely to arise in inquisitive young minds.

It is no comprehensive, sweeping text on seashore invertebrates. But it does hit the high spots and will likely whet the appetites of many boys and girls for more detailed information obtainable elsewhere.

There is an abundance of illustrations — woodcuts by the author and line drawings by Arabelle Wheatley.

"THE SEA" (Harcourt Brace Johanovich, $4.50) by Ruth Brindze goes out beyond the shores to delve into the oceans to analyze some of the factors that make these waters so important to man, present and future. It is rather a hit-and-miss affair studying in detail man's underwater explorations and research to increase seafood production. But it barely hints at some of the great dangers to these resources — mercury poisoning, pollution, tanker collisions, etc. It leaves with the small reader an unrealistic impression of the proximity of the time (if ever) when man will dwell beneath the seas. And all in all, it minimizes problems in favor of a rather rosy and shortsighted view of the future of the seas. The illustrations are photographs.

Some other new books for juniors:

Why do animals behave the way they do? And how does their behavior throw light upon man's conduct? Such questions have given birth to a whole new science — the observation and analysis of the behavior of animals in their natural habitat, called ethology. Some of ethology's discoveries to date furnish Daniel Cohen, the former editor of Science Digest, with the material for his book "Watchers in the Wild" (Little, Brown, $5.95). Juniors whose interests lie in this direction will be intrigued by his reports — on gulls, geese, gorillas, chimps, jackdaws, etc. And the controversy over the role man's biological origins play in his own problems, particularly his aggressions. "We apes, it seems," writes Cohen, "are still debating over what sort of apes we are."

If you have a young science fiction fan in the house, he'll appreciate a copy of "The Days of Tomorrow" (Little, Brown, $5.95), an excellent collection of short stories of the genre, chosen and edited by Hans Stefan Santesson, a veteran of anthology projects. The stories are sharp, clean and entertaining. Authors like Arthur C. Clarke, Randall Garrett, Isaac Asimov and Robert Silverberg rarely write otherwise. Along with exciting adventure, they provide some thought-provoking insights into what might well lie ahead for earthlings.

Dog stories have long held a fascination for young readers, particularly boys. "The Long Trail Home" (Four Winds, $4.95) by Dr. Josh Durfey is in that tradition, a story about a golden collie living with her master in the remote Alaskan woods who becomes lost in those wilds and must then adapt to a far different kind of life — that of the wolf with whom she mates. The account of their existence is excellent, but the book's conclusion seems a bit too melodramatic. Dr. Durfey is a Downey, Calif., resident, a surgeon and a breeder of both dogs and horses. This, his first novel, is for boys through the ninth grade. And fairly well done.

The Nervous System: The Inner Networks" (Prentice-Hall, $3.95) will interest only a specialized segment of the young reading audience — the future surgeons or those interested for other reasons in human physiology and psychology. Dr. Alvin Silverstein, a biologist, and his wife, Virginia, a writer, explain the communications system of the body — whey we move, or sometimes fail to move. Ullustrations are by Mel Erikson. And the explanation is generally successful if hardly stimulating to young intellects.

"Dissent in America" (McGraw-Hill, $4.95) is writer Robert A. Liston's exploration of a subject currently of keen interest to many young Americans. It is both history and sociology, tracing American reaction through centuries to dissent, and probing the causes and forms of that dissent and evaluating its success or lack of success. The discussion sparkles at times and lags at others. Hardly scholarly, still it cannot be put down as superficial.

"Finding Out With Your Senses" (McGraw-Hill, unpriced) is a "Let's-Try-It-Out" series book by Seymour Simon for younger children. The child is invited to experience, with the help of illustrations by Emily McCully, some of the many ways in which our senses serve us. The suggested experiments can be undertaken easily. And the child should wind up with a greater appreciation of the marvels of sight, smell, taste, sound and touch.

NEEDLE AND THREAD STAGE A COMEBACK

THE COMPLETE GUIDE TO EMBROIDERY STITCHES AND CREWEL by Jo Bucher; Creative Home Library (Meredith), 393 pages, $8.95. Reviewed by Maxine Keown.

No question about it — the once almost dormant craft of fine stitchery has experienced an amazing revival of interest.

Today's women —and a good many men — are finding in it the special satisfactions that come from fine things created by their hands, all the more enjoyable in an age when most of our look-alike products are produced by machine.

The publisher claims that "The Complete Guide to Embroidery Stitches and Crewel" by Jo Bucher, needlecraft teacher and designer, is a "one of a kind" manual.

It offers detailed instruction and illustrative demonstration of every known type of embroidery and every stitch. It is, essentially, a book for the beginner, but it will also serve to carry her farther along into the craft if she already has mastered the fundamental skills.

In all, there are more than 300 stitches discussed and shown, plus a thousand suggestions on how to put them to creative use.

There is also a glossary of embroidery terms.

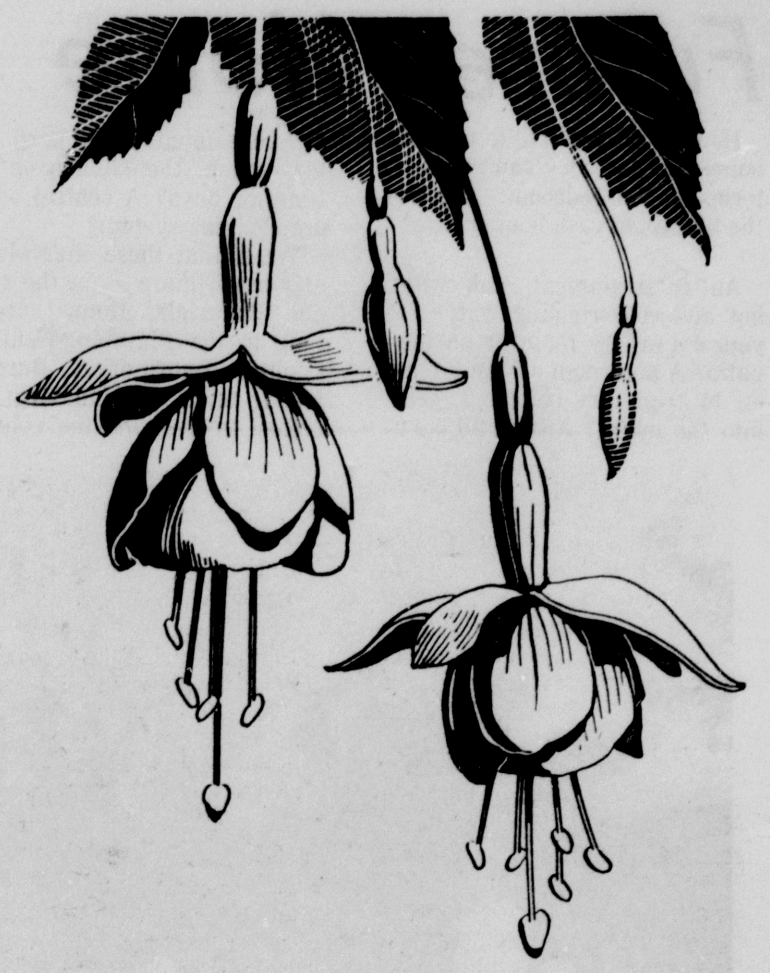
And along with line drawings and how-to-do-it shots, there are several color plates of beautifully finished work to inspire the novice to persist.

Many a family now cherishes heirloom tablecloths and pillowcases embroidered by grandmother or great grandmother. But what will great grandchild treasure in year 2030 as personal remembrances of today's generation? The answer a few years back would have been "very little." But now it seems that the women have again taken up needle and thread to turn out beautiful things that will be the family heirlooms of the future. Jo Bucher's book should be a source of encouragement and instruction for hose who find the going a bit difficult at first, or who wish to advance into the more difficult stitchings.

A NEW series of quality paperbacks for children, from Holt, Rinehart and Winston's picture book backlist has appeared under a Holt Owlet label. The first 10 books include Evaline Ness' "Sam, Bangs & Moonshine," Frank Stockton's "The Bee-Man of Orn," Mary Kay Phelan's "The Circus," Rebecca Caudill's "A Certain Small Shepherd," Elizabeth Starr Hill's "Evan's Corner" and Leland Jacobs' "Alphabet of Girls."

Fuchsias Until Fall

Garden Page



Fuchsias have been blooming for several weeks in Marin, and they will continue to bloom for several more — and then some.

Color can be enjoyed from these prolific shrubs until the shorter days and cooler nights of late fall.

This should serve as a reminder that it's never toolate to plant Fuchsias. Young plants almost ready to bloom and mature specimens already showing color are to be found at your nursery.

THE VARIETIES and types of Fuchsias are numerous.

Many garden situations can be filled by Fuchsias, as there are tall erect varieties, low spreaders, compact types, and still others that trail in tantalizing fashion. There are also Hanging Basket Fuchsias for decorating the porch or patio.

Nurseries have the Fuchsias best-suited for our conditions. Check out the many possibilities — including new 1971 introductions.

Fuchsias like cultural conditions similar to those needed by Camellias.

They thrive in the same acid soil, and the same filtered shade. Where you live will determine how much sun the plants will tolerate. In the coastal fog belt, Fuchsias may take full sun, but further inland valleys some will not survive in sunny afternoon exposure.

YOUR NURSERYMAN can provide the advice needed to gain the maximum of pleasure from these plants.

The California Association of Nurserymen points out a good cultural practice is to pinch-off the tip growth of Fuchsias, to encourage bushiness.

As with Roses, new wood carries the bloom; pinching Fuchsias also promotes an unbelievable number of fascinating flowers.

Fuchsias enjoy frequent overhead waterings, and respond to feeding. Your nurseryman can recommend a specially-formulated plant food for Fuchsias.

Hobbyists find year-round enjoyment from tending their Fuchsias, and the plants respond to the attention. One happy feature about the plants, however, is that they still perform admirably for the gardener who isn't inclined to undertake growing Fuchsias as a hobby.

Fuchsias offer beautiful rewards for amateur and hobbyist alike.

The Fibrous Begonia Can Give You Beauty In Hurry

When it comes to masses of garden color, the beauty provided by Fibrous Begonias rivals that of any other flower variety.

Massed in beds, or used in borders as an edging, the fibrous-rooted Begonias add sparkle to the summer garden.

There are dwarf types and taller-growers, which makes possible their versatility in the home landscape.

Nurseries have Fibrous Begonias available for planting now. These are small transplants of varieties which bloom in pink, red and white.

Certain ones have crisp, apple green foliage and other Fibrous Begonias boast rich bronze leaves, which are especially valued for accent purposes.

SHOPPING MAY turn up Fibrous Begonias in larger-size nursery containers, which makes it possible to achieve a desired effect in a hurry.

The plants are usually to be found in nurseries in bloom, and Fibrous Begonias will continue to flower until frost — providing a never-ending show of color.

In our coastal gardens, these free-flowering gems will take more sun than inland, where Fibrous Begonias want some protection from the summer sun. They thrive in light shade, and often are the answer to which flowering plant to use where sun-loving bloomers fail to flower because of insufficient light.

AN EXAMPLE of such a garden location would be on the east, or north side of the house.

Don't overlook the chance to grow Fibrous Begonias in pots for decorations on the patio, or porch.

Their more spectacular cousins, the Tuberous Begonias, produce large, awesome individual blooms which defy description. But, the trim small flowering Fibrous Begonias exude a charm of their own which draws admiring comments from all who view them.

MOST GARDEN soils will satisfy these bedders, but one that is liberally worked over with peat moss or leaf mold is preferred. A simple solution is to incomrporate a recommended planter mix with the soil as you set out the plants.

Fibrous Begonias appreciate frequent watering, such as might be expected along the edge of a lawn.

A CHECKLIST FOR GARDENERS OF MARIN

Here is the Marin gardener's checklist for the coming week:

✔ Camellias, Azaleas and Rhododendrons should be fed this month. Your nurseryman can recommend a specially-formulated plant food for these acid-loving specimens.

✔ Harvest tasty vegetables in late summer and fall by planting these now: Pole and bush beans, corn, squash, carrots, beets, eggplant, tomatoes, radishes and melons.

✔ For a summer show of color, the Flowering Maple (Abutilon) is a prime candidate. Not a tree, this is a handsome shrub, adorned with maple-like leaves.

✔ When Delphinium flowers fade, cut the stalks back to about six inches. In about two weeks, feed them and watch the results: You'll be rewarded with another flush of color in mid-summer.

✔ Lawns watered deeply, and less frequently, are the happiest. If compaction prevents water penetration, consult your nurseryman — he can outline a course of action to relieve the situation and create a carpet of green.

✔ Summer-flowering vines are an attractive way to provide cool shade for outdoor living areas and the home during warm spells.

Future Home Will Be Well Plumbed

Handyman's Pages

How would you like to have a home that includes vanity lavatories in the bedrooms to ease the bathroom rush-hour traffic?

An entertainment sink with hot and cold running water in your family room or on the patio? A mudroom off the kitchen to trap dirt before it gets into the house? An outdoor drinking fountain to keep the kids out of the kitchen on hot summer days? A central vacuum cleaning system?

You'll find these marvels — and much more — in the typical "Wateright" Home, according to the Plumbing-Heating-Cooling Information Bureau. It's a term the industry has coined to describe the conveniences and comforts that can be yours through your plumbed-in appliances — of which there are nearly 50 in call. They include:

1. A bathroom for every bedroom or, alternately, at least two full bathrooms and a powder room or mudroom.

2. Food waste disposer, dishwater, double-bowl sink and instant hot water dispenser in the kitchen.

3. A laundry area with water and drain facilities.

4. Such outdoor water features as an entertainment sink with hot and cold running water on the patio, a drinking fountain and water outlets on all four sides of the house for lawn sprinkling, car washing, etc.

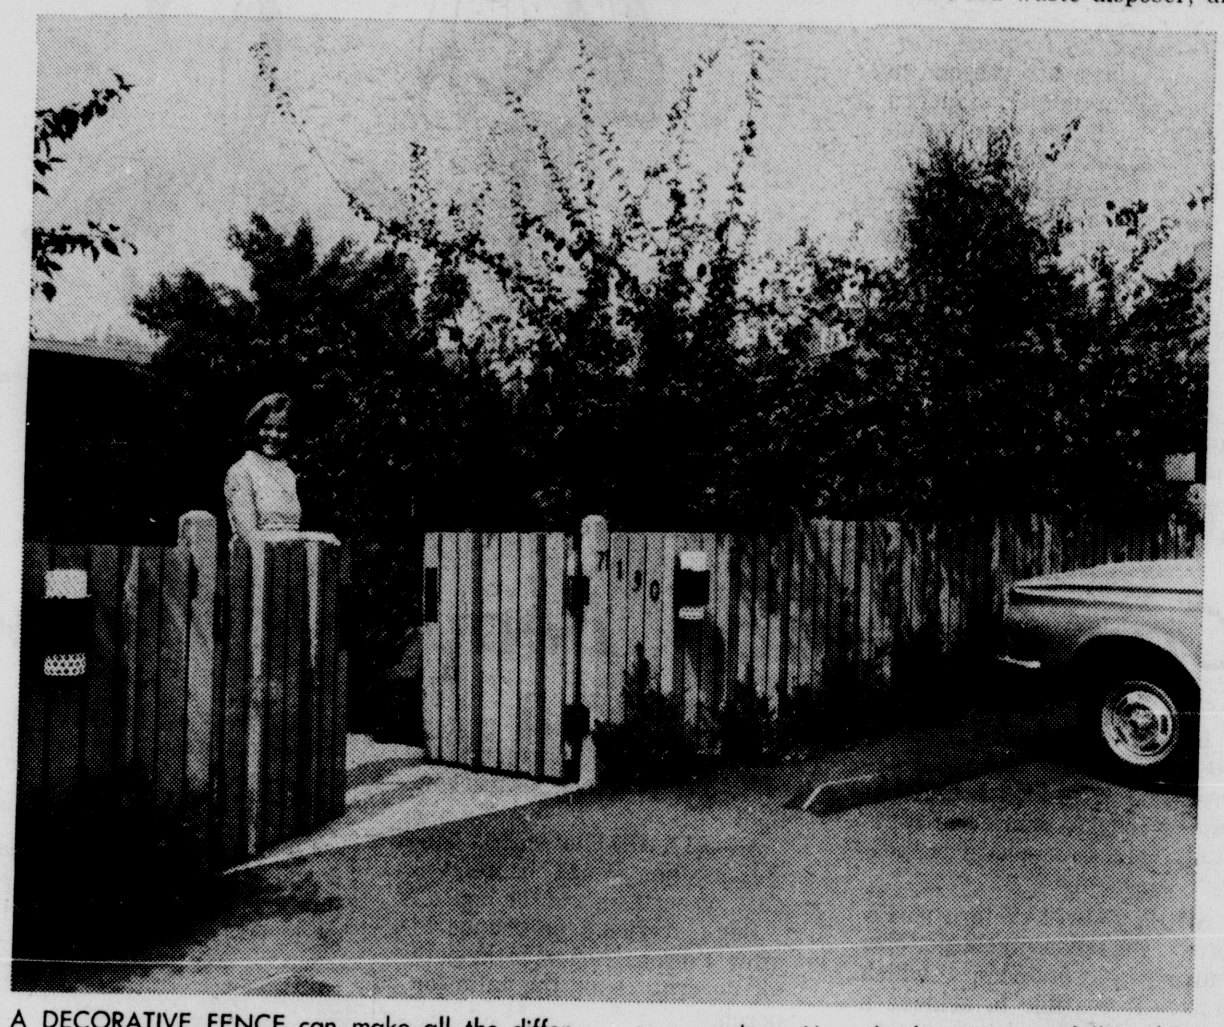
5. At least a 50-gallon water heater to assure plenty of hot water. Where needed, there's also automatic water conditioning equipment.

6. Single-handle faucets at all the sinks and thermostatic water controls for the showers.

7. A hydronic (hot water) heating system that's zoned. This means that different parts or "zones" of the home have their own temperature controls to reflect the type of activity there.

8. Such features to assure quality plumbing as adequate-size pipe, shut-off valves at the various fixtures, etcm

That's the picture for the future — one in which plumbing worries will be lessened, and in which plumbing appliances will add greatly to your comfort and convenience.



A DECORATIVE FENCE can make all the difference in the world in the appearance of a yard. And when combined effectively with trees, it can block automobile headlight glare and afford you privacy, even as the gate directs welcomed visitors to your door. Here the fence steps uphill on four-by-four-inch posts and two-by-four-inch stringers. Resawn one-by-four-inch cedar boards have been nailed on both sides of the fence, with every fourth board on edge. (Western Wood Products Association photo)

Pets Need Safe Lair For Play

Young pets, like children need security and benefit from lairs of their own.

A 12-by-24-inch playpen lets a small kitten or puppy frolic or snooze safe from careless human feet.

One two-foot length of 12-inch board will form the floor. Twelve and 24-inch lengths of two-by-twos make corner uprights and toprail. Slats make up the sides, spaced close enough so your pet can't squeeze his head through.

Any of the easily-worked western soft woods are suitable. Add washable padding on the floor and a catnip mouse or rubber bone.

An Ornamental Fence Can Also Be A Practical Asset To Home

An easy way to add practical beauty to a home is with a decorative fence — providing a backdrop for flowers and shrubs and drawing together the house, yard and garden.

On the practical side, a fence safely limits young children's play areas, discourages intruders or stray animals and defines boundary lines.

THE BEAUTY of a fence is enhanced by the imagination used in its construction.

There are hundreds of different designs and variations on them and booklets about fences, with illustrations showing many possibilities and providing building tips, are available at book stores and building materials dealers.

It is important to remember that while a fence should be useful and attractive, it should not dominate the scene. Here's where it may be necessary to vary traditional designs to suit the home and lot.

A FENCE needn't be tall or massive to fulfill its duties. Indeed, in some localities there are limitations set by law. Slightly spaced one-by-three-inch slats on a frame of two-by-four-inch western cedar can set off an area yet retain a feeling of openness.

Adding to the possibilities are the materials used. Board fences of one-by-six-inch pine, cedar or fir may be woven horizontally, vertically, louvered, even diagonally.

The boards may be smooth or rough-sawn, and stained or left to weather naturally for easy maintenance. Posts or boards in contact with the ground should be pressure-treated.

HORIZONTAL one-by-six-inch bevel cedar siding is suggested when a solid fence is desired.

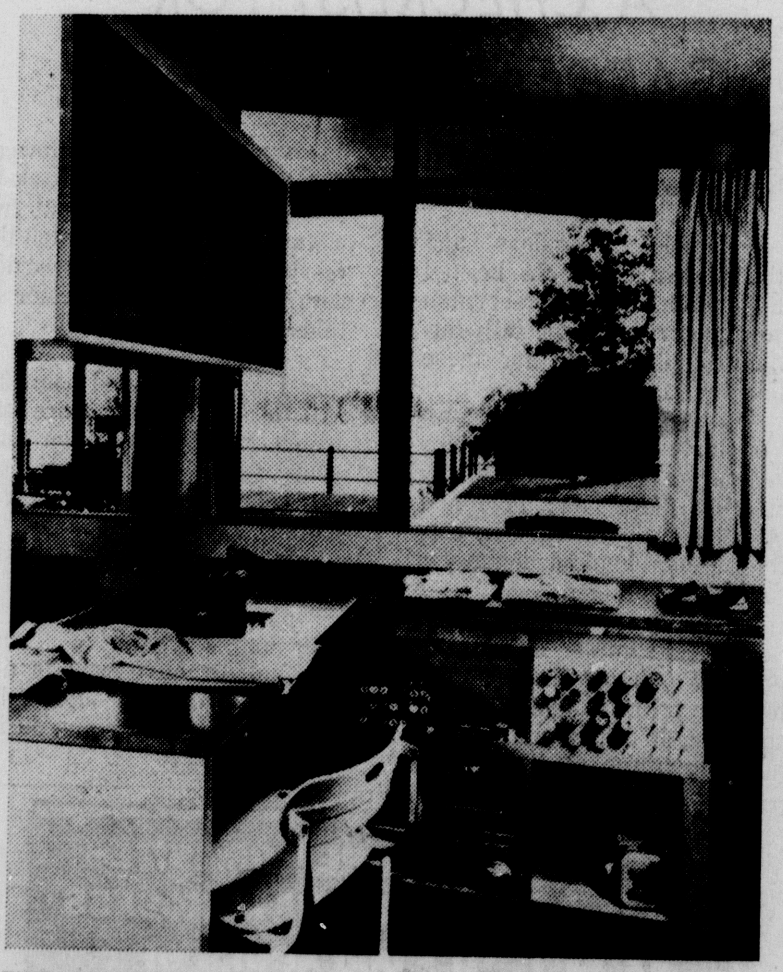
A cross-rail style fence of two-by-four-inch pine or fir gives a pleasing open effect. And there are many variations of the old standard, the picket fence.

Gates should harmonize with the fence design, and extra sturdy hinges and latches should be used just in case "little people" in the neighborhood are tempted to swing.

ONE FAMILY added a low decorative fence at the front of the house which, combined with shrubs, set off the yard and blocked headlights at night.

Resawn one-by-four-inch cedar boards were face-nailed on both sides of two-by-four-inch stringers, with every fourth board on edge for accent.

AN END TO CLUTTER



THIS COMPACT sewing cabinet can spell the end to the clutter that has traditionally plagued the seamstress. For the how-to-build-it plan, send 25 cents with your request for Form 57-70 to American Plywood Association, 1119 A Street, Tacoma, Wash., 98401. The cabinet provides generous working space on its formica-covered cutting surface. The machine rests in a well that places the sewing surface level with the countertop during operation. Sewing accessories and tools all have conveniently-located storage places. The spools of thread are held by wooden dowels mounted on a sloped plywood surface. Lipped shelves hold bobbins, scissors, spare needles and other articles in place. It is a relatively easy project for the handyman with rudimentary carpentry skills.

Build Your Own Patio Table To Double Outdoor Enjoyment

THE PATIO table and benches shown here were built 11 years ago by a handyman with the help of a Steve Ellingson pattern, and remain as attractive and functional today as they were when first put into use.

It's A Relatively Easy Project With The Help Of A Pattern

With the arrival of June, it seems that more Marinites are eating outdoors than indoors.

For truly relaxed and enjoyable outdoor meals, a comfortable, utilitarian table is an essential.

You can build your own, plus benches. To help you accomplish this task, send $1 to Steve Ellingson, San Rafael Independent-Journal Pattern Department, Post Office Box 2383, Van Nuys, Calif., 91409, and ask for barbecue table and benches pattern No. 62.

THE FULL-SIZE pattern makes the project a relatively simple one for the handyman. You simply trace it onto wood, then saw out the parts and assemble them according to instructions.

Along with the patterns and the directions, you get illustrations and a full list of the required materials.

The table and the benches are all handsome additions to the patio. And all are strong and sturdy, so that they can be expected to last for many years.

Just give them a fresh coat of paint or stain each spring, and a decade from now they will be as attractive and as useful as the day they were built.

THEY CAN EVEN be left outdoors through the winter.

Ellingson has also developed some other useful patterns for the outdoor living enthusiast. Included are an outdoor serving cart (No. 204) for $1, a glider swing (No. 276) for $1, and an outdoor rocking chair (No. 350), also $1.

If you want your pattern or patterns sent to you air mail, include an additional 25 cents per pattern. That will enable you to make an earlier start on your project, and speed the time when you will be enjoying breakfast, luncheon or dinner, or even all three, on the table that dad built.

Family Treasures Deserve An Attractive Showcase

Antiques are "in" these days and many people proudly display old family treasures in their home decor.

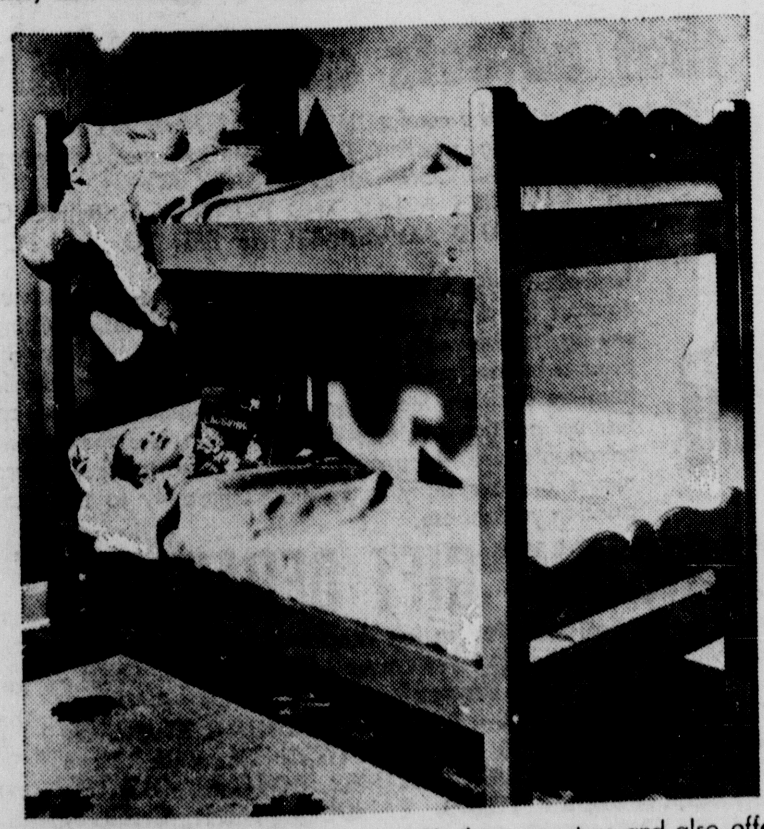
Those not lucky enough to inherit fine old furniture haunt antique shops or second-hand and junk stores, even flea markets, depending on their resources.

For a family hand-me-down or an old cabinet you've found and refinished, a built-in display unit will give it prominence and protection.

Shelves display smaller items, and cabinets below provide storage, fitted with locks if desired.

Adding to the unit's usefulness is a wet bar for entertaining. If the unit is to be placed in a large entry area instead of a family or living room, the wet bar can be replaced with storage for umbrellas, overshoes and coats.

The display unit is constructed of one-by-10 or one-by-12-inch western fir or pine boards. Doors are one-by-four-inch tongue-and-groove paneling, which also may be used to face the inset area.



BUNK BEDS retain their popularity with the youngsters and also offer a solution to the space problem when two side-by-side beds might overcrowd a bedroom. With the help of Easi-Bild's Bunk Bed Pattern No. 87, available for $1 from Independent-Journal, Post Office Box 215, Briarcliff Manor, N.Y., 10510, the man of the house can build the double-decker shown here at very little cost. The youngsters can even lend a hand in the project.

TV NOTES

By JACK GAVER

Mosel is getting a lot of mileage out of "All the Way Home." His play won the Pulitzer Prize and the New York Drama Critics' Circle award in 1961. David Susskind made a movie of it. Now it is on the "Hallmark Hall of Fame" schedule for a television version on NBC during the coming season. Joanne Woodward and Richard Kiley will star in this bittersweet story of the impact of death on a family as seen through the eyes of a little boy.

Meanwhile, Miss Woodward and daughter, Nell Newman, are busy in Idaho making a 60-minute feature for the "G.E. Monogram" series of specials for broadcasting next January. The 12-year-old Miss Newman is making her video acting debut in "Eagle and the Hawk," which is a blend of documentary and drama dealing with protection of birds of prey.

Dave Garroway will be star-host of "The CBS Newcomers," a one-hour comedy-variety series that will be a summer replacement on CBS for Carol Burnett's show, 10 to 11 p.m. Mondays, starting July 12. The show will feature fresh professional talent discovered by the network and its affiliates during a search in 56 cities. This will mark Garroway's return to network television after a 10-year absence.

ABC announced plans for beginning a monthly series of original 90-minute dramas for daytime televidion early in 1972. Major talents and high production standards are promised for the shows, which will be taped in New York and Hollywood.

The new title for NBC's monthly "First Tuesday" program when it shifts to a monthly Friday in the fall is to be "Fourth Friday," 9 to 11 p.m. The final "First Tuesday" telecast will be on Sept. 7; the first under the new title will be on Oct. 22.

On The Stereo Scene

BY JOHN SUNIER

Angel Records continues to bring to U.S. listeners excellent stereo recordings of Russian music from the Soviet Union on the Melodiya-Angel label.

Two stereo "firsts" lead the recent batch, newly recorded in the U S S R and pressed in this country.

A SYMPHONY that was very popular in the U.S. early in this century receives its stereo premiere on Melodiya-Angel SR-40132, Kalinnikov's "Symphony No. 2 in A" The U S S R Symphony Orchestra is conducted by Svetlanov.

Written in 1898, the work is full of very Russian melody and bears some resemblance to the music of Borodin. There is a grandeur about the symphony that is thoroughly convincing in this performance by Soviet musicians who obviously feel very close to the score.

RODION SCHEDRIN is a fine Russian composer of today, perhaps best known for his spectacular "Carment Ballet" arrangement heard on an earlier Melodiya-Angel LP.

His ballet "The Humpbacked Horse" is based on a Russian fairytale and is very often seen on the boards of the Bolshoi. Algis Zuraitis conducts the Bolshoi Theater Orchestra in the "Second Suite" from this ballet on SR-40106. It is music full of verve, charm and an optimistic sense of humor.

Sound, as on nearly all the Melodiya-Angel albums, is fully up to U.S. standards of stereo reproduction. Also, Angel's tasteful packaging always deserves praise.

PROKOFIEFF'S "Symphony No. 3 in C Minor" is presented on SR-40092 with Gennady Rozhdestvensky conducting the Moscow Radio Symphony Orchestra.

Completed in 1928, the Third Symphony is based on material from the Soviet composer's opera, "The Flaming Angel." It concerns a dark world of medieval mysticism with images of suffering, torture and excorcisms and is definitely not easy music of the socialist realism type that Soviet leaders eventually pressured Prokofieff into turning out.

Rozhdestvensky and his men dig into the score with such fervor and feeling as to outshine competing versions by Abravanel and einsdorf.

DMITRI SHOSTAKOVICH is probably Russia's most important living composer, and the Melodiya record company there has released through Angel in this country many fine LPs covering all aspects of the varied output of the Soviet master artist.

One of my personal favorites in the chamber music area has long been Shostakovich's "Quintet for Piano and Strings." It is now on SR-40085, coupled with Stravinsky's "Three Pieces for String Quartet," and featuring the Borodin Quartet who have been extremely popular in live appearances in the Bay Area. A strong flavor of Russian folk music is heard in the Quintet.

The Scherzo is one of the most exciting in all chamber music.

SOME OF THE most delightful humor in music is found in certain works of Shostakovich. Not least among them are the Ballet Suites Nos. 1, 2 and 3, composed between 1949 and 1952.

Therefore it is with thanks that I can retire my old mono Classic Edition LP of this music, a disaster in recording quality, and substitute the new stereo edition on Melodiya-Angel, SR-400115, with the composer's illustrious son Maksim, conducting the Bolshoi Theater Orchestra. These light movements are in the spirit of the composer's famous "Polka from The Age of Gold, "but mostly more melodic in nature.) Brilliant performances and reproduction.

WHAT VIOLIN-PIANO duo has received more superlatives than any other in recent history but David Oistrakh and Sviatoslav Richter?

Give them two rich Romantic chamber music classics, the Franck "Sonata for Violin and Piano in A" and the Brahms" Sonata No. 3 for Violin and Piano in D," and the good vibes that prevailed at a live recital in Moscow in 1968, and you have a breath-taking album preserved by Melodiya-Angel on SR-40121.

Many historic documents like this one leave something to be desired when compared to more perfect studio sessions by somewhat less high-powered performers. Not this one — it is incomparable in every way.

Russian audiences being noted for their super-quiet attentiveness, background noise is almost nonexistent, adding to the excellent sound.

ALONG WITH the abovementioned performers, the third most important soloist in the Soviet Union today is probably the cellist Matislav Rostropovich. On SR-40091 he is heard in the first recording of a new cello concerto by Boris Tishchenko.

The composer's music is very advanced without overstepping the bounds of tonality. Rather than using a full orchestra, the accompanying ensemble used by Tischenko is winds, percussion and organ, and is conducted by Igor Blazhkov.

The second side of the album returns to chamber music of Shostakovich with his "Trio No. 2 in E Minor."

In this rather sombre work Rostropovich is joined by violinist Mikhail Vaiman and pianist Pavel Serebryakov.

Channel 9 Shows Gain

Public television is alive, well, and growing in Northern California, according to a recent audience survey of KQED (Channel 9), San Francisco.

The survey concluded that well over a third of the television viewing households in the Bay Area watch KQED at least once a week.

Prepared by Stanford University's Institute for Communication Research, the study estimated 636,000 households or 35.7 per cent of all TV-owning households weekly, representing a 20.6 per cent gain over the last similar audience measurement made in 1966.

The survey took place from Nov. 12 to 18, 1970. During that week 244 trained volunteer interviews placed 21,465 telephone calls throughout the Bay Area between the hours of 6 p.m. and 10 p.m.

HOW DO YOU SHAPE UP?
Hips, Waistline and tummy "stretched" out of shape!!
Thighs too large!! Lax, underexercised muscles don't hold you in. Start today to shape up for the swim suit season.

Lange's teammates from Marin will include Pete Scott, Gene Nelson, Terry McGovern, Carter B. Smith, Al Newman, Jeff Skov and Chet Casselman. The VIPs will be led by Pat Paulsen and Clint Eastwood.

MILL VALLEY'S Jim Egger whose skillfully designed Egger & Son Nurseries landscape exhibits have been enjoyed by visitors to countless Northern California fairs and flower shows is currently putting the finishing touches on his display for the 22nd annual Solano County Fair. The fair opens Monday in Vallejo and runs through June 26. Australian tree ferns, hanging basket fuchsias and bamboo plus running water all contribute to the lacy, cool effect in the photo above. Egger is entered in the professional gardener division.

MOUNT TAMALPAIS, SPRING DAWN

The long slow sweep of the morning
Had uncovered the mountain
Standing olive green to black in her pines.
The thin brown strips of man
Weaving endlessly upward
Tearing apart her primitive splendor.
Her rocks rebounding ray for ray
The first light of the dawning
The tin roofs of man's encroachments
Forever shattering
The regal solemnity which surrounds her.
Tall, unmoving, serene in her grandeur
Stood the guardian of our valley
In the early spring sun.

THE PULL OF THE SEA

The mystic power of the sea
For years has been calling for me.
And now my longing I must still,
My longtime dream I must fullfill.

I must go on, I can't look back.
On those who care, I turn my back.
My burning heart I must appease,
Only at sea I will find peace.

REFLECTION

In the crystal clear pool,
  Is the reflection
Of all that is above,
  Part of me,
Life that is water,
  One knowing,
Both born of the restless sea.
